MONTVILLE BRIDE'S MOTHER MAKES COUPLE PRISONERS, DEMANDING $150

A bride and groom held captive in the home of the bride's mother while a demand for $150 from the groom was made and the beleaguered groom faced a barrage of broomhandles, knives and forks wa sthe tale that came out of Montville Tuesday afternoon after a family disturbance which two officers from the state police barracks at Groton were called in to quell.

William Kachuk and Julia Ywarsky, now living in the Pequot section of Montville, were married last Saturday by Rev. Charles Smith of the Uncasville Methodist church. The trouble all arose, it was stated by members of the family, because the contributions made at the wedding festivities at the home, according to the Polish custom, did not pan out as largely as had been expected, and in consequence the bride's stepfather, Peter Kotula, wanted to get back $150 which he claimed he had put into the wedding celebration.

Early Tuesday afternoon, it is stated, Mrs. Peter Kotula, mother of the bride, brought the bridal couple and her other daughter, Mrs. Adam Chop, to the Kotula home, locked the doors and demanded that the groom pay her $150. This demand was backed up by the bride's stepfather. The action got so vigorous that Mrs. Chop made a hurried exit through a window. The bride tried the door but was blocked by her mother. However, she also escaped through a window with a crack from a broomstick to hurry her departure, she said. The two women then hustled off to get help to rescue the bridegroom, left alone with his mother-in-law and the bride's stepfather. They returned with Adam Chop and Walter Ywarsky in the latter's machine and when Ywarsky threatened to break down the front door with a plank, he gave the groom a chance to make his escape by a headfirst dive through a window.

Walter Ywarsky's machine was the next object of attack from Mrs. Kotula who smashed the windshield with a shower of stones and kept Walter from recovering his machine. At that stage help was asked from the state police barracks, Officers Botnick and Kolosky responding and regaining the machine for Walter, besides smoothing out the rest of the difficulty without making any arrests.

Shortly after midnight Lee DeBarros, 38, colored, was arrested at his home No. 9 Forest street, on a liquor violation charge. The arrest was made by Sgt. Delaney and Constable George Hollingsworth. His bonds were set at $1,000 but DeBarros could not provide them and was locked up for the night. Evidence of actual sale was secured by an operative working with the police.

About a half hour later Sgt. Delaney and Constable Hollingsworth arrested Tony Santiago, 32, Portuguese, at his home on Talman street. The charge against him is violation of the liquor law by actual sale, the evidence having been secured by the operative. As in the other cases bonds were set at $1,000 but were not furnished. All the accused will be presented in the city court this (Wednesday) morning.

STORRS HENS SHOW BURST OF SPEED

The hens in the Storrs laying contest have started the third quarter with a real burst of speed. The production of the twenty-seventh week for all pens was 5940 or a yield of nearly sixty-one per cent., the highest total that has been reached since the contest started last November. This is 173 eggs more than for last week and relatively 752 eggs better than for the corresponding period last year. The management's prediction last week of 206,000 eggs for the year looks conservative in view of the basis at which the birds are now going.

Barred Rocks entered by the Purdue Agricultural Experiment Station at Lafayette, Ind., finished first for the week with a score of 61 eggs. F. S. Chapin's Reds from Longmeadow, Mass., were second best pen in the twenty-seventh week with a score of 58 eggs. Keewaydin Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Darien, Conn., and Rapp's Leghorn Farm at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., were tied for third place with 57 eggs each. This jumped the Darien pen into second place in the Barred Rock class in which there are twenty pens competing. Harold F. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., and two pens of Leghorns owned by Barlow Leghorn Farm at Sugar Grove, Pa., and Thomas H. Neill of Vineland, N. J., all tied for fourth place with 56 eggs each. As a class the Leghorns headed the list with a yield of over sixty-four per cent. Barred Rocks were second with better than sixty-two per cent. and White Rocks third with nearly sixty per cent.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

NURMI WILL TRY TO LOWER RECORD FOR MILE AT THE HARVARD MEET

New York, May 13.—(A. P.)—Frederick W. Rubien, national secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, tonight announced that arrangements had been completed for Paavo Nurmi to race in the Harvard stadium in a one mile event on Friday, May 22.

The race will provide for Nurmi an opportunity to attempt to break his own mile record of 4.10 2-5 as well as the Harvard track mark of 4.12 2-5 set by Norman Taber in 1916.

Mr. Rubien also said that Nurmi had indicated he would accept an invitation to run in a half mile race at the proposed night games of the Finnish-American A. C. at the Yankee stadium under powerful arc lights on May 26.

The A. A. U. official declared that the reported "break" of the Finnish running marvel and his manager, Huso Quist, had been exaggerated.

DERBY ENTRIES SHOW FAST TIME IN TRIAL RACES

Louisville, Ky., May 13.—(A. P.)—Trial races today replaced the routine conditioning of some of the Derby candidates, six of the three year olds being entered in the Derby trial at a mile, the 5th race of the day's card at Churchill Downs. Satisfactory workouts were made by the thoroughbreds who were breezed.

Captain Hej worked a fast mile and a quarter in 2.06 3-5 in preparation for his start in the $50,000 race Saturday. His time, made on a slow track was three and one-fifth seconds slower than the Derby record.

Quatrain, was breezed a half mile in the nature of an "opener" for a longer workout tomorrow. He stepped the quarter in :26; three-eighths in :37 and the half in :51 3-5, handily.

Lee O. Cotner worked nicely for three-quarters of a mile, doing the first quarter in :36 3-5; half in 51 and the three-quarters in 1.18 3-5.

NURMI TO SAIL FOR HOME ON MAY 28TH.

New York, May 13—Paavo Nurmi, sensation of the boards and cinder-path, today booked passage for his home in Finland. He will sail from New York on the Stockholm, May 28, after sweeping away many American track records.

Nurmi, visiting the offices of the steamship company alone, said that he intended to go direct to his home in Abo and rest after his long and arduous programme of running in the United States, an invasion that has taken him from Maine to California and into Canada.

There is a possibility that the great Finn will be seen in an outdoor meet at the Yankee Stadium here the night of May 26, two days before his departure. The Finnish-American A. C. tentatively set the date when it became known that Nurmi had engaged passage. There is also a possibility that he will go to Harvard Stadium late in the month to attack the mile record of Norman S. Taber, 4:12 2-5, made on the Harvard track in 1916, but today his plans were indefinite.

ACADEMY WILL PLAY AT PROVIDENCE TODAY

The Academy's baseball team will see the sights of Providence this afternoon when they travel there to play LaSalle in a return engagement. The Red and White will try to wipe out the defeat they received at the hands of the Rhode Island team on the Campus a few weeks ago when the Providence team made an eleventh hour rally and won the game, 2-1. Up to that time, the teams seemed evenly matched, with the Academy having a slight edge over the rivals.

With two successive victories added to their increasing list, the Academy team, going at a fast clip, intends to make this the third straight win.

LaSalle, it will be remembered by local fans has a team composed of picked stars, both in batting and fielding. Their lineup has some of the fastest high school men in New England on it. They are heavy-hitting lads caring little for the fences or bleachers on the field.

The Academy, on the other hand, have a team which is rated as dangerous to opponents, owing to their clever teamwork, which has been shown to advantage in their recent battles. With most of its players batting over .300 and some even .400, the Red and White have an aggregation which would cause any pitcher worry. It's fielders are all over the lot, fielding even the hardest hit balls.

Judging from their work in other contests, the game this afternoon should be a close and thrilling battle. Neither team is certain of winning, although both are determined to cop the bacon.

"Smiling" Johnny Greene, the speed artist, will do the tossing for the Academy. In all probability, Jack Hinricks, the Red and White premier batsman, will catch, as Mish is still out. Eddie Busch will take Jack's place in left field. Jerry Burke will be on first base; Capt. Art McGowan, 3b; Leo Carroll, 3b; Stan Cimikoski, ss; "Lefty" Jarvis, who turned back the Plainfield nine and is a star batsman, cf; and "Ed" Brewer, rf.

ACADEMY LOSES TRACK MEET TO BULKELEY BY MARGIN OF ONE POINT

Bulkeley's athletic prowess came within an ace of receiving a severe jolt Tuesday afternoon in the dual track and field meet with the Academy when the local athletes came within one point of capturing the meet, Bulkeley winning 41 to 40. The meet was nip and tuck up to the last event with Bulkeley leading 37 to 35 with the pole vault as the deciding factor of the afternoon. The Academy had but two entrants in this event, Jack Hinrichs and Johnny Sayles, while Bulkeley entered five. Hinrichs, however, captured the event but Sayles was forced out giving Bulkeley second and third places and enough points to nose out the local boys, but one lone point.

Jack Hinrichs, star all around athlete of the Academy, was the outstanding star of the meet, getting 16 points for his school, four more than George Shefflott, Bulkeley's star performer. Hinrichs won three first places and a third for the Academy while Shefflot took one first, two seconds and a third. The interest seemed to center on these two athletes and the local boy proved his superiority beyond a doubt. The only events in which these two were pitted against each other was in the 100 yard dash and the pole vault, Hinrichs being beaten by Shefflot in the dash and Hinrichs beating Shefflot in the pole valut.

The first event was the 100 yard dash in which there were eight entrants in the semi-finals, four to qualify. In the first heat Armstrong beat Shefflot who was second and in the second heat Hinrichs and Gray qualified. In the finals Shefflot was away to a good start as was Gray, while Hinrichs and Armstrong were a fraction of a second slower in getting away at the gun. Shefflot was first, maintaining his advantage to the finish, but with Gray and Hinrichs giving him a hard run. Shefflot's time was 10 2-5 seconds.

Gray of Bulkeley and Armstrong of the Academy fought a pretty race in the 220 yard event, Gray breasting the tape only a few inches ahead of the local runner.

The feature of the afternoon was the 440 yard race which was won by Hinrichs in a brilliant finish in the last fifty yards. Zucardy of Bulkeley took the lead at the start with Disco of the Academy in second place and Hinrichs trailing in fifth place. At half distance Hinrichs had forged ahead up to the third position and was running strong. Just before the turn into the stretch Hinrichs passed Disco and went after Zucardy overtaking him in the last fifty feet and beating him to the tape by about three feet. It was as pretty a finish as has ever been seen in a meet at the campus. Hinrichs putting all he had into that last few feet, just enough punch to carry him to victory over his fast tiring rival.

Olson took the 880 yard run with two Academy men, Baldwin and Prodell in the second and third positions. Olson took the lead at the start and held it although Baldwin made a fine try at the finish falling short only by a few feet.

Zucardy won the mile event with ease, maintaining a perfect stride from start to finish and never being forced to extend himself. Waters of the Academy set the pace with Zucardy sticking with him until Waters was burned out and forced to drop out. Kramer of the Academy also ran a nice race taking second place while Watchinsky of Bulkeley took third.

In the field events the Academy athletes far out classed their Bulkeley rivals, the Academy taking all but one event, the broad jump. In the shot put the Academy won all places, Hinrichs getting first, Lukoski, second, and Prodell, third.

The high jump went to the Academy, Johnny Sayles and Holdridge tieing for first place with a jump of 5 feet 1 inch, Stebbins dropping out at an even 5 feet. Sayles and Holdridge made a fine impression both using the scissors jump to good advantage, while their opponents used several different styles.

Henkle of Bulkeley outclassed the field in the broad jump with a jump of 18 feet 9 inches. Shefflot was second in this event while Art Armstrong took third.

The pole vault was the concluding event and although the Academy took first place they were unable to place another man.

The scoring was done as follows: Academy—Hinrichs 16 points; Armstrong 6, Baldwin 3, Sayles 5, Holdridge 3, Kramer 3, Prodell 2, Disco 1. Total 40.

Bulkeley: Shefflot 12, Zucardy 8, Gray 8, Olson 5, Henkle 5, Cleary 1, Watchinsky 1, Stebbins 1. Total 41.

The officials were: Starter, Charles Colt; timers, Raymond Case, of Norwich and Dillon of Bulkeley; judges, William Gallagher of Norwich and Mr. Gray of New London; clerk of the course, W. D. Aitken; scorers, McLaren and Standish.

The summaries:

100 yard dash —First, Shefflot of Bulkeley; second, Gray of Bulkeley; third, Hinrichs of the Academy. Time 10 4-5 seconds.

220 yard dash—First, Gray of Bulkeley; second, Armstrong of the Academy; third, Shefflot of Bulkeley. Time 25 1-5 seconds

Funeral services for George F. Clark, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his home, 35 Grove avenue, many relatives and friend attending. A delegation from the press works of the C. E. Cottrell and Sons Co., where Mr. Clark was employed for more than forty years, attended in a body.

Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-Day Baptist of Westerly in which the deceased held membership, conducted the funeral services. The bearers were Ed N. Burdick, George E. Egger, Walter F. Clark, Hiram W. Barber, Everett E. Whipple and Joseph H. Whipple. Burial was made in the family plot in River Bend cemetery.

At a session of Stonington Probate court Monday, before Probate Judge Frank H. Hinckley, William H. Casey of Pawcatuck was appointed conservator over Frank N. Ayers of Pawcatuck, who has recently been at a Connecticut state institution.

In attendance today (Wednesday) at the one hundred and nineteenth semi-annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar and the Appendant Orders of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, are Arthur E. Thompson, commander; John A. Hoag, generalissimo; Arthur J. Card, captain general and Past Commander Samuel Girven, all members of Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar of Westerly. Following the business session, held at Freemasons' Hall, Providence, at which the reports of numerous committees are made, at the conclusion of the session adjournment is scheduled for a dinner at the Pomham club on Narragansett bay. A meeting of the Commanders' union and banquet was to follow at the Narragansett hotel, Providence, in the evening.

At the Westerly end of the new state road from Westerly to Hopkinton, workmen in the employ of the Amos D. Bridges Construction company tackled the job Tuesday at the foot of Vincent Carr hill or on High street, in which the installation work for the sewers is in progress near the top of the hill.

Monday night about 9 o'clock on the site of the construction work for the new United Theatres building, being erected by Samuel Nardone, the continued rainfall of the previous twenty-four hours caused a cave-in at the south side of the Dr. John May estate property. Tons of earth and gravel were precipitated into the excavations, where a part of the cement foundation work had began completely burrying it, carrying away some of the wooden construction where the side wall was shored up. Trucks were busy carrying away the fallen bank which went down as far back as the temporary guard fence.

Workmen in the section gangs of the New Haven railroad were occupied Monday and Tuesday near the Westerly station of the railroad in placing in position the new and heavier tie plates which having been nearly completed on this section greatly increases the strength of the tracks, the new plates being of a different pattern and much heavier than the ones removed.

At Tuesday's session the jury hearing the case of Michael Juliano vs. Frank Iacano & Co., which occupied the attention of the superior court Monday afternoon and again Tuesday morning, brought in a verdict of $339.20 for the plaintiff at 12.40 p. m. The jury was out for less than an hour.

Attorney John J. Dunn, representing the defendant, filed a motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against the law and the evidence. Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge is counsel for Juliano.

Juliano, a building contractor, sued to recover a balance of $339.20 alleged to be due him from the contracting firm of Frank Iacano & Co., for materials and labor furnished in connection with a construction project for the Columbia Granite Works north of Oak street.

Immediately after the noon recess today, court adjourned until 10.45 a. m. Thursday. The next case to be heard is that of Albert L. Castritius vs. Henry P. Walton, which by agreement will be tried without a jury.

It may mean that the Westerly Highway commision, an organization sponsored and defended by Town Councilman George Benjamin Utter will eventually be legislated out of existence, as a result of developments which had their culmination in the "executive" joint session of the Westerly Town council and Westerly Highway Commission with other town officials in the council chambers of the Westerly Town hall Monday night. When taxpayers and citizens of Westerly as reported were "ordered cleared from the chamber" by Council President Campbell, "those not officially connected with the investigation" collected outside the chamber door, on the steps of the town hall and then remained on the sidewalk and to them President Campbell was said to have stated that he "believed a return of the highway control to the town council was desirable."

The resolution adopted by a committee of the Westerly Town council, consisting of George B. Utter, a representative from the first Westerly Voting district, Farquhar Smith, chairman of the Westerly police committee, Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., and Council Clerk Everett F. Whipple, and reported back to the council, ended with the declaration:

Whereas; Charles F. Berry and Elihu H. Chesebro, members of the Board of Highway Commissioners, stated that they agreed with Mr. Charles J. Butler that indebtedness to the amount of $18,733.09 was incurred and contracted for during the year 1924, and that said indebtedness appeared on page 40, Exhibit B of the printed report of the Board of Highway Commissioners for the year ending December 31, 1924, and is as follows:

"Westerly Highway Department
Exhibit B

Unpaid vouchers as at December 31, 1924:

Gulf Refining Co., $59.84; Joseph McCormick & Sons, $9,372.34; New England Metal Culvert Co., $1,044.00; C. C. Plumb Contracting Co., $6,200.58; Rhode Island Garage, $10.30; Standard Oil Co., of New York, 1,460.40; The Smith Granite Co., $84.72; Whitall Electric Co., $1.65; total unpaid 1924 accounts, $18,733.09.

and

Whereas; Mr. Charles J. Butler stated that he was present at the meetings of the Board of Highway Commissioners when the contracts were entered into whereby the above indebtedness was incurred, it being agreed by the board that it was for the best interests of the town that said contracts be entered into, but he was not aware that the contracts would overdraw the appropriation.

Now therefore it is

Voted: that in the opinion of this Town Council no charges have been made against the Highway Commissioners which call for the investigation of the books of accounts of the said Commissioners.

BILLBOARD AND POLLUTION BILLS ARE PASSED BY HOUSE AFTER DISCUSSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 13—As a result of the agitation that has been in progress for several years, against the disfiguration of the road sides by the placing of advertising signs that now abound along the state highways, a bill was passed in the house today that increases the tax from five mills to three cents for each square foot of the signs. The bill when before the finance committee was opposed by Major John Buckley and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, of Willimantic, as well as by a large number of sign painters. At this hearing Samuel Russell, Jr., representative from Middletown, stated that it was the purpose of the proponents of the measure to tax the nuisance out of existence if they could get rid of it in no other way; that the beautiful scenery of the state which was excelled by no other state in the union, being taken advantage of by displaying the virtues of every conceivable commodity. The bill has had the support of a large number of civic associations in all parts of the state. It forbids the erection of any sign upon any property other than that upon which the goods advertised are sold or advertised. It provides against the erection of any structure that will interfere with a clear vision of the highway. Section two increases the fee with a minimum fee of one dollar. Each sign must have a license number.

The Pollution Bill

When action was taken upon the Wheeler pollution bill an interesting discussion was developed.

The bill was explained by Averill, of Branford, as being the best of several that had been considered by the committee. Representative Bransfield, of Portland, was opposed to the bill as it would work a hardship upon the towns and manufacturing interests located upon the Connecticut river. Sturges, of Woodbury, said the passage of the bill would be an advanced step in cleaning up the streams of the state. It was time that something was done to remedy present conditions.

Every citizen has been safeguarded in its provisions. Representative Talcott, of Vernon, said that while the operation of the bill would hit him and cause a large financial expenditure, he would support the bill. It was certainly time that something was done to abate existing evils. He knew that he was polluting the stream by the waste from his mill and he was willing to be shown how to abate it. Mr. Talcott received hearty applause. Representative Rose, of Glastonbury, like Mr. Talcott, was hit by the provisions of the bill, but wanted the bill passed. He was willing to take his medicine and aid in clearing up the streams.

Miss Cheney while in accord with the supporters of the bill regretted that the state and county had not been included among those who must clean up. She also called attention to the fact that while the bill provided compensation to those who would see to its operation, it carried no appropriation and offered an amendment appropriating $50,000 for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1927.

If the state was going to impose conditions upon the cities and manufacturers, it should be subject to the same conditions. The amendment was opposed by Sturgess of Woodbury and Averill of Branford. It was impossible to say what the expense was going to be. When this was ascertained arrangements could be made for the money to carry out the provisions of the bill. The bill was supported by Pond of Plymouth, a manufacturer, Bell of Salisbury and Wheeler of Stratford.

The amendment was rejected and the bill was passed.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10.30 by Speaker Darbie. Prayer was offered by House Chaplain Arthur F. Lewis.

Speaker Darbie said that before the business of the house was taken up he wished to give expression of his appreciation of the messages of sympathy that have come to him during the past week and for the beautiful roses that had been sent by the members of the house to honor the memory of his mother.

The committee on fisheries and game reported unfavorably on H. B. 831, that provided for closing all tributaries of the Connecticut River between the Middletown railroad bridge and the mouth of the river to fishing; H. B. 589, that forbids the use of steel traps for fur bearing animals; H. B. 493, that amended the snaring law.

H. B. 746, that has been made the special order of the day for Wednesday on motion of Chairman Lynch of the cities and boroughs committee was recommitted to the committee. Mr. Lynch said that the bill as printed in the files was not the one heard by the committee, neither was it the one voted upon by them. The bill was recommitted.

A number of favorable reports were received from the judiciary committee on the minor courts. Among them were ones appointing William A. Wilcox, Judge and James H. Stivers, deputy judge of the town court of Stonington; John T. Barry, judge and James H. Shea, deputy judge of the town court of Griswold; Wm. H. Heald, judge and Ernest K. Tait, deputy judge of the borough court of Stafford Springs. All were approved and under suspension of the rules were transmitted to the senate.

An unfavorable report was made upon the bill providing for a fire proof store-house for the motor vehicle department. Among other bills rejected was H. B. 834, that provided that endowments for cemeteries should be deposited with the state treasurer; H. B. 556, providing for gross income tax in lieu of personal property of such persons.

A number of favorable reports were received and the bills were ordered printed and placed upon the calendar Concurrence was voted by the house upon all senate matters.

When the business of the calendar had been disposed of Chairman Lynch, of the cities and boroughs committee, said that the committee had met and had gone over the Bridgeport bill, had corrected the errors and moved that it be made the order of the day again for Wednesday at 10:45. This was opposed by Finkelstone, of Bridgeport.

The house sustained the motion of Chairman Lynch and the bill comes up for action tomorrow morning at 10.45.

The house concurred with the senate in recalling from the governor's office the bill authorizing the issuance of $166,000 refunding bonds. Favorable reports were made appropriating $2,000 to the Fort Griswold association for maintenance and repairs and for $5,000 to the state pier at New London for the installation of a sprinkler system.

The house adjourned at 1:25 until Wednesday at 10:30.

SENATE

The senate was called to order at 10.45 (standard time) by Lieutenant Governor Brainard. Prayer by Chaplain Ayer.

The committee on appropriations reported unfavorably on a bill for an appropriation of $50,000 for the erection of a temporary building for the department of motor vehicles. The bill was rejected.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on appropriations on the bill providing that the state chemist shall be paid $10 for each analysis ordered by the prosecutor or grand juror. The bill was rejected.

The committee on military affairs reported a bill providing a pension of $250 a month for Mrs. Ina S. Burpee, widow of Judge Lucien F. Burpee during her widowhood.

The bill was passed under suspension of the rules.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on fish and game on the bill amending the bill relating to the revising and codifying of the fish and game laws. The bill was rejected.

The bill, substitute for senate bill No. 950, described by Chairman Mitchell of the committee on labor as a bill "to give women employed in restaurants one day's rest in seven" was passed after a brief discussion. The bill provides that no public restaurant, cafe, dining room, barber shop, hair dressing or manicuring establishment or photograph gallery shall employ any minor under sixteen years of age or any woman between the hours of 10 o'clock in the evening and o'clock in the morning or more than six days or fifty-eight hours in one week.

RALPH MULFORD, who piloted the record-breaking Chandler—a stock model except for the higher gear ratio.

The Record Still Stands!

ON February 4th, on the Culver City, Cal., track, a stock Chandler sped 1000 miles in 689 minutes, the fastest 1000 miles ever made by any automobile—including racing cars.

This climax of a notable series of performance victories challenged the entire automotive industry.

But no car has yet been able to equal Chandler's time in this gruelling test of answering the wide open throttle from dawn to dusk. And the Chandler record still stands!

NOW—a chance for you to drive a Chandler such as Mulford drove

WE offer you an opportunity to drive a duplicate (save gear ratio) of the Chandler which maintained an average of 86.96 miles an hour for 12 hours—which, in that terrific test, sensationally demonstrated the stamina and durability that every automobile owner demands.

We want you to learn from actual experience, the flashing acceleration, the phenomenal high gear power, the superlative smoothness of the famous Pikes Peak Motor.

We want you to learn from actual experience, too, what many people refuse to believe until they drive a Chandler—that with the Traffic Transmission it is impossible to clash gears even intentionally!

Here are qualities of power, speed and handling ease obtainable in no other car. Take this opportunity to make a personal test of them—of driving the kind of car that Mulford drove! Call today—or any day this week—'phone for a car if you prefer.

The Coach Imperial combines the thrill of Chandler performance and the luxury of a superior Fisher body—and it sells at the touring car price, $1595, f. o. b. Cleveland.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Breed Theatre.

Major Geoffrey Moss, brother officer of the Prince of Wales who wrote "Isn't Life Wonderful?" from which D. W. Griffith made the photoplay which comes to the Breed theatre today, is one of the most picturesque figures among present day men of European letters.

His chosen profession is that of a soldier, and for fourteen years he served in the noted Grenadier Guards, the Prince of Wales' regiment. His wife, a daughter of Sir Ronald McNeill, under secretary of foreign affairs, saw war service in Belgium and was wounded there.

During much of the war Major Moss was on secret service duty in Central Europe, and it was during this period that he gathered first hand data for some of his most striking tales.

For twelve years before leaving the army he had been writing stories for his own amusement. It was not until two years ago, however, that he submitted any of his writings to a publisher. When he did, his book was an instant success and became the "best seller" of England and the Continent.

He was in Germany in the days just after the war when liverwurst and potatoes became the delicacies of millionaires; when all that kept folk alive at all was deathless hope and an all-conquering love. It is with this particular period that "Isn't Life Wonderful?" deals.

From the great pure love of Inga and Paul he has drawn some of the most lovely and poetical scenes everdescribed; from a meal of potatoes and liverwurst he has invoked delicious humor not unmixed with pathos. His tale is a simple one written in simple language. It is mighty because it is life itself; and from it Griffith has made a picture which will be among the most enduring things of the screen.

Broadway Theatre.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week will see six more B. F. Keith vaudeville acts at the Broadway theatre, headed by Chuck Holtsworth and Band, in a novel musical offering of jazz and novelties. The five additional acts are all of the same high calibre as the feature attraction.

Black Lightning with Thunder—The Marvel Dog—in the star role, and presented by Samuel Sax, comes to the Broadway theatre for three days commencing Thursday. Black Lightning is from an original story by Harry Davis and was adapted for the screen by Dorothy Howell. It was produced and directed by James P. Hogan.

In the support of Thunder—The Marvel Dog, who has the principal role in Black Lightning, Mr. Sax has engaged a cast far and away above the usual. Clara Bow, who is considered one of the brightest stars on the screen today, plays the leading faminine role. The balance of the cast includes such well known favorites as Harold Austin, Eddie Phillips, James Mason, Joe Butterworth, Mark Fenton and John Prince.

Black Lightning is a heart-interest story that is replete with swift, clean action and holds the spectator spellbound. The action is laid in the hills of Kentucky, and the story is realistically told.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lotus Male Quartet and Reader at Y. M. C. A. Wednesday, May 13.

The famous Lotus Male Quartet of Boston needs no introduction to a Norwich audience, as on several occasions they have been heard in the Y. M. C. A. course, and always have simply delighted their hearers. The personnel of the quartet remains the same as for many years, namely, Robert Martin, tenor and manager, William Hicks, second tenor, Nelson Raymond, baritone and Frank Cannell, bass. For may years these four artists have been the musical attraction of the famous Tremont Temple Church of Boston, where thousands hear them every Sunday with real pleasure. With the quartet will come a reader, Louise Hanson, who has been well received in the many programmes presented with the quartet. This engagement is a special one, and the price is unusually low, possible only by a fortunate circumstance in the securing of this noted concert company. While the price for this concert heretofore has been 75 cents and $1.00, for this occasion the "Y" management has put the tickets at 50 cents each. Tickets may be secured at the Y. M. C. A. office or Smith's Shoe store on Broadway. A large audience is expected.

Strand Theatre.

But before all others in the dancing line stands Lloyd Mitchell, Flo Brown, Aurora Greeley and Lily Yuen. They have several dance numbers that are the peer of any group of dancers to be found in any one musical show.

The singing contingent is led by Cecil Rivers the famous Silvertone Quartette tenor, styled by many the Chocolate John Steel, and John Henderson, the favorite of all.

Tickets can now be purchased at the Broadway box office for this engagement. Prices are 75c and $1, plus tax.

Palace Theatre

A headliner of headliners is the Four Belmonts, two men and women, offering a most unique and fascinating performance with hoops and diabolos. Throwing the hoops and diabolos through the air from one to the other, caught, and returned to the sender with amazing precision and swiftness are only a few of the things presented by this quartette. For their finale they have a number of large diabolos and as the stage lights go out these large spools cleverly executed commence to shoot forth colored flames which present an unusual sight.

Dancing in every form, with good singing, beautiful gowns, presented before a background of fine scenic and lighting effects all are presented in Phoebe White's revue composed of three girls and two men. A cleverly executed and presentable act is the revue.

On the screen is presented Harold Bell Wright's masterpiece, Re-Creation of Brian Kent a story of love and regeneration with Kenneth Harlan and Helene Chadwick. A picture made different from the ordinary run.

Electricity in The Home

"Before the days of the motor car," says Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, "five or ten miles distance from a town meant real isolation for the farmer. Today the good roads movement is bringing turnpikes past his gate; the ruts and mudholes are fast disappearing. He gets his daily paper, his morning meal, the city's best talent in radio concerts and dance music. The motor car has brought his crops nearer to market because it has reduced miles to minutes. The farmer's family enjoys the social and educational advantages of the city. His car is as indispensable as his telephone.

"Until recently, however, there has been one serious handicap for the farmer, and particularly the farmer's wife—lack of electric power and electric light. General Motors, through its subsidiary, the Delco-Light company, of Dayton, Ohio, has been a pioneer in overcoming this handicap."

Most people have looked upon General Motors purely as an automobile producer. As a matter of fact, this corporation has extended its activities until today its various divisions contribute to almost every phase of industrial and home life. And not the least important of its contributions to progress has been the developing and marketing of Delco-Light electric power plants, which have practically revolutionized farm life, transforming dark houses into bright, cheerful homes, freeing the hand that carried the lantern, turning the cream separator, churning the butter, washing the clothes and lifting a thousand and one burdens from human shoulders, performing them in half the time.

Delco-Light products include a complete, self-contained electric plant, made in a variety of sizes. More than a quarter of a million of these plants have been installed since production started. Consisting of a small, one-cylinder engine, using gasoline or kerosene, air-cooled, it is connected directly to an electric generator which charges a storage battery, operating automatically and keeping sufficient stored-up electric energy at all times to offset the drains made upon it.

JITNEY HEARING AT SAYBROOK INTERESTS NEW LONDON RESIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 12.—It is expected that there will be an animated hearing at Old Saybrook on the 14th inst. Thursday over the petition of the New Haven and Shore Line company to establish a jitney route between New London and New Haven. There is a bus route now between towns west of this city and New London, and a considerable sum of money is invested in the vehicles that are run over the route. The trolley line abandoned the route when it didn't pay, but now it reeks to get the privilege of running jitneys over the same course. New London will send its city manager and its director of law to the hearing that the interests of this city may be protected. The city gave the bus operator the privilege of using the streets of this city and was instrumental in enabling him to establish his business.

New Londoners were given a few pointers today on how to live and enjoy the results of longevity for a small crowd was addressed twice from the steps of the municipal building by Frank Urban, who took for his subject, "Physical Culture and Diet." The lecture will be given twice again on Wednesday.

Mrs. John C. Worcester, occupying apartment K, Hull building, Main street, who reported to the police yesterday that a one-half carat, platinum setting, diamond ring had been stolen from a bureau, has informed the authorities that the ring was not stolen, for she has recovered it. The ring instead of being placed on the bureau, was put in a vase. Mrs. Worcester could not remember where she had placed the ring but in her search the ring was found.

Louis Ramistella, public service operator, was today ordered to appear in the police court by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, Groton state police, and answer a charge of reckless driving. Ramistella, it is alleged, was operating his automobile on the Thames river highway bridge a week ago and he drove the car at a rate of speed estimated at close to 40 miles an hour. In the alleged reckless drive of the machine, it is claimed, that the car climbed to that section of the bridge used by pedestrians. A search for Ramistella was made immediately following the alleged infraction of the automobile law, but he was not located until this forenoon, when he was found at the public stand at the Union station.

William J. Starwesky, 11 Meridian street, Groton, is another public service operator, who will be in court tomorrow charged with violation of the automobile law. Today State Police Officer Giles Watson ordered Starwesky to present himself for trial on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having a license. Starwesky was the driver of the five-ton truck, owned by Nathaniel Avery, Groton, which struck and almost instantly killed Jack Borgen, United States Coast Guard sailor, on the Thames river highway bridge a week ago.

No trace of the body of James Nunes, 56 Denison avenue, who was drowned off Black Point yesterday forenoon when the boat he and his brother, Manuel occupied while fishing, has been found, and it is probable that if the body is recovered it will be found a considerable distance from the location of the accident. Because of the large search by United States Coast Guard craft being in the vicinity of Fishers Island, Block Island and Long Island sound in quest of rum runners, the treasury department has been requested to ask the commanders of the various government craft to be on the lookout for the body.

Michael Solomon, of Montauk avenue, former well known tailor, who has long been affected with throat trouble that has seriously impaired his health, is now under treatment at a New York hospital, where it is not known whether the patient will recover. Mr. Solomon's son, Harry Solomon, of Norwich, was recently operated upon at the same institution and returned to Norwich a few days ago.

Miss Rose Rieger, of Waterford, is in Washington, D. C., having been called there because of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. W. J. Perkins.

Attorney and Mrs. Morris Lubchansky, Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Dreyfus and Mr. and Mrs. John Ross have returned to their homes here, having attended the annual convention of the grand lodge of B'nai Brith at Albany. The trip was made by automobile.

Miss Ruth W. Ford, student at Connecticut College for Women, has returned to her home at Windsor Heights because of the death Sunday of her mother, Mrs. Alice Ford, wife of George R. Ford.

Now it is assured that the British warship Wisteria is to be in New London harbor on the 4th of July next. Any celebration this city may arrange could be participated in by the crews of the coast guard vessels here, the submarine base garrison and undersea boat crew and the crew of the British ship. But it isn't known that New London will have any celebration of the nation's birthday. No appropriation for that purpose is available, it is understood, and money is necessary to provide a celebration that is worthy of the name.

There seems to be some bad feeling between Councilor Streeter and Director of Law Frank L. McGuire, for the former has disagreed with the city's law officer on numerous occasions. The councilor seems reluctant to accept opinions of the law officer, as has been stated by Mr. Streeter on several occasions.

Katharine Marquardt, of Groton, has sold to Silas Maxson, Jr., a building lot on Henry street.

Leonard C. Shefflott has sold to Lefayette G. Rudd a parcel of land on Wightman street.

The funeral of Denison C. Bailey, formerly of Potter street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 76 Broad street, Groton. The services were conducted by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Raymond Chapin, of Niantic, and Master John W. Marts, Jr., 90 Thames street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

An automobile owned by the Southern New England Telephone company and a truck owned by John Rose, of Huntington street, and operated by Theodore Goodrich, East Lyme, were in collision this morning on Howard street. Both vehicles were damaged.

Automobile owners are again beginning to realize that the mischievous youth is indulging in malicious pranks. This forenoon Peter Doukas, 5 Lincoln avenue, informed the police that while his machine was parked in front of his place of employment, Golden street, yesterday, the body of the car was disfigured, being scratched with a sharp implement. The practice frequently occurs where cars are parked and when the cars appear with a new coat of varnish.

A whist was held this evening by the Diocesan Bureau of the Catholic church in the quarters of the bureau in Jay street. The plan was for the playing of twenty hands. The attendance was large.

It is reported that the short term of the superior court this month—four days—saved the state several thousand dollars in that there was but one trial, and that witnesses were not needed. The saving was in fees and in the money that would otherwise have been paid to witnesses and officers. State's Attorney A. M. Brown had the cases so well in hand that he was able to dispose of them in the shortest possible time.

Floyd Mitchell, about 38, colored, and proprietor of an Atlantic street pool room and club room, a place resorted to by a majority of the local colored sporting fraternity, will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of Mrs. Ella Carey, mother of Mrs. Edith Reed, Mitchell's boarding house mistress. Mitchell is being held in bail of $50 for his appearance in court. About 5:30 o'clock Mitchell went to his boarding place, 35 Truman street and became involved in an argument with Mrs. Reed. The argument became stronger, when Mrs. Carey entered into the "debate" and took sides with her daughter. Finally Mitchell became enraged and he started to "clean up." He first gave his attention to some of the furniture by smashing it and continued by wrecking one of the doors. As a climax, Mitchell beat up Mrs. Reed, who is but about five feet in height and weighs but about 120 pounds, while Mitchell is over six feet and weighs fully 165. While Mitchell was getting ready to leave the house, Mrs. Carey communicated by telephone with the police and requested the arrest of Mitchell. Mitchell hearing the conversation of Mrs. Carey beat a hasty retreat. Mitchell later decided to give himself up and went to the police station and surendered.

Desk Sergeant Frank Howard resumed his duties at the police station tonight after having been confined to his home, Walker street several days as the result of blood-poisoning of the hand. Motorcycle Officed Augustus Ray performed Sergeant Howard's duties during the absence of the latter.

William H. Wordell, of Ocean Beach, reported to the police late this afternoon that a suspicious acting man had visited the restaurant a short time before. Mr. Wordell stated that about 3:30 o'clock a man, about 35 or 40, five feet, five or six inches in height, stout, and having a light brown overcoat and brown cap, entered the restaurant, which is being made ready for opening. The caller requested employment as attendant at the cigar and cigarette booth this summer, but when informed by Mr. Wordell that the latter had already hired his help, the caller, inquired the way to the trolley station that he might board a car and go to the central part of the city. Mr. Wordell watched the man as he left from the restaurant, and instead of going to the trolley station, he went to a nearby avenue where he entered a waiting automobile, in which there were two other men and a woman and drove away.

EAST LYME FRANCHISE IS REPORTED SOLD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 13—It is understood here that Thomas L. Haynes and his wife have disposed of the franchise of the East Lyme Transportation company to the New Haven and Shore Line company, and that the papers will pass during the coming week. Mrs. Haynes has been the active head of the concern. Mr. Haynes has been a representative in the legislature and operated a motion picture theatre on a small scale at Lyme. The understanding here is that if the new owners of the franchise for the East Lyme company secure a farther franchise from the public utilities commision on Thursday next that the company will operate jitneys between New Haven and New London.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Old Mr. Toad Tries His Music Bag

The song that lives is from the heart;
It seldom is a thing of art.
—Old Mother Nature.

Old Mr. Toad was very tired when at last he reached the Smiling Pool. For such a slow traveler it was a long journey down there, a slow and a dangerous journey. So he was very, very weary as he reached the shore and then waded out until only his head was above water.

Right away his weariness left him. That cool water seemed to wash it all away just as it did the dust. Old Mr. Toad sighed happily. From about him rose migh, sweet voices, the voices of the Peepers, his small cousins, who should really be called Hylas. One of them was clinging to a bit of stick in front of Old Mr. Toad and he could see the little white bubble of a music bag in the little fellow's throat gleam in the moonlight as he sang.

Old Mr. Toad watched for a while, resting and enjoying the concert. Then he began to think about singing himself. "I wonder how that music bag of mine is?" said he to himself, there being no one else to talk to just then. "It is nearly a year since I last used it. In fact, I had almost forgotten that I possessed such a thing. My, my, that chorus certainly does need my voice. I do hope that music bag will work as it used to. There was no finer music in the Smiling Pool last year, if I do say so."

He drew in the soft night air through his nose down into his closed mouth and then forced it through two little slits in the floor of his mouth. At once that little music bag in his throat began to swell. It swelled out and out. Then Mr. Toad tried a tremulous note. It was rather weak, but it was clear and sweet. He sighed with pure happiness. He waited a few minutes and tried again. The music bag in his throat swelled larger and larger than before, and this time the sweet, clear note was stronger.

"Well, well, Cousin, so you have arrived at last," said a voice just back of him. He turned to see Stickyties the Tree Toad, who isn't a Toad at all, but a frog. "We had begun to think that you were not coming. We need your voice. The Smiling Pool chorus wouldn't be complete without it," continued Stickytoes. "Sing again, Cousin."

Old Mr. Toad was quite willing to oblige. His music bag was swelled larger than before and the music was louder, but none the less sweet.

Old Mr. Toad chuckled happily. "My music bag is as good as ever," said he. "It is just as good as ever. I wonder if Mrs. Toad has arrived yet, and if she is within hearing of my voice. I hope so. I don't care much, not so very much, what other people think of my voice if Mrs. Toad still likes it. I wonder where she spent the winter. I retired for the winter rather unexpectedly myself and didn't think of her at the time. It was most heedless of me. It was so. But then she probably didn't think of me, so I guess that evens things up. She always has said that I have the finest voice in the Smiling Pool. I often have said that Mrs. Toad has excellent taste, and I repeat it. Dear me, I wonder where she is."

BLODGETT CHALLENGES VOTE OF BRIDGEPORT MAN

The right of Representative George N. Finkelstone of Bridgeport to vote on the ripper bill is challenged by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett in a letter to Representative John F. Lynch, house chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs, which reported favorably on the bill last Thursday. The letter, made public Monday, declares that Representative Finkelstone, as lawyer for several persons whose taxes were abated, is directly interested in decision on the bill and, under the rules of the house, may not discuss or vote on the question.

The letter quotes house rule No. 16, which provides that "no member who is interested in the decision of any question in such a manner that he cannot vote may stay in the house when such a question is discussed or decided." The tax commissioner declares that Representative Finkelstone is interested financially in the proposal. "If the ripper bill is passed," he says, "the clients of his farm will have to pay to the city the taxes with respect to which the house member has himself procured abatements, for the action taken by the common council (of Bridgeport) in each of the cases named was unlawful."

Action on the bill is scheduled at noon today in the house, when it will become the order of the day, and Representative Lynch is expected to lead the debate for the bill while Representative Finkelstone heads the opposition.

The letter cites several instances in which it alleges Mr. Finkelstone of his law firm was instrumental in securing tax abatements. It further declares that relatives of Mr. Finkelstone "were relieved of paying taxes."

Commissioner Blodgett also declares in the letter that the present assistant city attorney, Henry Greenstein, owes considerable amounts to the city of Bridgeport in back taxes. He says that the position pays a salary of $5,000 a year. The present city administration is criticized by the tax commissioner who says that it is not "free of wrongdoing" in connection with "the tax muddle."

MAY GIVES PROMISE OF BETTER RAINFALL

There was a rainfall of .73 of an inch over Monday night and early Tuesday morning, according to the measurements made by the water department, which gives 1.48 inches so far for the month. This is promising as the month is not half over yet and a good 2 inch rainfall would be all that is needed to fill the Norwich reservoirs to the desired point. As it is the total of 1.48 inches is the best that has been shown for the first half of any month for some time past.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, May 13—(A. P.)—Profit-taking sales and bear selling, inspired by the marking up of the call money rate to four per cent and the weakened technical condition arising out of the recent prolonged advance in many issues, impeded the upward movement of prices in the stock market, but not until after nearly two score issues had attained new peak prices for the year. The day's sales again ran well above one and one half million shares.

Resumption of bullish demonstrations in the motor issues resulted in Willys-Overland preferred, Mack Trucks and Nash being lifted to new 1925 high records. Attempts to bid up the other issues in that group were met with heavy offerings, Pierce Arrow common, preferred and prior preferred, Packard and Jordan falling back one to two points.

Rubber shares attracted a larger following in reflection of the growing belief that an early increase in tire prices is inevitable if the recent advance in crude rubber is maintained, and that the principal manufacturing companies will materially profit thereby through the appreciation in their heavy inventories of raw product. United States Rubber common and first preferred, Fisk Rubber common and first preferred, Ajax and the three Kelly-Springfield isues all sold at the year's best prices.

Revival of speculative interest in the oil shares was based on reports that Smackover crude production was nearing its peak and that gasoline consumption was continuing at an unprecedented rate. Standard oils of New Jersey and California, Pacific, Marland, Houston, Phillips and Atlantic Refining showed net gains of 1 to 2 points.

American Can was bid up over four points to a record high for all time at 189 1-2, slipping back 1 1-2 points just before the close, but most of the other standard industrials lost ground. United States Steel closed 1-8 lower at 115 3-8 after fluctuating within a range of only three quarters of a point. Baldwin recorded a similar loss at 111 1-2 after having sold above 113.

Shares of specialties with bright earnings prospects were taken at advancing prices, Kelsey Wheel, consolidated Cigar, Douglas Pectin, advance Rumely preferred, Case Threshing Machine, Brown Shoe, Coca Cola, American Water Works, Virginia Railway and power, United States Realty and United Drug all broke through to new maximum prices.

Speculative interest in the railroad group was divided between the heavy accumulation of the St. Paul issues, each of which advanced more than a point, and the further rise in Frisco common to $1 1-2, the highest price since the reorganization of the road in 1916. Wall street was inclined to attribute the revival of activity in the St. Pauls to the expectations that the Interstate Commerce Commission would grant the Northwestern carriers an increase in freight rates.

Good buying also was noted in Union Pacific, Ann Arbor preferred, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Texas and Pacific.

Belated short covering in American Sumatra Tobacco prefered brought about a 12 point jump in that stock to 64.

Call money opened at 3 1-2 per cent. but advanced to 4 in the early afternoon. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

European exchange rates held firm despite reports of monarchistic demonstrations in connection with the arrival of President Hindenburg in Berlin. Brazilian milreis dropped over a cent in sympathy with another sharp decline in coffee prices.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 12—(A. P.)—Renewed strength and activity marked the bond trading, which more than recovered the loss sustained in yesterday's wave of profit taking. Rail liens resumed their upward movement with considerable vigor, and the stdength of all classes of investment securities lent confidence to seculative operations.

Although higher call money rates, apparently based on prospective withdrawals of funds from New York, impeded the advance in certain stock issues, the general money situation was not altered sufficiently to affect bond dealings. U. S. government bonds, which are most sensitive to changing money conditions, displayed a firm tone, with the treasury 4S reaching a new high level for the year.

The only new feature of interest in the railroad group was an upturn in the St. Paul issues, which advanced one to two points on the belief that the engineers' report, now in the hands of the receivers and banking interests, would contain workable plans for reorganization. Other Northwestern carrier liens were strengthened by reports that their recent troubles might influence the interestate commerce commission to grant an increase in freight rates. Erie, "Katy" Seaboard, Chicago and Terre Haute and Southern Railway issues made good progress in recovering from yesterday's reaction.

Rising rubber prices brought about a natural improvement in the bonds of these companies, which kept pace with an advance in the tire stocks. U. S. rubber 5S sold at a new peak price for the year.

New financing was well absorbed, the $15,000,000 Florida east coast offering being rapidly oversubscribed.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 12—(A. P.)—Trading in the curb market was on a broad scale with the main trend upward despite the marked increase in realizing and bear selling.

Bullish demonstrations in the public utility issues were stimulated by the announcement that the merger of the Niagara frontier power interests had been completed. Southeastern Power was bid up over 15 points to 91 7-8 and then dropped back to 87 while net gains of 3 1-2 to 5 points were recorded by Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, United Gas & Electric, Lehigh Power securities and National Power and Light. American Light & Traction, Buffalo General Electric and Carolina Power lost ground.

Chief interest in the industrial group centered in the motors and a few ordinarily inactive specialties. Ford Motors of Canada soared 18 points to 498 and Chrysler moved up 1 5-8 to 85 5-8. Bucyrus closed 6 points higher at 146 and Cotsy, Inc., moved up two to 42. Victor Talking Machine closed 4 points lower at 8 after selling as high as 92. Glen Alden Coal reacted 3 1-2 points in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of directors to make any announcement regarding merger or dividend plans. Radios displayed a firm tone, De Forest standing out with a gain of two points.

Trading in the oil shares was relatively quiet although Prairie Oil and Gas and humble each moved up over a point on buying inspired by reports of high current earnings.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 12—Grain went decidedly higher in price. Activity of exporters stimulated the wheat market. Offerings of corn were unusually scant. Wheat an dcorn both finished strong, wheat 3 1-4 cents to 3 cents net higher, May 162 1-2 to 162 3-4 and July 1.50 1-2 to 1.51, with corn 1 cent to 3 3-4 cents up, oats showing 5-8 cent to 1 1-4 cents gain, and provisions at 2 cents to 22 cents decline.

According to some estimates, fully 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and 200,000 bushels of rye was purchased for shipment to Europe. There were indications early and late that exporters were seeking to acquire ownership of Northern Spring wheat and that bids for number 1 Northern were on a workable basis. Especially near the end of the day, the wheat market had a burst of strength owing to talk current that export purchasing on a large scale was in progress. Speculators who before were aggressive sellers, tried to reserve their position, and discovered that to do so was difficult except by a hurried resort to higher prices.

Predictions were current that the visible supply of corn will shrink to under 70,000,000 bushels before the middle of June. Receipts of corn are meager, with no increase looked for soon. Oats traders took their cue from corn.

Provisions sagged owing to efforts of holders to realize profits.

FISHED IN SNOWSTORMS ON VERMONT LAKES

C. Edward Carpenter, George Fullerton and Edward A. Rich returned Monday night from a fishing trip in northern Vermont, where they spent a week at Cold Spring camp on Averill lakes. Tuesday they had on display in the windows of the Alling rubber store and Preston Bros. several specimens of the trout and salmon which they caught. The three Norwich men fished all the week in snowstorms, although the lake was clear of ice, and they had good luck, catching 20 pounds of lake trout and 60 pounds of salmon, which was the biggest catch of the season so far. The salmon ran from 8 pounds to 4 1-2.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD WINS $300,000 COAL SUIT

Friend, Frame & Stineman, Inc., failed to convince the court that the big claim against the New Haven railroad was meritorious.

After a trial lasting over four weeks and following a month of consideration, Judge Wolfe decides all the issues in favor of the road. The heavy damages claimed by the coal company consisted of lost profits, failure to fulfill its contracts for coal sold, inability to get its coal to the market before it broke and demurrage on its ships on account of alleged illegal acts of the road in preferring its own ships of coal over those of the public and the alleged failure of the railroad to operate its Belle dock unloading plant at maximum capacity, to equip Canal Dock with modern unloading machinery and to use Shop Dock to help out in the emergency due to the congestion of ships in the harbor in the winter of 1922 and 1923.

The railroad claimed that the congestion in the harbor was an abnormal condition resulting from the coal strike of the preceding summer, for which, under its duty as a common carrier, it was not required to provide that its coal unloading facilities were adequate for normal years, that it was under no obligation to make heavy investments for the enlargement of its facilities to meet such unusual conditions and that preferential handling of its own coal ships was not only justified but necessary on account of the grave shortage of its own coal supply which was reduced, at times, to less than a day's supply, with imminent danger of operations ceasing completely. The road offered a mass of evidence showing that it operated its unloading plant and railroad connections back of it not only with reasonable expedition but that its operating accomplishment was an outstanding achievement in view of the unusual corresponding depletion of power and unusually heavy winter weather, and that any losses which the plaintiff sustained were without fault on the part of the road.

Many interestnig questions of law were raised in the case. Among these was the question whether in operating the Belle Dock facilities, the railroad was acting as a wharfinger, as the plaintiff contended, and its duty determined by the common law principle of wharfage, or whether those facilities, as the defendant contended were a mere receiving plant of the railroad system in respect to which the road's obligations were determined and governed by the Interstate Commerce Act. The road contended that under the act the court had no jurisdiction of the matters in issue and that the plaintiff should have presented its claim to the Interstate Commerce Commission inasmuch as the questions involved in the handling of the railroad plant were administrative in their nature rather than legal.

Before suit the railroad declined to make any offer of compromise to the plaintiff, maintaining that under the law it could not do so without encountering the danger of discriminating in favor of this plaintiff as against other members of the public whose ships were delayed in the harbor in the same way and during the same period. Many other claims had been filed against the road for delay in the handling of ships of the public and on account of the road's preferential handling of its own ships of coal, and some of those claims were withdrawn as soon as the road explained the grave difficulties under which it was operating and the dire necessity for obtaining coal to avoid a complete cessation of railroad operations. In view of the considerate treatment at the hands of the vast majority of the public, the road felt it was not only legally, but morally bound to fight this plaintiff suit to the last ditch, if necessary, the Supreme Court of the United States.

The funeral of Sir Doveton Sturdee, hero of the battle of the Falkland Islands, who died on Thursday, was held in London. The coffin was shrouded in the British flag flown at the battle in 1914 which broke German sea power outside the Baltic and the North sea.

STORRS COLLEGE STUDENTS SWING PICKS AND SHOVELS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., May 12.—Students and faculty members alike united in common effort today at Storrs for the annual Connecticut Day to the State College, when text books are laid aside in favor of picks and shovels, and all work together for the betterment of the college campus. This year work was concentrated on the new athletic field, which was started last October and by nightfall the work was well along towards completion.

Starting promptly at 7.30 this morning, practically every male member of the student body reported on the new field and work was got under way. Approximately 340 students and 25 faculty members, armed with picks, shovels, rakes and axes set to with a will, and the rate the field took shape shows the boys at Storrs know how to put to use their "book larnin'". Nine teams of horses and two teams of oxen were furnished by the farm department of the college to help in the grading operations, and student gangs vied with each other in their efforts to set up speed records in filling the wagons.

Coach Sumner A. Dole and Professor A. W. Manchester directed the work among the student body and they were assisted by several members of the senior class. "Red" O'Neill, husky Aggie football captain, directed a squad of 80 students armed with picks and shovels.

Women students, while not participating in the manual labor of the day, contributed in no small way to the results obtained by serving liberal helpings of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee.

The annual "Old Clothes Dance," which follows Connecticut day was held in Hawley armory tonight, with a large group of students and faculty members present.

ANNUAL MEETING WITH SOCIAL OF CLASS 32

Class No. 32 of the Central Baptist church school, which is taught by Mrs. F. L. Varney, held its annual meeting and social Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. James M. Young, Rock Glen, with a large attendance.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises, which were as follows: President, Mrs. Lucius Brown; vice president, Mrs. Albert T. Utley; secretary, Miss Bessie A. Grimes; treasurer, Miss Helen B. Moore; visiting committee chairman, Miss Jennie L. Spencer.

Readings and story telling were included in the social hour at which dainty refreshments were served.

A flapper's idea of being economical is to use less material in her clothes.

SIX TEACHERS APPOINTED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Six teacher appointments for the next year in the Norwich schools were made by the town school board at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the school superintendent's office at the court house. Those appointed were Mary C. Reuven, Frances M. Fenton, Elizabeth A. Portelance, Elizabeth T. Shannon, Susie Matassa, and Elizabeth Connell, all of Norwich. They were chosen from about eighteen applicants. No assignments of grades or schools for the new appointees were made.

The board also awarded the contract for 1,200 tons of hard coal and 200 tons of soft coal to the Edward Chappell Co. The other bidders were The Shetucket Coal Co. and Max Gordon & Co. For the first time the board adopted a "star chamber" policy on the coal bids and declined to make public at what price the contract was awarded.

The board has been offered and has accepted a picture of the late N. L. Bishop, for so long principal of the Norwich schools and after whom the new school building on the East Side is been named. The offer was accompanied by a letter from the daughters of Mr. Bishop, Mrs. Ashton C. Persons of Willimantic and Miss Fannie A. Bishop, expressing their deep appreciation of honor given their father in naming the new school after him. The picture will be placed in the new school building.

An exhibition of the physical department work in the schools, to which the public is invited, will be given on Chelsea parade at 2 p. m. May 29. The annual school athletic meet will be held at the aFir grounds May 20. There will be exhibitions of manual training work in store windows in the first week in June.

The child was playing a harmonica in the kitchen of his home while the father was preparing to scrub the floor. Mr. Smith had placed a tub of scalding water on the floor and turned away for a moment to get a pail of cold water.

Bobby, blowing lustily upon the harmonica, was stepping backward to the tune of the instrument when he struck the tub and fell into the scalding water. He was rushed to the Hartford hospital but his condition grew steadily worse throughout the day.

ABOUT 50 PER CENT RAISE IN MYSTIC WATER RATES

The finding of the public utilities commission of the state of Connecticut in connection with the proposed rates asked by the Mystic Valley Water company, which supplies Stonington borough, Mystic and West Mystic, was delivered to officials of the municipalities Tuesday.

The commission allows an increase of 50 per cent on all fire hydrant services. This rate becomes effective from the first day of April, 1925. The old rate was $30 a year. The new rate will be $45 a year.

The operating revenue derived in 1923 by the company to flat rate consumers, who are almost entirely householders, amounted to about $21,000. The revenue allocated to this class of patrons under the proposed scale of rates amounts to approximately $33,600 or about 50 per cent increase.

The different annual charges for flat rate consumers will be increased as follows:

| | Present Rate | Proposed Rate |
|---|---|---|
| 1st faucet | $ 6.00 | $10.00 |
| 2nd faucet | 2.00 | 3.00 |
| Bath | 5.00 | 6.00 |
| Closet | 4.00 | 6.00 |
| Bath and closet | 7.00 | 10.00 |
| Hose cocks | 6.00 | 6.00 |
| Garage, rate for two or less machines, otherwise meter rate proposed | | 5.00 |
| Set tubs | 2.00 | 3.00 |
| Urinals | — | 5.00 |
| Cellar drainage | | 10.00 |
| Maximum service | 20.00 | 30.00 |

The revenue for the same year's operation from meter customers, largely manufacturing establishments, amounted to approximately $7,300, or about one-third of the flat rate. The petitioners stated that no increase of rates from meter customers was sought.

In both domestic and fire purposes the finding of the utilities commission allows the water company an increased rate of approximately 50 per cent.

EXPECT ACTION SOON ON SALEM MAIL REQUEST

Official inspection of the rural free delivery service in the Southern portion of the town of Salem was made recently by a representative of the post office department at the request of the residents of Salem. Several people of Salem have expressed opinions averring that there is a need for more regular mail delivery service. At the present time the northern section of Salem gets its rural free delivery from the Colchester post office, while the southern part receives delivery by way of Oakdale.

Several years ago there was a branch post office in Salem, the operation of which is now discontinued. There has been some talk among the people of Salem in reference to reviving the post office, but nothing further has been done about the matter.

A report of the mail situation in Salem was submitted to the post office department by the visiting inspector, and it is expected that action will be taken shortly.

DR. KINKEAD IS SEIZED WITH MENTAL DERANGEMENT

As he did so Dr. Kinkead remarked, "What do you think of that, Mr. Cadden?"

William H. Allen was walking along the street at the time and Dr. Kinkead made motions as if to strike him. Traffic Officer Michael Carroll, on duty at the Broadway corner and Officer Bernard Keenan went over to Dr. Kinkead who made a pass at Officer Carroll.

Dr. Kinkead was taken to police headquarters and Dr. H. J. Harper was called by First Selectman William S. Murray. Commitment papers were filled out and Dr. Kinkead was taken to the Norwich State Hospital for treatment.

FORD WOULD PURCHASE 400 SHIPPING BOARD VESSELS

If the Government Will Fix What He Considers a Fair Price —Announcement Was Made by Henry Ford Following a Conference With T. V. O'Connor, Chairman of the Shipping Board—Ford Might Recondition 10 to 30 Ships For Use by His Industries—Would Dismantle the Remainder For Junk.

Detroit, May 13—Henry Ford will purchase the 400 vessels of the United States shipping board if the government will fix what he considers a fair price, according to a story which will appear in the Detroit Free Press tomorrow morning. The announcement was made this afternoon by Mr. Ford, following a conference with T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the shipping board.

O'Connor is quoted as asking Ford to take over 290 ships in his original suggestion, the article says. However, when Ford informed him that he would only buy the ships to scrap them for junk, O'Connor suggested that he buy all 400, as it would not cost much more to construct dismantling apparatus to handle the 400 ships than it would the lesser number.

Ford agreed to this saying that he might retain from 10 to 30 of the ships for use by Ford industries. If any ships were put in operation by Ford, they would be reconditioned and equipped as oil burners, the article states.

Despite the tentative agreement, the matter of the sale of the ships to Ford will not be cleared up for several months, it is estimated. The shipping board has been wary of making agreement heretofore, as it felt if the ships were sold abroad to be scrapped, that promises might be broken and the ships might reappear under foreign flags in competition with American ships.

"The ships were built during the war when everybody was crazy," Ford was quoted as saying. "Most of the boats were thrown together in a great hurry. They were for an emergency and consequently many of them were not strongly built and some of the engines put into them were pretty bad."

We have already purchased three vessels from the shipping board," he added. "We took these three boats for pioneering and we know their limitations. Two of the boats are of about 3,000 tons. The third, the East Indian, is slightly larger and is now being put into shape for service to Denmark, which we hope will begin about August 1."

Ford indirectly refuted a statement which O'Connor is alleged to have made to newspapermen in Buffalo, that Ford would become the greatest shipowner in the world's history, by making the remark that he did not intend to use more than a few of the ships, scrapping the remainder.

Ford estimated the cost of constructing apparatus to dismantle the ships would amount to about $400,000.

CONNECTICUT WAREHOUSES ARE TEEMING WITH RUM

Bridgeport, May 13—Connecticut warehouses of the federal government are suffocated with rum stores seized on the seas by coast guard mosquito fleets with eight or nine loaded rum boats tied up in Connecticut ports awaiting discharge of their contraband cargo, Wallace A. Smith, assistant collector of port for the state, declared in addressing a luncheon of the Lions club today. He stated that the coast guard is "inactive" confining its work now to a constant patrol skirting the rum fleet, until warehouse conditions improve.

United States marshals are destroying choice liquors at New Haven in order to make room for new contraband stores. They will come to Bridgeport to perform the same task in the basement of the federal building here later in the week. Bridgeport's storage space is completely filled and it is extremely difficult to obtain new storage space where federal officials can depend on the seized stocks being secure against plundering, Smith said.

"Hospitals refuse to take Scotch whiskey and want only rye, while a hospital will use only a case of champagne in a year," Smith said explaining that the great stores seized cannot be used in legal ways because of a lack of any legal consumer. The only thing which can be done under the law, then is to destroy the liquor, he said.

PROBLEMS INVOLVED IN THE CONTROL OF ARMS

Geneva, May 13—The paradoxical problem of when is a government not a government bothered the jurists for hours today at the international conference for control of the arms traffic, but no formula was found. This question has special importance for the United States in defining political relations with central and south American countries, and equal importance to those nations themselves.

Today's developments demonstrated that the United States will find difficulty in adhering to the draft convention clause requiring an exporting manufacturing country first to recognize the government of the importing country before it can authorize shipments of arms there. The American member of the sub-committee of jurists informed his colleagues that the United States stood for the formation of governments by legal and constitutional means, and admitted that the necessity of formal recognition before the dispatch of armaments made things embarrassing. The American explained it was conceivable that an exporting country might wish to support a government which had come into existence before the formalities of recognition had been accomplished.

PRINCE OF WALES VISITED SNAKE FARM

Port Elizabeth, Union of South Africa, May 13.—(A. P.)—The Prince of Wales fresh from his visit to the horse breeding farms at Colesburg, and the "feather country" where he was bedecked with ostrich feathers, came upon a different kind of farm today, where the snake holds sway. He showed great interest in the reptiles, but no great pleasure.

The reptiles, only one type of which was not dangerous, occupy an enclosed area, excavated to a depth of about three feet and surrounded by a stream and wall. The prince watched two black keepers handling, seemingly with much enjoyment, two fourteen foot pythons, which wound themselves around the men harmlessly. But when his highness was invited to a closer inspection of the great serpents, he took a step backward and exclaimed: "No! they horrify me."

The prince, when he departed, said smilingly that he preferred the companionship of the horse, or even the ostrich."

BRYAN SAYS CHURCH IS CURE FOR CRIME

West Chester, Pa., May 13.—America's greatest danger is from its crimes and criminals, William Jennings Bryan said here today. All other questions, national or international, are mere trifles compared to crime, he declared.

"The government has absolutely failed to suppress crime and this the church alone can do," said Mr. Bryan. "But it can do it only if it pins its faith on the creed of the Bible."

NEW BELGIAN CABINET HAS BEEN FORMED

Brussels, May 13.—(A. P.)—After a ministerial crisis which lasted 38 days M. Van De Vyvere today succeeded in forming a new cabinet, from members of the Catholic party. Since the resignation of Premier Theunis on April 5 Belgium has been without a cabinet.

M. Van De Vyvere, the premier, also will be the head of the ministry of finance. The other members of the ministry are:

Minister of justice—Leon Theodor.
Minister of the interior—M. Poullet.
Minister of agriculture—M. Ruzette.
Minister of defense—General Hollebaut.

Minister of the colonies—M. Carton M. Ruzette will act as foreign minister until an incumbent for the post can be found. Should the new cabinet fail, King Albert is reported to have decided to dissolve parliament and hold new elections. In political circles the belief is expressed that the Van De Vyvere cabinet's life will be short, some quarters believing it will be overthrown the first day of its appearance before parliament.

GAVE REPORT OF SPREAD OF LUTHERAN CHURCH

Meriden, May 13—At the third day's session here of the Atlantic district of the Missouri Lutheran synod, the Rev. Dr. Piofenbauer, of Chicago, president of the general synod, gave a report of the spread of the Lutheran church throughout the world.

He said the 350,000 people who emigrated from western provinces Canada during the World war are now replaced from Lutheran countries. The denomination has reached out into Mexico and South America, and in Germany the Lutheran church has been entirely separated from the state church. He also reported that the $3,000,000 building fund has been oversubscribed, and that already more than $2,400,000 has been paid in.

The Rev. John Volk, of Boston, in his paper on "the Sacredotal prayer of Christ," took occasion to censure the modernists. He said: "Fosdick, Brown and company are traitors to the cause of the church of Christ, and spiritual brothers of Judas."

PRESIDENT HINDENBURG BUSY WITH VISITORS

Berlin, May 13.—(A. P.)—President Von Hindenburg's first full official day as head of the German republic was occupied chiefly in receiving inaugural visits of various heads of departments, reichstag state and municipal officials and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank. Altogether seven deputations visited the executive mansion during the day and the new president countered each official greeting with a pithy speech of homely advice and patriotic sentiments.

The board of reichstag presidents were reminded of the urgent necessity of conserving the national dignity through well-behaved parliament proceedings.

Dr. Schacht tendered congratulations on behalf of the reichsbank and said that institution will henceforth also be keyed to serving the fatherland by landing the greatest possible support to financial endeavors.

The president replied: "I realize you are also restricted in many instances by obligations we have been compelled to assume as a result of the war. May you nevertheless succeed again in making the reichsbank the firm foundation of our finances and economics."

The new president's various inaugural utterances continue to be the subject of lively editorial discussions in both friendly and opposition news papers. The press concurs in admitting the excellent first impressions created by Von Hindenburg's speeches is only strengthened by a second perusal.

Del Zeit says that the ceremonies of the last two days denote a triumph in Germany for non-partisanship. This paper represents the views of Foreign Minister Stresemann and the people's party.

The new president will receive the greeting of the diplomatic corps at noon Thursday. With the exception of Japan none of the major powers has so far transmitted formal greetings to him. It is assumed, however, that these greetings will be communicated to Von Hindenburg tomorrow by the heads of diplomatic missions here.

FRENCH AND RIFFIANS ARE READY FOR BATTLE

Paris, May 13—Both French and Riffians are almost ready for a big clash in Morocco, according to latest news from the French zone which has been invaded by tribesmen from Spanish Morocco under the leadership of Abd-el-Krim.

Abd-el-Krim has continued to concentrate his forces under the shelter of the Spanish line which the French have thus far refrained from attacking for diplomatic reasons. Reports of French negotiations with Spain for a joint Franco-Spanish action against the Riffians is said in official circles here to be premature.

Marshal Lyautey, head of the French forces in Morocco, is getting his men in position to deal unassisted with the invaders and his plan will be tried before any effort is made to secure Spanish cooperation.

It is thought in French military circles that Abd-el-Krim will not be able to hold his forces idle in the Spanish zone without losing control of them.

The Riffians have been expending a considerable amount of ammunition on the French posts which have been surrounded since the beginning of the Riffian invasion. This use of ammunition is a confirmation, according to French military opinion, of the impression that Abd-el-Krim is securing supplies freely through the Spanish zone. It has been discovered that the Riffian leader also is utilizing every means of propaganda at his disposal. Inspired dispatches originated from the evacuated portion of the Spanish zone and susceptible of creating emotion among the Mussulmen of Algeria and other countries have led the French censor to become suspicious of telegrams.

It is said that straight news dispatches giving actual facts will not be interfered with.

Universal System To Indentify Criminals

Debated at International Police Conference in New York Yesterday.

New York, May 13—(A. P.)—The International Police conference took under consideration a proposal to call together the finger-print experts of the world to formulate an international criminal identification system.

The delegates agreed on the value of a universal system of identification, and recommended a meeting of experts to evolve such a plan.

"Great investments have been made," said Police Commissioner Enright, president of the conference, "by different countries in building up their own systems. It will require time before these can be abandoned so as to put the new system in force."

He said that each nation could maintain records for a period of ten years under both its old and the newly-devised method of codification, and that all nations could declare the new one in force at the same time.

The conference witnessed a telephotographic demonstration in which finger-prints transmitted to Chicago by telegraph were identified in a telephone conversaiton made audible to all delegates present with amplifiers.

A discussion of traffic problems occupied the afternoon session of the conference. It was led by Deputy Chief Inspector William A. Coleman, who described New York police regulations for the handling of traffic.

H. W. Slauson of the editorial staff of the Scientific American, advocated in a speech that speed laws must be abolished as the accepted means of regulating motorists, and that the distance in which a moving vehicle can stop be substitued as a gauge of safety.

"Speed means little," he said, "because of different conditions prevailing in its application as a standard of safety. It is the ability of a moving vehicle to stop which is important."

He suggested that instead of enforcing speed limits for various zones in cities, police should require motorists to be able to stop their cars within a specified distance.

FRANCE TO MAKE PROPOSAL FOR DEBT REFUNDING

Washington, May 13—Official word from Paris that concrete proposals as a basis for a French debt refunding settlement would be forthcoming this month, was eagerly awaited by Washington officials tonight after Associated Press despatches had given them their first knowledge that the Paris cabinet had decided upon such a step.

In the absence of some authoritative indication as to what method of settlement the French government would advance, officials had nothing to say except to indicate their pleasure that the differences with relation to the French debt settlement at last appeared to be vanishing. They characterized the situation as the most important development in many months in regard to the debt problem, and gave every evidence of pleasure that French government had at last found itself in a position to make a definite move.

There appears to be no doubt here that a satisfactory understanding on terms of settlement will be arrived at, once a definite proposal has been made and can be considered by the American debt refunding commission headed by Secretary Mellon and whatever agency the Paris government appoints to conduct the negotiations for France.

TESTIMONY FOR STATE AT MACRI MURDER TRIAL

New Haven, May 13—Challenging the claim of Olympia Macri that she killed John Bagnano in self-defense on last February 26, the state placed on the witness stand this afternoon a police officer who accompanied the body of the man for whom the girl defendant is on trial to the hospital after the shooting.

The witness, Patrolman John Reising said that he was in the taxicab in which Bagano's two brother rushed the body to the hospital and that he saw nothing of a gun alleged to have been removed from the slain man's pocket. Testifying shortly before Judge Christopher L. Avery adjourned court for the day, Officer Reising said he helped hold the body during the trip. Previous question of Joseph Koletsky, defense attorney, had indicated that he would endeavor to show that John Bagnano had a gun on his person, when Miss Macri shot him to death and that the gun had been removed while the body was en route to the hospital.

In reply to questions put by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling, the witness said that he had been a member of the New Haven police force for fourteen months. He told of getting into the taxicab with the men who rushed John Bagnano's body to the hospital after he was shot down in front of a local theatre. Officer Reising said that he did not know who the men were and testified that during the hasty trip neither of them was left alone with the body. Before Defense Attorney Koletsky had completed the cross examination, Judge Avery adjourned court for the day.

Miss Macri seemed very tired at the end of the session. During the afternoon a sister and the parents of the man she killed took the stand to testify for the state.

At one stage Mrs. Maria Bagnano, mother of the slain man, pointed toward the girl as the court interpreter translated her answer to State's Attorney Alling's question. Her eyes met those of Miss Macri who looked steadily back at her. The slain man's father, Pasquale Bagnano was on the stand but a few minutes as was Mrs. Theresa Rugger, a sister of John Bagnano. The only other witness called during the afternoon was Mrs. Angelina Arnone. All of these witnesses testified to the quarrel between John Bagnano and Miss Macri which occurred on a bridge near the Bagnano home a few weeks before the shooting.

They all testified that the slain man did not carry a revolver as far as they knew. Mrs. Ruggiero told of taking Miss Macri to the Bagnano home after the quarrel on the bridge. She said that she did not hear the conversation between Mrs. Carolina Bagnano and Miss Macri in which the former is said to have offered to care for Miss Macri's baby, Lucy.

"APOSTLE OF DOOM" IS STUDYING ASTRONOMY

Baldwin, N. Y., May 13.—Living with his wife and four children in a six room bungalow and earning good pay as a painter and paper hanger, Robert Reidt, "Apostle of Doom," formerly of East Patchogue, N. Y., who confidently awaited the end of the world at midnight, February 6, disclosed today that he is taking a correspondence course in astronomy to avoid a second miscalculation.

Despite the fact that his belief in the accuracy of the predictions of the world's end by Mrs. Margaret W. Rowen last February led him to dispose of his worldly goods and necessitated his making another start when the heralded second coming of Christ failed to materialize, Reidt reaffirmed his belief in Mrs. Rowen's teachings.

GASOLINE TANK ON COAST GUARD BOAT EXPLODED

Seaman Joseph H. McGrean Was Blown Overboard and Drowned in Boston Harbor—Another Seaman Was Badly Burned About the Face and Hands—Two Other Men Escaped Injury by Leaping Into the Water—Both Were Showered by Blazing Oil.

Boston, May 13—Joseph H. McGrean, a seaman on the coast guard patrol boat 2337, was drowned early tonight, W. E. Mills, another seaman, was badly burned, about the face and hands, and two more men escaped injury by leaping into the water when the after-gasoline tank of the boat blew up and showered them with burning gasoline.

The accident occurred as the C. G. 2337 passed between Governor's and Castle Islands on her way to the fish piers to refuel. McGrean was blown overboard and sank.

Engineer Edward Lurkland, Chief Petty Officer Walter Devine and Mills were showered with the blazing fuel. Clothes afire, they leaped overboard. Lurkland and Devine helped Mills back to the boat and then extinguished the flames started by the explosion.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ADVERTISING COMMISSION

Houston, Tex., May 13—Big figures were a feature today of a report to the national advertising commission, for submittal to the advertising convention, on the part of the associated business papers, and affiliated bodies of the associated advertising clubs. One of the outstanding accomplishments of the A. B. P. was in cooperation with the war department in selling surplus war materials.

About $1,300,000,000 have been returned to the government from five years of selling, the report said, a recovery of 36.4 per cent. based on original cost. Advertising space to the total of about $400,000 a year has been used.

The directory and reference media department reported three study texts prepared to teach future advertisers the principles of reference media advertising and how they work in with other advertising forces. One book is in use in the colleges of business administration and secretarial science Boston university, another is used by the Seatle public schools, and a third has been adopted by the Detroit board of education for high school use.

The Poster advertising association reported the establishment at the University of Wisconsin of the Barney Ink fellowship, a research plan for the study of outdoor advertising.

ADVANCE IN PRICES OF GASOLINE ANNOUNCED

New York, May 13—A general advance in gasoline prices along the Atlantic seaboard was announced by most of the principal refining companies. This increase, taking place in the face of private reports of another large gain in the average daily gross crude oil production last week, was generally construed in Wall street as an indication that the surplus supply of stocks was being heavily drawn upon as a result of the recent record-breaking consumption.

The Standard Oil company of New Jersey originated the increase by raising domestic prices one cent a gallon throughout its territory, and gasoline for export 1-2 cent a gallon. This advance was met by its principal competitors and followed by a similar advance by the Standard Oil Co., of New York, in New York state and New England, except in New York city, Stamford, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., where prices were adjusted to those current before the recent two-cent cut.

The Atlantic Refining Co., raised prices in New England to meet the advance of the Standard Oil Co., of New York, but announced that prices in Pennsylvania would be unchanged. The Standard Oil Co., of Louisiana also advanced prices in North and South Carilina, Louisiana and Arkansas.

BARTHELMESS AND WIFE HAVE AGREED TO SEPARATE

New York, May 13—Forced apart by their professional career and "for no other reason," Richard Barthelmess, moving picture actor, and Mary Hay, his stage star wife, have agreed to execute a civil separation agreement, it was announced today by Arthur Garfield Hays, associated with Dudley Field Malone, attorney for Mrs. Barthelmess. No divorce action is contemplated by either, the attorney said.

Miss Hay will leave for Europe within two weeks to fill professional engagements of indefinite length.

"Because of Mrs. Barthelmess' desire to pursue her professional career," Mr. Hays said, "and fulfill her professional contracts in Europe and in this country, which obligate her to live away from New York where Mr. Barthelmess is obliged to remain because of his professional engagements and for no other reasons, they have agreed to execute a civil separation agreement permitting each to live separate and apart as if they were single."

Their child, Mary Hay Barthelmess, will remain with her father while Miss Hay is in Europe, and upon her mother's return the child will be with her six months of the year, it was announced.

CODIFICATION OF SCHOOL LAWS OF STATE INCOMPLETE

Hartford, May 13.—The commission named by the 1923 legislature to codify the school laws of the state has not yet completed its work and will ask the present session to continue it to report in 1927. Professor Charles M. Bakewell said today. The commission has made good progress in revising most of the school laws, he said, but has not yet been able to work out a satisfactory arrangement on state aid. When in its final form state aid law will take cognizance of the ability of the town to pay and the amount being spent on education, but will be elastic enough so that readjustments can be easily made for special conditions and changing circumstances. Professor Bakewell said that the school laws could be condensed very much were it not for the fact that half a dozen towns in the state still retain the district system.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN HAVE HAD TURBULENT SESSION

Washington, May 13—With no let up in the internal discord that has marked its ten days of session, the quinkuennial convention of the International Council of Women formally closed its much less turbulent external affair tonight with a farewell banquet, addressed by Lady Aberdeen and others from foreign lands.

Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women of the United States, which has been hostess to the convention, issued a statement late in the day answering its critics, declaring "these ultra-patriots are proving themselves alien to the constitution which they so effusively swear allegiance," and about the same time, Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, made public a statement charging that the American delegates had passively permitted the foreign women to run the convention which she termed a "propaganda party."

Declining to place responsibility for the attacks against the convention upon any other group, Mrs. Moore asserted that the meetings and programs of the quinquennial were sufficient answer to the allegation of pacifism and internationalism.

The convention's critics, Mrs. Moore declared in her statement, were "violating the spirit of one of the fundamental rights guaranteed in our constitution—that of free speech."

TWO MOTHERS OF "BABY FARM" VICTIMS COLLAPSED

New York, May 13—(A. P.)—Two mothers collapsed at Bellevue hospital this afternoon after identifying as their children two infants' bodies which had been exhumed in the investigation of the baby home conducted by Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen-Volk in East 86th street.

Records of the bureau of vital statistics made public showed that 30 infants have died in the East 86th street institution since early in 1923. Fourteen other children are shown to have died in another baby home conducted by Mrs. Geisen-Volk in upper Park avenue between 1918 and 1922.

Immediately after the identifications Dr. Otto H. Schultz of the district attorney's office began an autopsy to determine whether there is evidence upon which homicide charges against Mrs. Geisen-Volk may be based.

Mrs. William Winter was called to identify the body of her four-month-old son, William, and Mrs. Margaret Toohey that of her daughter Agnes, 18 months old. The latter child died after it had been held by the heels and dashed against a wall.

Mrs. Geisen-Volk, former German army officer, is held in $36,000 bail on charges of substituting another baby for Steven, 7-month-old son of William Angerer and of accepting more children than her license permitted.

DECISION ON LEGACIES IN E. C. CONVERSE WILL

Bridgeport, May 13—Legacies totalling a total of $70,000 bequethed to two New York City bankers clubs and two Masonic organizations in Pennsylvania by Edmund C. Nickerson in a memorandum of decision filed in superior court this afternoon.

The organizations entitled to the legacies are: Bankers club, New York, $10,000: Liberty club, New York, $10,000: Aliaquippa lodge, F. and A. M., McKeesport, Pa., $25,000, and Tancred commandery, K. T. F. and A. M., Pittsburgh, Pa.

GRAND JURY EXONERATES MRS. JULIE SHEPHERD

Chicago, May 13—The county grand jury today absolved Mrs. uJlie Shepherd, co-guardian and foster-mother of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan, of implication in his death and in the death of his mother, Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, by voting a "no bill" in each instance.

The case of Mrs. Shepherd's husband, William Darling Shepherd, already under indictment for the murder of young McClintock, was left open with respect to the death of Mrs. McClintock, the grand jury refraining from taking any action after hearing the evidence up to date. Callahan, of Philadelphia, Miss Mary Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa., and State Senator John H. Powers, of Cumberland, R. I. Miss Amy L. Hooker was in charge of the meeting. Mr. Callahan said that he had never seen a more courageous and orderly set of workers out on strike, during his connection with the United Textile Workers of America. Miss Kelleher complimented the striking picketers on their efforts and advised the strikers to refrain from acts of violence, and from committing themselves to any breach that might cause them trouble in the future. Senator Powers spoke encouragingly of victory, saying that all that was necessary was the same united stand made by the striking body in the past nine weeks. He said they had an uphill fight yet, which they must realize by this time, and there must be no 49-50 compromise.

Wednesday, the bronze honor roll tablets, to honor sons of Windham who served in the World War, were erected on either side of the main entrance to the town hall. It was intended by those in charge to have a ceremony of unveiling at the time of the erection of the tablets, but this was found an impossibility, owing to existing conditions. It is said that exercises of some sort are to be held later, under arrangement of the selectmen. The tablets are seven feet in height and four feet, eight inches in width. At the left of the entrance the tablet in honor of all the veterans who saw service during the World War, contains a list of all the battles and encounters in which Windham men took part, in the French and Belgian sectors. The inscription on this tablet, a quotation from Woodrow Wilson, reads: "In a rightful cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly served their nation in serving mankind." The tablet on the opposite side contains the names of the twenty-nine men from Windham who died or were killed in battle, with the inscription: "In memory of the men of Windham who gave their lives that freedom may endure." The inscription at the foot of the tablet reads: They gave their merry youth away for Country and God." The tablets are considered among the handsomest of their kind in New England.

Evidently they acceded to his request not to keep the sidewalks clear and the picket line moved along the gutter line Wednesday morning.

Stop Aches And Pains This New Way

Sufferers from backache, joint, muscle and nerve pains can now get quick relief.

Poisons caused by internal infection such as abscessed teeth or tonsils, or chronic constipation are often circulated in the blood and settle in the weakest spot. That is why one person may have terrible pains in the back of the neck, another has tender spots along the spine, others have a dull, weakening ache in the small of the back, swollen, inflamed joints or stiff, painful muscles. No matter in what part of the body the pain is localized, it is always felt by the sufferer in the nerves.

The first step toward getting better is to relieve the pain, just as a dentist must kill the pain in the nerve of a tooth in order to stop toothache pain. German science, which discovered Aspirin for headache pain and Novocain for painless dentistry, has at last developed a remarkable remedy for the relief of backache, joint, muscle and nerve pains. It is called BUHLER OIL and when applied on the joints, mucles or back, it quickly penetrates through the skin, soothes the suffering nerves and the pain is gone in a few minutes.

Buhler Oil will not burn nor blister, nor will it irritate even the most sensitive skin. Try a few applications in one evening. It gives quick results and blessed relief from pain. Get a bottle today. Lee & Osgood Co., Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Morgan, G. G. Engler, Geo. M. Rathbone.

This focused heat saves your time, for everything cooks quickly when the heat stays where you want it.

It is cheap, for fuel is not wasted when the heat is focused on the center of the pot—cheap fuel, too, kerosene, and only used when actually cooking.

You get the best results, for you can have any degree of heat you need—from intense to simmering—always focused—regulated by the turn of a lever.

When you are ready to begin cooking, the Florence is ready for you. Just turn the levers and light the burners. The Florence burns a gas-like flame—it is not a wick flame such as you see in an ordinary oil lamp.

The famous Florence Oven, with the "baker's arch" and patented heat-spreader, assures even baking.

Ask at the store to see the Florence Oil Range—you will be struck by its shining beauty and sturdiness. See it in action—then ask yourself if you can do without this oil range with its focused heat.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Great Cosmopolitan Film Coming to The Bread

The first Marion Davies picture to be released since "Little Old New York," in which she achieved one of the biggest successes in the history of motion pictures, is a screen version of Charles Major's romance of the daughter of Charles the Bold Prince of Burgundy, Yolanda. This photoplay has been booked for a four day's showing at the Bread theatre and will have its initial screening on Sunday. It was in another picture made from a novel by Charles Major, When Knighthood was in Flower, that Miss Davies made her big leap into the front rank of picture stars of the day. In Yolanda she reveals a charm of personality, a resourcefulness in technique, a mastery of pantomine that even surpasses her work in Little Old New York and Knighthood.

The production of Yolanda is the most lavish yet made by Cosmopolitan Productions for its series of photoplays starring Miss Davies. The life the color and the romance of medieval France are transferred to the screen with remarkable artistry.

Fri. and Sat. at the Bread

A story of gold and the greed for gold is the picture which will come to the Bread theater on Friday and Saturday. It is a William Fox production starring Buck Jones, surrounded by a capable cast including Elinor Fair, Bruce Gordon, Claude Peyton, Lucien Littlefield and Alphonz Ethier. Edmund Mortimer directed.

The scene is laid in Chance — so named, perhaps, because of the desperate chances that had been taken within its borders. There is a gold mine several miles distant, from which a wagon carries gold along a winding trail where bandits lurk. Buck Jones, in the role of a daring young insurance detective, is sent to Chance to try to put an end to the frequent attacks on the wagon.

He immediately challenges the outlaws by driving the wagon from the mine himself. Action begins at this point, and is fast and furious to the end, when Buck succeeds in capturing the bandits and winning the girl. It promises to be an exciting film, well worth seeing.

Palace Theatre

The Palace should enjoy a banner three days of packed houses the last half of this week with the splendid layout of music, comedy, dance and feature attraction, Mansion of Aching Hearts which opens today.

On the bill are Berner Dangerous Trio, Thumm's Orchestra, local boys; Dodge & Norton, comedians; Edith Knowles, past master of hot songs; criterions, novelists.

Finding characters to fill difficult motion picture parts is an art. This has been particularly true in filling the many roles in "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," which B. P. Schulberg Production offers the public today, Friday and Saturday at the Palace.

B. P. Schulberg, producer of "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," considers he was fortunate in being able to get the services of Cullen Landis as the juvenile of the picture. Landis has gained great distinction in such roles. He has the two great attributes essential, the first that he is masculine and manly and the second that he has a winning expression and face of the handsome type that appeal to men as well as women.

In "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" Cullen has perhaps given one of his best screen portrayals. For a mild looking youth he puts up a marvelous display of screen temper and fighting. In this production he portrays his character in a way that appeals to men who adore a determined type and to women who admire a man.

Cullen Landis is a typical product of the South, with the manners and gentleness characteristic of that famous old part of the country. He was born and educated at Nashville, Tenn. He evinced an early liking for the stage, although he was educated for a different profession. He displayed such great talent that he was given juvenile parts from the day he made his first appearance. He received his early training with Morosco but quickly drifted into pictures where he has since been a shining success.

Broadway Theatre

The last of this week will see a perfect program at B. F. Keith vaudeville at the Broadway Theatre, which is certain to please the most discriminate theatregoer.

The main feature attraction is Chuck Haverstick and his Band. The company consists of seven men and a petite danseuse who will please as much as the exceptional pupils that will be rendered by this competant band.

Dorothy Casey is just a wonderful kid and you are going to agree when you see this juvenile comedienne do her stuff.

Spencer and Carroll brings you back to your kid days with their comedy novelty entitled "Do you Remember."

Flatow and Fraser, those two song writers, have written for you. No less than 6 of the song hits including "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France," "It's a long way to Berlin, but we'll get there just the same," "A new kind of man with a new kind of love," etc. etc.

Harrison Greene and Katharine Parker "Just the two of us," come through strong with a comedy and song act that will be a big hit.

Al Fraboito and Sister in "You Can't Beat 'Em," show their wares on the silver thread of wire.

A threbling and tense dramatic story is revived in a way that is bounded by brilliancy and color in the big production, "Quick Lightning," which comes to the Broadway Theatre today.

The film is a West Coast stereotype features both in its height of romantic construction and cast which is headed by "Thunder"—the Marvel Dog and includes such players as Clara Bow, Harold Austin, Eddie Phillips, James Bradbury, Jr., Bessie Wentworth, Mark Fenton and John Prince. It was directed by that well-known director, James P. Hogan.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Authority has been given Chief John McFarland by the warden and court of burgesses to use such additional policemen as may be necessary in handling traffic in Danielson, Saturday evenings, and at such other times as in his judgment such extra officers are required. The jam of traffic that is the regular thing in Danielson's business section Saturday evenings puts too much of a burden on a single officer, so additional help is authorized.

The borough has authorized the issue of building permits to Howard Whitney, for a bungalow on School street; to Hermenegilde Prefontaine for a 10-car concrete garage on Dyer street; to Wilfred Lotiello for a garage on Brandill street; to Charles A. Burdick for a garage and to John Abdallah for a two-story dwelling to be built on Hutchins street. Oscar Boutale's application for a permit for a house on Broad street also was approved.

Among the things discussed at Wednesday evening's meeting of Leo J. Plomme post, American Legion, were plans for the post's participation in the drive that will be nation-wide in raising a Legion endowment fund of $3,000,000 for the care of orphans of World War heroes.

Connecticut is apportioned $150,000 of the amount to be raised, but just what fellingly's quota of the amount will be has not been learned by legionaires here up to Wednesday afternoon.

Plans for the drive were discussed at a district meeting held in Putnam last Monday, when P. L. Merrill, field secretary of the campaign in Connecticut, was in attendance and addressed the representatives of the various posts.

John F. Riordan, Jr., of North Grosvenordale, is general chairman in this, the fourth district, which includes posts in Danielson, Putnam, North Grosvenordale, Moosup Hanunton, Stafford Springs, Amston, Rockville and South Coventry.

In each community where there is an organization of the legion the post commander will be chairman of the local committee. In Danielson, Commander Joseph Burton will appoint a committee that will be made up fifty per cent. of Legion members and 50 per cent. of prominent citizens of the town. This committee will organize their local field and launch drive that is practically guaranteed of success in view of the fact that it is for such a worthy purpose.

The work of completing the local organization will be forwarded as rapidly as possible. It is the desire of the state committee and the field secretary to so co-ordinate the work of the many committees that will be active in Connecticut as to insure full success for each and every one of them, that the state may go over the top as a unit and report that it has done its share in raising the $150,000 assigned to it, and as much more as may be possible.

It is anticipated that Commander Burton will make known the personnel of his committee within a few days.

Rummage sale by ladies of Baptist church, Friday and Saturday of this week, at Railroad square.—adv.

A representative of the Pine Tree clubs of New England has under consideration plans for holding a convention of the clubs here at an early date, and it is likely that as many as 150 delegates will attend. The clubs are scattered through the New England states, from Connecticut to Maine.

More streets of the borough were oiled during Wednesday. This work is being done by the town. It was a matter of general comment that the work was done very thoroughly and with as little inconvenience to anyone as one could wish. The oil was very quickly covered with sand, so there was very little tracking of it around.

Again Wednesday, for the second time within a few days, death entered the Slater home on the Rhode Island border, five miles east of here, and claimed Miss Ellen Antoinette Slater, 68, sister of Hulda Slater, who died the past week at the age of 75. Both has been ill with pneumonia. Miss Ellen E. Slater was a daughter of Ahijah and Lucretia Tucker Slater. She was born in the house where she died and had lived all her years there, as had her sisters, one of whom died in March of 1922. The only remaining member of the family is an adopted daughter, Miss Pauline Slater.

There is a wonder dog up at the Palisade Kennels in East Killingly. His name is Hans and he is but recently here from the Rosedale, L. I., kennels of Henry L. Baer, proprietor of the best known police dog kennels in the east. Hans is a silky black dog, being unusual but not unique in police dogs, and it may be said he is not for sale. He is a dog something after the order of Strongheart and Rin-Tin-Tin in intelligence and like them, has made appearances in motion pictures. His intelligence is uncanny. He obeys even the slightest motion of the hand by Mr. Baer. He does many things amazingly well, but nothing than seeking out a person after whom he may be sent, though that person go half a dozen miles away. Hans will seek him out and not return until he has found him. As a stud dog, Mr. Baer estimates the value of Hans to his kennels at not less than $5,000, but the dog is not on the market.

Danielson appears to be in the whirl of another carnival of real estate transactions of very considerable importance for a community the size of Danielson. This morning the discussion is about the Attawaugan hotel property. This property has been reported as on the verge of being sold several times within the past three years and William S. Brown, its owner, admitted Wednesday morning that he is again negotiating for the disposal of it, as well as making known that he turned down one offer to sell during the past year because he would not approve of and lend his name for use in promotion of a new hotel stock selling plan that would be incident to the sale. The present negotiations, if they lead to an agreement, either will give Danielson a new hotel or a structure converted, remodeled and enlarged for commercial uses. It is understood that the offer for the property is $40,000. The site of the hotel property for commercial purposes is unsurpassed in Danielson, and the area in the rear of the hotel is so extensive as to allow of developments that likely would prove of a very profitable nature.

Incident to the talk of the prospective sale of the hotel property it also became known Wednesday that George P. Berris is disposing of his holdings here, being forced to retire from business on account of ill health. Mr. Berris is the owner of the block adjoining the Danielson Trust company property and the Dowe property in Main street. Mr. Berris has but recently returned from Boston, where he has been under observation to determine his exact condition of health.

George A. Golder, of Woonsocket, was a visitor with friends in Danielson, Wednesday.

Wednesday brought real spring weather, clear, bright and warm, with a temperature that touched 74 in early afternoon.

J. Carl Witter and N. A. Witter were in New London Wednesday on a business trip.

Developments in the strike at the American Thread company plant in Willimantic are being followed with keen interest by thousands of textile workers in towns hereabouts.

Though the events are not receiving a great amount of publicity, May basket parties feature about every evening in the lives of a great many young people in Danielson.

Some practical joker got a rise out of a visiting traveling man who found his parked car with a police tag on it. After he had explained to Chief McFarland that the car had been parked only 20 minutes where it was allowed an hour, the officer sensed that somewhere, somehow, a used tag had come into possession of whoever used it to tag the visitor's car and give him a bad few minutes.

In observance of Ascension day, members of Columbian Commandery, K. T., with headquarters at Norwich, will come to Danielson on Thursday evening of next week and attend service at St. Alban's church. ## MARK THE HIGHWAYS

From conferences which have been held and are being held it is evident that there is a recognized need of properly marking the highways which lead through several states. This has been done in many instances where the highways are not necessarily specially constructed and named for travel that might start at the building and go its entire length. Many are the routes across New England which have been numbered for the benefit of the tourist and yet it is probable that few of the tourists would travel the entire length of such routes. But no matter how far the users of the roads may be going the advantage of having the roads marked is recognized by all who have occasion to use them.

Thus the regional meetings which are being held throughout the country for the purpose of bringing about the better marking of interstate highways are engaged in a most praiseworthy effort. They are concerned with the main arteries of travel, involving not only cross country tourists but those going between large cities. They are certainly entitled to such instructions as can be given by the erection of clearly marked signboards, and to know from time to time that they are on the right road without being led to stop and inquire at every turn of the road.

But what is true of the interstate highways is also true of the state highways and even of the country roads. Not everyone is making a coast to coast trip. Not everyone is going to the tip of Cape Cod, and Canada is not the mecca of all auto drivers. There are those who are seeking various points much nearer home, who are desirous of leaving the main highway from time to time to get to some village lying off the marked routes, or to some home on a cross road, but are completely at a loss to know where to turn or which of several roads might be the one sought. Inquiry is not difficult at times but there are points where it is or where so much question asking has resulted in a sharp answer and a cool reception. It is certain that the highways of all kinds are going to be used more and more and for the convenience of the traveling public, and the nerves of the residents at the crossroads, signboards conspicuously placed indicating where the roads lead to and the distances are greatly needed.

CAILLAUX AND THE DEBT

Minister of Finance Caillaux of France has begun to wrestle with the payment of the money borrowed from this country during the war. He apparently regards it as a matter that should be adjusted, that some understanding between the nations should be reached but whether his views jibe with those of this government will be definitely known when the negotiations get to the point where the terms can be definitely set forth.

Thus far it would appear that M. Caillaux fully understands that this country is desirous of having the debt adjusted, but from such a plan as he has been reported as favoring it would not appear that he properly interpreted our attitude in other directions. He is credited with advocating the plan whereby France would pay the United States a certain proportion of the reparation payments it receives under the Dawes plan from Germany. In other words France will adjust its obligations, or agree to adjust them, only as Germany pays. What of course would be all right if there were no hitches, but should Germany for any reason fail to make its payments to France that would mean that the United States would be obliged to bring pressure to bear upon Germany in order to get what is due us from France. That would be bringing us into the business of acting with the other European countries as a bill collector against Germany.

The United States expects that Germany will carry out its obligations under the Dawes plan, but it never has been and it isn't now willing to aid in pulling some one else's chestnuts out of the fire.

The French debt was contracted during the war with the expectation that it would be paid. We have emphatically declared that there is no chance of a cancellation of such a debt, whether owned by France or any of the other countries, and we are not more willing now to be drawn into sharing the responsibilities of getting the reparations out of Germany for others than we have been in the past. For that reason the Caillaux plan as indicated creates no enthusiasm over here

STARTING FIRES WITH KEROSENE

Up at Pittsfield, when the parents were away, two children, aged 8 and 13, started to kindle the fire in the kitchen stove. To hasten matters they resorted to the use of kerosene with the result that there was an explosion and soon they were fleeing from the house, which had been set afire, with their clothing burning. The younger one died from the burns and the other is severely burned.

What these children did is only what many other children do. But more than that they have probably only followed the example which has been set by their parents. Kerosene is a great fire kindler; there's no getting away from that. It is possible that when used by those who understand it that danger can be guarded against, but what happened to the Pittsfield children is only typical of hat has happened to others, and included in the long list of those who have suffered from the effects of using kerosene to start or brisk up kitchen fires are many adults.

It is quite likely to be the case that children will undertake to do what they see others do. Sometimes they will insist upon doing it against all advice to the contrary, but it is highly probable that if the example of kindling a kitchen fire in the proper manner, even though it may be a bit slower, had been set that the one life would not have been lost and the other seriously endangered.

This is only one of the many ways in which there is a needless waste of human lives. Deplorable as such affairs are, it is unfortunate that the lesson can not be brought home to each and every household where similar practices stand out as a constant menace to others. It is folly to think that nothing of that kind could happen. Probably that was the attitude that was taken in the Pittsfield home, but like the pitcher that went to the well once too often the time came when through lack of care or no care a distressing tragedy was repeated. And yet how soon will it be before the news of the day carries more of just such sad affairs?

FORDS BID FOR SHIPS

Additional interest will be added to the fact that an offer has been made for a large number of shipping board vessels, somewhere between 200 and 400 of them, by the fact that it is Henry Ford who stands ready to buy them if he can obtain them at the right figure.

The connection of Mr. Ford's name with them may serve to create more interest in these vessels than has been displayed before, quite the same as his offer for Muscle Shoals quickly brought others into the field of competition. On the other hand the association of his name with the offer of purchase may be sufficient to prompt certain ones to do their utmost to see that he doesn't get them.

Mr. Ford is willing to pay a certain price. The shipping board would apparently dispose of them if it got its price. Whether these prices can be brought together in such a manner as to effect a sale no one knows, but there are reasons for believing that the fact that Mr. Ford is in the market will not prove disadvantageous for the selling of the ships.

Most of the ships that Mr. Ford might buy he would scrap. No one would think of doing otherwise with them. Offers to dispose of them abroad for that purpose have been reported. But knowing Mr. Ford's policy of making full use of material it is quite certain that if he acquires the ships and sends them to the scrapheap there will be a minimum of wastage from the material which he is able to salvage. Whether Mr. Ford gets the ships he may be unconsciously paving the way for the disposal of them at no distant date by the shipping board. Even such a service would have its benefits.

FOREIGN BULBS

In connection with the establishment of the quarantine against foreign bulbs there is being raised the same question that was at the time Maine potatoes were excluded from certain British territory. The question is being asked if the purpose of it is not to create a greater market for the domestic bulbs to the exclusion of the foreign production.

It is to be realized that there are millions of bulbs of various kinds which are imported each year. Some growers think they get a better product by going abroad. Others look to Europe for something different in variety. On all these bulbs there is a duty which has to be paid and it is the fact that purchases are made abroad regardless of the price because it is the foreign product rather than the domestic that is desired.

When it comes to stopping the increase of diseases and pests among bulbs it is another thing. This does give a protection to American producers by keeping out a greater number of handicaps, but there is no good excuse for undertaking to misrepresent the situation.

This country finds it of the utmost importance to keep out the undesirable alien. It doesn't want him at any price or under any conditions. The same situation holds true in regard to foreign bulbs, but not on the same basis. There can be no objection to the importation of healthy foreign bulbs and roots, but any other kind should be kept as far from these shores as possible. There can be no objection to any such protection of American producers who have pests enough, both as to number and variety.

BEING OBSERVANT

"I don't suppose I ever noticed small things in my youth," began the out-of-town customer as he helped himself to one of Wilkinson's cigars. "It may have been because there was always some guest to whom I had to be attentive that kept me from being observant at parties and dinners. Anyhow, I find that the appointments of a house interest me a lot more nowadays than they used to."

"All of which is perfectly natural," agreed Wilkinson. "You didn't have a house of your own in those days, and now, of course, being married and still dippy over the missis, you don't have even to speak to other women. It is great to be so grown up that you don't have to mind your manners."

"I suppose you're being very funny," said the out-of-town customer. "But you know very well what I mean. It makes me think what a time my wife has had trying to teach the children manners lately. Only the other day I heard her explaining to my youngest that he should take smaller mouthfuls and that very evening we entertain a well known man whom the children had heard us praise to the skies, a man who stuffed whole lettuce leaves in his mouth and didn't think anything of trying to swallow five forkfuls at one time.

"But what I started out to say is that since our firm has gone in so deeply in a linen line I've been sort of studying up and noticing things. I never used to know the difference between damask and balbriggan, but I think I have a sort of an idea that they are not alike now. I can recognize the products of our looms as soon as I see them, and I can assure you that we turn out as good stuff as is made in these United States."

"I'll bet you do," declared Wilkinson. "Though I was somewhat surprised to hear that you people had taken it up. I hope for our sakes, at least, that you aren't going to drop out of your usual lines."

"Absolutely not," said the out-of-town customer. "But what I started to say is that I went to a large dinner party last week where the napkins were a dress. The cloth was some lacy foreign thing that was mostly holes, but the napkins were peaches. I happened to be sitting next to the hostess, so I asked her about them."

"Probably a wedding present from her in-laws," suggested Wilkinson. "No brides and grooms can afford good linens themselves these days."

"She's an old woman," said the out-of-town customer. "So her wedding linens must have worn out years ago. She told me she was glad I considered them pretty, as she thought they were herself. She said her old eyes were beginning to trouble her and that even with her glasses she could not see enough of their beauty to appreciate them fully. They were given her by a friend, another very old woman, who lives at the Splendid hotel in a big western city. She added that she was surprised to receive such a lovely thing from her as those napkins, as her friend's eyes were worse than hers and she didn't see how she could select such beauties. She thought possibly someone had helped her. I said I thought not, but didn't say why."

"Unriddle me the riddle!" demanded Wilkinson. "Why not?"

"Because," laughed the out-of-town customer, "the donor lived at the Splendid hotel and every one of those napkins had been made by us, with the name of the hotel woven faintly in the material."—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Oliver Evans, the Wheelwright

Over 100 years ago, the people along the highway in the neighborhood of the Schuylkill river were amazed to see a great bulky mass of machinery moving slowly down the road, most astoundingly, without horses to draw it. The machinery moved itself! Such a thing had never been witnessed before on the American continent. White clouds of steam puffed forth, as if from the throat of a monster, and a column of black smoke rose over the tree tops. At the river, the same machinery, put on a boat, needed no oarsman or sails; it turned wheels that pushed the boat through the water. Arrived at its destination, the machinery set to work dredging out the river! And all this before the year 1806.

"Oliver Evans can do anything; he's a wizard!" people said, as they marvelled at his invention. "Why, the time will come when wagons will go without horses and boats without sails!" said one of the men who had seen Oliver Evans' machine go down the road.

Oliver Evans was about the cleverest man in America in the years just before 1800. Like so many other famous men, he had practically no opportunity to learn anything except in the university of hard knocks. As a small boy he had been set to work for a wheelwright, and had had to work whether he wished to or not. The beauty of it was—and the real secret of Oliver Evans' success—the boy enjoyed work. He tried his best to do his work well. He thought about, and tried to find new ways of working. He studied the tools he used, and he devised new methods of doing things. As a boy he invented little things; grown into early manhood he invented machine after machine that saved labor and increased production. During Oliver Evans' own lifetime; James Watt, in England, had perfected the steam engine. Evans took up the work in America and made a great number of engines, including one that moved itself down the road and along the river.

He was only 21 when he applied to the state of Pennsylvania for a patent giving him the privilege of using steam for the running of a factory, and for the moving of vehicles along the road. In fact, the poor boy who had become a worker for a wheelwright, looked far ahead of his time and foresaw the present age of steam, when steamboats, steam-drawn wagons, steam-driven factories, and powerful steam engines for many purposes, would be the common things. Oliver Evans was, as it were, the George Washington of the use of steam in America.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Marshal Lyautey, who is directing the French warfare against the Riffians in Morocco, has always been a man of action in the fullest sense of that word; a man who has never lain back on his laurels; who has not had time for the recollection of an achievement, because it has no sooner been completed than he has started out on some other quest. From the time when he left Saint Cyr Military Academy, in 1878, he has been carrying on the active work of a soldier and administrator in various parts of the world. Fighting rebellious natives in Algeria, Indo-China, the Song Cau Valley, and at the capture of Ne-Tuong; exterminating piracy in Upper Tonkin; putting down rebellions and pacifying the country in Madagascar; consolidating the French hold on Algeria, and finally entrusted with the difficult task of securing and pacifying Morocco, these are only some of his many activities. During a critical period of the great war he served as war minister of France. In 1912 he was honored with election as an "immortal" of the French Academy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Flowers for Noank's Deceased Soldiers

Mr. Editor: I saw in your paper about the American Legion post, Richard Morgan, No. 55, of Mystic, did not have any funds for flowers to put on the dead soldiers graves for Memorial day. Does it seem now that those who fought and died for their country are to be forgotten? They wanted men when the war was going on to help save the country. Many went and came back. Others lie over there with a wooden cross never to came back. Why cannot something be done before Decoration day? There are only eight or twelve soldiers to be remembered. Some women in the village are willing to help raise money and do all they can. A whist is planned this week. Everybody can help and put it over so the mothers can see that their sons are not forgotten. Memorial day only comes once a year. Richard Morgan post would like help from the public.

NEW BOOKS

The Sleeper of the Moonlit Ranges. By Edison Marshall. Cloth, illustrated. 311 pages, published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York, N. Y. Price $2.

"Deep, far carrying, like the horn of an ocean god, the whistle of an inbound ship rolled in surging bursts out of the sea's mist." So opens Edison Marshall's new story on a note of mystery and suspense to which the whole novel is attuned. Out of the fog the ship brings to that lonely port in Bering sea three strangers from the outside world. And to Breed Bert who watches it from the dock, it brings a long awaited destiny. From its house he sees Grace Croker arrive with her lover, Paul Fiedmaster, his life is changed. In the same hour Bert saves Grace from a hideous death and Paul who has played the coward hates the dark skinned man for his courage. Thus their fates are interlocked.

It is a story of gripping force, and more effective because of the unusual scenes where it is laid—the Aleutian islands. The party of three, guided by Bert in charge of the Indian packers make their way to Mt. Pavlof in the interior on a mission at once strange and dramatic.

While telling a story which has plenty of exciting adventure and episode, the author has suggested with some art Breed Bert as primitive man, at war with nature and all created things, urged to supremacy by his inchoate dreams. This larger theme gives The Sleeper of Moonlit Ranges a glamor not always found in romances of the wilderness. The ultimate happy outcome does no violence to logic in a novel which is frankly and refreshingly idealistic.

Tom of Peace Valley. By John F. Case. Cloth, 232 pages, published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, Pa. Price $1.50.

The author is president of the Missouri state board of agriculture and dedicates his book to the farm boys of America.

Let them bring the fight to Peace Valley, Tom was ready for them. Football under the coaching of "Fighting Jack" Roberts had hardened his sinews and steeled his determination. He might be a "Hill Billy" but if he had a chance of winning the state prize for Blanton high school, not a member of "Bull" Durham's gang should touch a stalk of his corn project. He had fought them for his seed, and now at the critical moment, he was waiting their last attempt. Beside him in the darkness Marvin "the pepper pot" doubled his fists. A rustle as the invaders came on, the crash of falling ears, the thing ray of a flashlight! "Mar-r-rough! Mar-r-rough" and lanky shapes charged a retreating enemy. It was a weird tale the terrified scenes where it is laid—the Aleutian ears had to tell of the strange species of wildcat that was abroad that night. Quite as exciting was Tom's struggle to make the football team until that great day when the "wolf cry" of Lame Bill Kidd urged on the son of the valley to final victory over Denman high. Tom is a boy worth knowing. It is a story every lad of spirit will enjoy.

The Resurrection. By Thomas Sawyer Spivey, a sequel to The Revelation cloth, illustrated, 414 pages, published by the author, Beverly Hills, California. Price $3.

In this volume gnosticism is taken up with the idea of showing that Christianity is based upon its wisdom and philosophy, the author saying, "It is very apparent that if a man knows a thing he does not have to appeal to others for this knowledge, but if he desires to know something of which he has no knowledge he must seek this enlightenment of someone else, and he must believe what is told him is true or become a skeptic. This is the basis of faith. In our analysis of gnosticism we are deeply impressed by the always present intimation that it is not a closed organization, but, on the contrary, it reveals understanding laws which propagate learning. Thus it sows wisdom to become practical knowledge by understanding. It is the true and only system of natural knowledge and instinctive education." Whether one endorses the views of the author, it is a volume that represents extensive study and thought."

Farewell

With three new [illegible]
And [illegible]
Leaving [illegible]
Place [illegible]
And [illegible]
[illegible]

In the branches a cardinal [illegible]
I hear [illegible]
Was my [illegible]
[illegible]
That signed to you you whose to ascend?

You must be weary, traveler bold,
From flying so far and so long.
And bearing with you the whole journey through
The burden of such a large song.

You are not too tired I peep another?
Nor is preen a travel-stained wing?
Nor too tired to flit and chuckle a bit?
And are not too tired to sing?

Choose the topmost spray of the tallest tree
And look your country o'er.
And tell us the tale of your shimmering tale
As you've told us in song before.

Found you a perch in a lofty tree—
And tree in the southern realm—
That teetered as big as the slender twig
At the tip of your spectacles?

Aha, such a song of familiar things!
Saw you ever a river so bright?
Or looked you down on furrows so brown
In your long and weighful flight?

And your willow trees! Saw you cypress or palm
That loosed as dasalina a plume?
Saw you anything nester or feather or sweeter
Than your own orchards in bloom?

A song of the splendor about you here,
And another of joys to come?
You have been in a far away country and are Glad, so glad to get home!

Had I the wings of the morning to fly
With the sun in his infinite quest,
I know I should come at even-time home,
Loving my own land best.
—M. in Indianapolis News.

The Tree

I love thee when thy swelling buds appear,
And one by one their tender leaves unfold,
As if they knew that warmer suns were near,
Nor longer sought to hide from winter's cold;
And when with darker growth thy leaves are seen
To veil from view the hasty robin's nest,
I love to lie beneath thy waving screen,
With limbs by summer's heat and toil oppressed;
And when the autumn winds have stripped thee bare,
And round thee lies the smooth, untrodden snow,
And naught is this that made thee once so fair,
I love to watch thy shadowy form below
And through thy leafless arms to look above
On stars that brighter beam when most we need their love.
—James Very.

NATIVE OF INDIA SPEAKS BEFORE CONFERENCE OF SIX CHURCHES

The Conference of the Six Churches was held at the Hanover Congregational church Wednesday, one hundred and seventy-six answering the roll call. The platform was lovely with its decorations of palms, ferns, pink and white begonias and exquisite hot house roses from the Park estate greenhouses. Not since 1920 has the conference enjoyed hearing a male quartette from Boston and the Lotus quartette from Tremont Temple were a delightful addition to the excellent programme. Their numbers, both in the church and at dinner in the parish house, were listened to with great pleasure and appreciation.

Miss Jennie Gallup opened the morning exercises with an organ prelude, followed by the doxology. The Lord's Prayer was chanted by the quartette, after which the pastor, Rev. Dwight L. Stone, led the responsive reading. After a hymn, the Scripture from Acts 10 was read by Rev. G. Keene Gray of Jewett City. The quartette sang, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills," and prayer was offered by Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Lisbon. The response was "Still, Still With Thee," sung by the quartette. During the receiving of the collection by Rev. W. C. Prentiss of Plainfield and Rev. William Muttart of Preston City, the quartette sang "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters."

The sermon was by Rev. Herbert D. Rollason, pastor of South Church, Middletown, a former pastor of Hanover church. His theme was The Gospel of Action. He said the gospel is not merely a message, but one of the deeds. The parables are all about action. The gospel is a belief, but not merely a belief. We cannot always speak or tell what we believe, but we can do things. What has established our churches is generation after generation going out to work eagerly for Christ. Speech, belief and action must be linked together. The first believers did what all Christians should do—confess their faith in Jesus—go out and try to promote His programme, and lastly to practice the obligation of loyalty to local fellowship. Your church will be a power in the community if its members are loyal and dependable men and women.

At the close of the sermon the quartette sang The Old Rugged Cross. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Rollason. Dinner was served in the parish house. Rev. G. C. Pollock of Norwich asking the blessing. The beautiful pansies on the tables were much admired.

During the devotional service led by the pastor at the opening of the afternoon service, the quartette sang "Remember Now Thy Creator." The scribe, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, of Jewett City, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll of the churches. There were nine from Pachaug, eleven from Lisbon, thirty-four from Preston City, six from Plainfield, eighteen from Jewett City, fifty-one from Hanover and forty-seven visitors. A vote of thanks was extended the entertaining church, and also to William G. Park for providing the excellent music. A resolution was passed expressing to Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Richardson of Pachaug the sincere regret of the conference for their decision to leave Pachaug, and of prayers for the health and comfort of Mr. Richardson, whose ill health and advancing age causes him to resign his pastorate. The scribe was instructed to send a copy of this resolution to them. The quartette sang by request, "I'm a Pilgrim."

The afternoon address was by K. Appassamy, a student in Hartford Theological Seminary. He is a native of India, born in Palamcottah. He began by saying that India is two-thirds of the size of the United States with a population of 315,000,000 people. He said that if every minister of every faith in America were to go to India and speak to their average size Sunday congregation that only one-sixth of the field would be covered and five-sixths left without any missionary work. It is one of the largest fields to evangelize. There are five million Christians out of five hundred and eighteen million natives, more than half belonging to the Church of Rome. He briefly described the Hindu and Mohammaden religions. There are ninety million Mohammadens—more than in any other country. But he emphasized the intense faith of the natives for their beliefs, in contrast to the laxity to the Christian believers in this country. He said that a foreigner coming to this country has every opportunity to see the bad side of American life, but the religious life is practically hidden. He quoted a Christian native as saying of America, "You have a good religion but live it badly. We have a bad religion but live it well." He told of his own father who was converted from Hinduism, and after practicing law retired, and is now president of a mission which has eighteen men and forty-five helpers in the field. His work is evangelistic. He told, by request, of his brothers and sister, all highly educated in Madura, English and American colleges, doing wonderful work on national committees in this country and their own country in mission work, as judges and the important positions. It was a talk which made the congregation think seriously of the way an unconverted country looks at Christianized America, and rightly enough. After the benediction by the pastor, the quartette sang "Now the Day is Over," a fitting close to a beautiful day.

INSURANCE CO. APPEALS IN COMPENSATION AWARD

An appeal from the finding and award by Commissioner J. J. Donohue in the workmen's compensation claim of William Witchekowski against the Falls Co. of this city has been taken to the superior court by the American Mutual Liability Co., one of the two companies which the commissioner decided should pay the compensation award, half and half.

The appealing company was carrying the compensation insurance for the company at the time the claimant was first disabled, Sept., 1923, and the insurance policy was still in force when the claimant was disabled a second time in December, 1923. At the time the claimant sustained his injury on May 25, 1923, the insurance was carried by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., whose policy was cancelled Aug. 1, 1923, about 6 or 7 weeks before the claimant suffered any actual disability or suffered any lost time on account of the accident. This company claims that no report of injury was ever made to them by the employer and that they were not carrying the risk when the claimant first reported an injury to his employes in Sept., 1923.

Witchekowski had two toes of his left foot broken by a truck running over the toes, one of which subsequently had to be amputated. The compensation award was for 37 weeks at $12.66 per week a total of $468.40, of which each company is to pay half, besides the medical, surgical and hospital bills.

The appeal is returnable in June.

Shabuoth, the Feast of Weeks.

The Jewish festival of Shabuoth, or the Feast of Weeks, will come this year on May 29th. This is the day of the giving of the Ten Commandments on Mt. Sinai, of the ancient harvest feast of the Jewish people, the day known in the Greek language as Pentecost.

Shabuoth comes seven weeks after the beginning of the Passover.

The festival begins at sunset on May 25th and lasts till sunset the following day; orthodox Jews keep it for two days, according to ancient practice when all feasts were set by direct observation of the new moon, and there might be uncertainty which of two days was the actual festival. Liberal Jews have dropped the second day, which is not Biblical in origin. The sources of the festival may be found by any reader of the Bible—in Exodus 34, 18-26 and Leviticus 23, 15-22 as well as minor references in a number of other places.

Most things go wrong because man refuses to take women's advice—so a women says.

In the absence of President Charles W. Eddy of Waterbury, detained at home on account of illness, the first vice president, Harold L. Blakesley of New Haven, presided. Hugh Kinder entertained with piano solos and also gave a vocal selection, Hide On. The principal speaker at the meeting was H. D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. Mr. Larrabee gave an interesting talk on Economy in the Electric Power Plant.

In the course of his talk Mr. Larrabee called attention to the fact that last year the Eastern Connecticut Power company saved the people of eastern Connecticut 49,000 tons of coal. That is, it would have taken that much more coal to generate the same amount of power by individual and smaller plants than the Eastern Connecticut Power Company's plant. This was a saving of 700 carloads of coal.

Mr. Larrabee told of the various modern appliances used at the power plant as a means of maintaining high efficiency and economy. Mr. Larrabee's talk was not only interesting but instructive as well as he described clearly the operation of the modern power plant and explained the meaning of superpower. He was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his talk.

Four reels of motion pictures were shown through the courtesy of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. Two of the reels were comedy pictures and the other two reels traced in pictures the history of the manufacturing of paper from ancient days to the present.

Following a general introduction of all present at the meeting there were brief remarks by several of the visiting engineers after which adjournment was taken, about 9.30 o'clock.

The local committee in charge of the arrangements for the sectional meeting comprised Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., of the firm of Chandler and Palmer, Joseph N. French of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., and John Smith of the Connecticut State Highway Commission.

SUGGESCTIONS MADE TO RELIEVE TRAFFIC CONGESTION

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce held a meeting in the offices of the chamber Wednesday afternoon and voted into membership Attorney Andrew B. Davies and George Johnson of the Norwich Electric Co.

The proposed state park in Montville and its present status in the legislature were considered and no stone will be left unturned in an endeavor to bring this matter to a successful issue.

A conference was recently held with representatives of the cigar manufacturers and cigar makers and the chamber to discuss ways and means to rehabilitate this formerly prosperous local industry. It is asserted that the stock used in the locally made cigars is of the best quality for price obtained. The industry, formerly employed fifty to sixty cigarmakers where but scarcely a dozen are now employed. The rehabilitation of this local industry needs the cooperation of all those directly interested and the general public.

In order to relieve traffic congestions on Broadway and North Main and Main streets, it was suggested that Union street and Boswell avenue should be put in proper condition, also so that Main street from Market to Washington Square should be treated likewise.

Industrial matters were also given consideration. There is approximately one hundred thousand feet of vacant factory space, as well as a number of factory sites, that are available for industry. Every possible prospect is given earnest attention in an endeavor to add to the industrial growth of the community.

The man who is too lazy to stand up and tell the truth is apt to lie about it.

LOTUS MALE QUARTETTE PLEASES NORWICH AUDIENCE

Miss Hanson pleased her audience with her clever and varied readings and character sketches which were received with marked favor.

The members of the quartette are Robert Martin, first tenor, William Hicks, second tenor, Nelson Raymond, baritone and Frank Cannell, bass. They recently appeared here at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce.

Men! Don't Come Home Fagged Out by Hard Work

DOCTORS say that in an enormous number of cases when men come home physically and mentally "all in," nervous and cranky, the real cause is not hard work, but thin, pale, watery blood, deficient in strength-giving iron. Once this iron is restored to the blood it is often astonishing how quickly these men gain new strength, nerve force and endurance.

But be sure the iron you take is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and not the old-fashioned liquid medicines and pills made by the action of powerful acids on ordinary mineral iron. Nuxated Iron is a natural organic iron like the iron in your own blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. It does not injure teeth nor disturb the stomach. So remarkable are the effects of Nuxated Iron that thousands of weak, nervous, dragged out men and women have often increased their strength, energy and endurance in only a few weeks' time.

Try Nuxated Iron just two weeks. Money back if not delighted. But be certain you get genuine Nuxated Iron tablets with the letters N I I on every tablet. At all good druggists.

An evening of whist and pinochle was successfully conducted Wednesday in A. O. H. hall in Division No.

ACADEMY LOSES TO LA SALLE AFTER OUTPLAYING THEM FOR SIX INNINGS

Whether there is anything to that old adage about the 13th of the month or not, yesterday was certainly an unlucky day for the Academy baseball club for they lost what seemed an almost sure victory to LaSalle at Providence, 7 to 5. The Academy up to the sixth inning of the game had outplayed the LaSalle team and were leading by a 5 to 2 score with an easy victory in sight. Then just as things were sailing along smoothly Dame Fortune took a hand and right there the Academy went down to defeat.

The game, however, was not without its thrills, most of these being contributed by the two Eddies, Eddie Brewer and Eddie Busch. Brewer was the real outstanding star of the game for it was through his two smashing hits, one into the right field stands and the other a drive through the infield, that the Academy scored four of her runs. The other tally was driven in by Gerry Burke. Brewer also made a great catch of a hard hit ball that looked like a sure hit. Busch's contribution to the days spectacle was his brilliant catch in the eighth inning of Carroll's drive that was ticketed for a home run. McElroy had hooked on to one of Jarvis' shoots and the ball was sailing rayly on its way toward Olneyville. Busch turned his back on the ball and started in the same general direction and when he turned at the point where he thought the ball would come to earth and lo, the ball was still traveling several feet above his head. He jumped, stuck up his gloved hand and the ball suddenly terminated its flight and rested snugly in the mitt. Busch did a back flip and came up smiling with the ball still clutched in his hand. Busch's other performance also came in the eighth inning when he was ingloriously caught napping off second base, spoiling a chance of a possible score.

McElroy was sent into the box for LaSalle and his first inning was very impressive, striking out three of the Academy hitters, Johnny Greene was assigned to the mound for the Academy team and he did not do so well, passing the first man and striking out the next but passed the third. With two on it looked rather doubtful but the fourth man hit to Carroll at third who put through a pretty double play.

The next inning was uneventful but the third saw some action. Carroll fanned and McGowan was passed. Jarvis hit to the center field, McGowan going to third. Jarvis stole and Hinrichs fanned. With Eddie Brewer up and two down the stage was all set. Eddie hooked on to a fast one that careened off the right field stands and both McGowan and Jarvis spattered across the plate. Eddie going to second. Gerry Burke caught the second offering of McElroy and dragged a nice hit through the infield. Brewer beating the throw to the plate by inches. Goldblott walked but Johnny Greene ended the rally by fanning.

LaSalle scored two runs in the last of the third on an error, a base on balls and a hit. The Academy by the Jarvis, Hinrichs and Brewer route added two more runs to their total. Carroll first man up fanned. McGowan walked for the third time but was caught at second. With two out Jarvis batted and was safe when McElroy thought to let the ball roll foul which it didn't. Hinrichs advanced Jarvis to third and then stole second. Brewer was at bat again. McElroy grooved the ball and Eddie smashed it through the box and way out passed second, Jarvis and Hinrichs scoring. This ended the scoring for the Academy.

In the sixth inning when everything looked bright and rosy Johnny Greene forgot himself and grooved one to McElroy who crashed the ball into the right-center stands for three bases. Smith followed with a hit, Mcguire walked and McArdle hit safely scoring Smith. Carroll flied out to Jarvis who threw home to catch the runner but the ball got away from Goldblatt and two runs scored.

LaSalle added another run in the seventh inning on a base on balls, a hit and an error. So ended the game.

Noted From the Bleachers.

Johnny Greene pitched a nice game and the four runs chalked up against him in the sixth inning were entirely due to his pitching by any means.

Mace Glodblatt, with the exception of his costly error in the sixth played a good game considering it was his first attempt at catching in a real contest.

The Academy students turned out well to the game fully a hundred going to Providence to see their team play. How they got there is a mystery. One student said that he rode in six different machines before he arrived at the game.

Lew Hawkins was a good Samaritan to one party that started out for the game but met with hard luck in Providence when their car died by the roadside. Lew piled nine into that yellow buzzy of his and brought them back to the Rose of New England. Thanks much, Lew.

Chmielkoski and McGowan had a fortunate knack of getting on first during the game, Cliny getting hit twice in the same place and McGowan drawing three free trips.

Lloyd Jarvis hit safely three times and his batting average is steadily mounting. His bunt in the fourth inning was a piece of good head work that crossed up the opposition.

Although McElroy is rated as a better pitcher than Moran who pitched against the Academy in the first game, the Academy boys made a better showing yesterday.

Sherty Hamill and his sister Gertie say that the defeat was due to the two loads of hay that Jack Shea nearly hit on the way to the game. Shorty says hay is bad luck anyway. Jack Shea is convinced of it.

OLD TIMER TO PITCH AT POLO GROUNDS TODAY

New York, May 13—"Smiling" Mickey Welch of Holyoke, Mass., has been assigned to pitch at the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

Forty two years ago Mickey pitched a National League game for the New York Giants, allowing Boston seven hits and winning 7 to 5. John Morrill, then first baseman and manager in Boston, and John Burdock, second baseman, are expected to join Mickey in his return to the diamond.

Thus the celebration of the National League's golden jubilee year comes to New York and officials galore have been invited. Commissioner Landis, President John Heydler of the National League and former governor of Pennsylvania, will head a party of baseball notables.

Among the old time ball players expected here are Dasher Troy, shortstop for the Giants in 1882; John Hornung, Boston outfielder forty years ago; Amos Rusie, who had made his mark a decade before the new century dawned; Dan Brouthers with Buffalo in the early years; Tom York, another of the veterans of the game, and many others.

After a parade from center field to the plate, Welch is scheduled to hurl the first ball and then the teams of a modern day will go into battle, the Giants of 1925 facing the Reds of Cincinnati in the second game of their series.

CHAPMAN BEATS STONINGTON IN LEAGUE GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

Stonington, May 13—Both Chapman Tech and Stonington did all of their scoring in one inning—the third—but the total hung up by the Whalers was four times the number which the Brown and White scored, and the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league game played at Owen's field here this afternoon resulted in a 4 to 1 victory for the visitors. A bad piece of baseball by Shea at third for Stonington who threw home in an attempt to get Aquillo, Chapman Tech short stop at the home station with two outs proved to be the undoing for the locals.

The contest outside of the third was a tight affair in every respect. Although Morris Brown the dusky mound artist for Tech struck out 13 men, nine more than his rival Reever, yet the tide of affairs would have drifted to Stonington's side had the third inning

PUTNAM HIGH TAKES MEASURE OF PLAINFIELD SCHOOL TEAM, 10 TO 3

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 13—The solid hitting of the Putnam High school baseball team gave it a ten to three victory over Plainfield High in a game at Putnam Wednesday afternoon. Putnam's hitters lined out nineteen safe blows, including two triples and three doubles off two Plainfield pitchers, while Cartier was limiting the visitors to eight hits.

Right in the initial inning Putnam started its cannonading of the visitors' boxman, Belknap. Singles by King, Cartier, Pritchard and Hannigan, topped off with a double by Charlie Murphy drove in four runs after two were out. In the second inning King's triple following by Dupre's single brought another tally.

Plainfield batsmen went out in order until the fourth frame when French, who had reached first on an error scored after Allard's double. In the next inning Plainfield scored twice more. Singles by Gallup and Belknap were responsible. This inning was the only time that Cartier really had any difficulty with the visitors.

Three more singles in the last of the fifth gave Putnam two more tallies and brought Baker to the box for Plainfield. Four additional bingles, including a long triple by Pitchard were responsible for still another duo of runs in the sixth. In the eighth Cartier's double drove in King who had singled.

Putnam's victory was won entirely by hard and timely hitting. Of the nineteen hits very few went to waste. The eight hits which the visitors made off Cartier were scattered through seven different innings. Strikeouts and fine fielding saved him when the visitors threatened at all.

Mercier, Plainfield second baseman had to leave the game in the second inning when he turned his ankle while fielding a grounder.

Cartier's effectiveness may be judged by the fact that in the first two innings he struck out five batsmen and repeated in the last two innings. The Putnam infielders had but four assists, most of the outs coming on strikeouts or pop flies. Summary:

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 13—The second game in the city league played at Morgan Park this evening ended in a 2-2 tie score between the For Trumbull Stars and the Standard Oil nine. The contest featured the superb hurling by both twirlers, who up until the seventh inning had a no hit game within their grasp. But their realization was shattered in the final stanza when each team scored runs and hits sounded off the bats of the rival batsmen. The contest went seven innings, being called after that frame on account of approaching darkness. The score:

WATERMAN AUTO ACCIDENT CASE TRIED IN NEW LONDON CITY COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 13—The police court held an all-day session—or from 9:30 this morning until 4 this afternoon, listening to the testimony in the case of the State vs. William B. Waterman; of the firm of Waterman & Wolfe, auto dealers in this city. Waterman was accused of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and with driving an auto in such a manner as to endanger the life and limb of persons using the highway. The case came to the court because of a collision that occurred between the Waterman car and the car of Frank Bray, engineer at Lawrence-Memorial hospital on the night of March 7, last. The Bray car was smashed as it backed out of the driveway of Thornton N. M. Lathrop on Montauk avenue, with Mr. and Mrs. Bray as the occupants. There had been a dinner party at the Lathrop house and at 11.15 Mr. and Mrs. Bray started for home. They only got into the highway when the Waterman car crashed into them. The Bray car was wrecked and turned over, Mr. and Mrs. Bray being held in the wreckage until extricated. Mr. Bray was injured so that he was taken to the hospital where he remained until recently. He was so injured that he still gets about with the use of a crutch. The defense of Waterman is that the Bray car came out of the driveway at the Lathrop house and showed up in front of the Waterman car before Waterman could see it. Waterman claims that the Bray car was extending over upon the east side of the highway which was the space allotted to cars moving in the direction of this city and in which territory the Waterman car had a right of way. It is the defense that when the collision occurred Mr. Waterman sustained concussion of the brain and that he suffered from such injury for three days.

As soon as the collision occurred when the Brays had received attention from the police and it became known that the Waterman car was the one involved, Mr. Waterman was sought and found at his garage on Main street. Officers Babcock and Murphy testified that in their opinion Waterman was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. They declared that he was in the act of taking a drink at his garage and that he broke the bottle from which he drank and destroyed the evidence that he had such. It was the testimony of Police Lieut. Gaffney that Waterman was under the influence of liquor when brought to the police station. There when he was released on a bond Officer Martin took Waterman to Dr. Cronin for medical attention. Officer Martin testified that Waterman told him that "he had got the best of officers once and that he would beat them again," the inference being that he referred to the charge of driving while intoxicated. Waterman admitted taking a drink of gin at the garage of Waterman and Wolfe, but said he took it to brace him up, and he believed it had that effect.

The night of the collision there was a dinner party at the Waterman house at which cocktails were served before the feat, but only one drink to a person and no other liquor was taken at that. Such was the tstimony of [illegible] pendant and those who were his guests. T. N. M. Lathrop and John [illegible] who were at the Lathrop dinner declared their belief that Waterman was intoxicated.

There is still another witness to be heard. He will relate his version of what occurred so far as he can recall it, next Tuesday morning, to which time the case was continued, late this afternoon. The arguments will follow the testimony.

Dr. D. Cronin testified to the [illegible]ce given to Waterman and declared a belief that Waterman was suffering from concussion of the brain, that he did not know what had happened and that there was no odor of liquor on the breath of Waterman while he was receiving attention from him (Dr. Cronin). Walter Garde also testified that there was no evidence of Waterman having indulged in liquor. Garde was the surety on the bond that released Waterman from custody at the time of the arrest for the accident.

Arthur and William Connell of Crystal avenue; Diana Allyn, Waterford; Walter Hulbert, Norwood avenue, and Mrs. Stanley King and infant daughter, Bank street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Frederick L. Edwards was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home in Niantic, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Edgar Montgomery of Niantic. Relatives of Mr. Edwards were bearers. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Martin J. Ganley, about 65, formerly residing on Federal street, died this morning at Lawrence hospital where he had been under treatment about three weeks as the result of a shock. Mr. Ganley was formerly employed by the city highway department. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. May Marlane of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Clarence M. Shay, Mott avenue, to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended three weeks ago, for Shay's alleged violation of the automobile law.

William Starwesky, 11 Meridian St., Groton, was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to possess an operator's license. He was fined $10 by Judge S. Victor Prince and paid. Starwesky was driving an automobile truck, owned by Nathaniel Avery of Groton, on the night of May 5th. When the truck was passing over the Thames river highway bridge, Jack Bergen, formerly a sailor stationed at the United States Coast guard sectional base, state pier, was struck by an automobile, owned and operated by Frank E. Smith, 188 Central avenue, Norwich. Bergen was thrown from in front of Smith's machine to the opposite side of the highway and directly in front of the truck, which was about to pass. Before Starwesky had opportunity to apply his brakes, the wheels of the heavily laden truck passed over Bergen's head, crushing the skull and causing almost instantaneous death. The state police investigated the accident and it was discovered that Starwesky, although having operated motor vehicles a long time, had not taken out a driver's license for this year.

The trial of William B. Waterman of the firm of Waterman and Wolfe, automobile dealers, and residing at 75 Glenwood park, will be started in the police court tomorrow morning. Waterman is charged with operation of a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Several weeks ago Waterman was operating his machine, a high-powered Lincoln touring car from his home to his place of business, Main street. When approaching Thames street, on Montauk avenue, and driving at an alleged fast rate of speed, his car hit a machine owned by Frank E. Bray, 114 Riverview avenue and employed at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, and in which Mrs. Bray was a passenger. Bray's automobile was reduced to junk so great was the force with which the car was struck and Bray and his wife were hurled to the highway. Mrs. Bray escaped with minor bruises and lacerations, but Bray sustained among other injuries a fractured pelvic bone, which injury kept him a patient at the hospital a number of weeks and because of that fact the trial of Waterman was deferred from time to time. Bray is now able to be about and will be one of the witnesses in court tomorrow.

Following the collision Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock took Waterman into custody, he being found at his place of business, quite intoxicated and he was destroying two bottles of whiskey in a lavatory.

The fire that gutted the Crocker house several weeks ago has resulted in one of the tenants of the structure deciding to discontinue business; for Stanton & Cook, shoe dealers, will not occupy the store that they did prior to the blaze. Four of the other tenants, Boston Candy Kitchen, Fellman, florist and the Army and Navy store will continue to do business there, the owners of the last named store having settled their financial difficulties and taken a new lease. A New Haven clothing company was anxious to obtain the stores occupied by the Army and Navy and Stanton & Co., but being unable to secure the former store the out of town concern would not lease the single store.

Frederick W. Mercer today sold five parcels of land on the Mercer tract, bounded by Huntington, State, Meridian and Church street, to Joseph R. Schwartz of the Schwartz Furniture company. The price paid was approximately $27,000. The parcel comprises 126 feet on Church street and 68 feet on Meridian street. Mr. Schwartz contemplates calsing a one story store structure to be erected upon the site during the summer.

The police are maintaining a watch in an effort to apprehend Steve Bosky, 16, who is suspected of having robbed Walter Kurpski, 207 North Bank street, of $154.76. The youth has been at the Connecticut Reform school for boys at Meriden. Bosky had been at the Kurpski house several days and returned as usual last night, occupying the same room as did Kurpski, who went to bed about 11 o'clock. When Kurpski retired he placed his trousers containing the money on a chair and this morning when he arose, Kurpski found that Bosky was not occupying the bed and examining his trousers he discovered the money missing. After making an unsuccessful search to find the youth, Kurpski reported his loss and made known his suspicion to the police.

In the police court this morning, the case of Louis Ramistella, public service operator, charged with reckless driving was continued until Tuesday. Ramistella was arrested yesterday by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, Groton state police, as a result of Ramistella operating his maching upon the Thames river highway bridge a week ago at an excessive rate of speed and even driving the car to that section of the bridge used by pedestrians. An effort was made to locate Ramistella following the alleged infraction of the law, but he was not located until yesterday forenoon.

Miss Laura Chute, 700 Main street, reported to the police late this afternoon that while she was shopping in a State street establishment earlier in the day her pocketbook was stolen from a counter where she had placed it while she examined some goods.

Dr. Candler stated that he was having a house erected on Granite street and that practically every night children in the neighborhood visit the structure and destroy some of the buildingmaterial.

Mrs. Mary Charick, 145 North Bank street, was greatly alarmed late this afternoon because of the absence of her little son, 5, who had been missing several hours. Mrs. Charick requested the aid of the police in an effort to find trace of the child. Mrs. Charick declared that the boy had been seen in company with Tony Greenvich of Fishers Island, who was in this city today with his automobile and inquiry at Fishers Island brought the information that Greenvich had not returned home. Two hours later Mrs. Charick, who had telephone to an acquaintance in Montville making inquiry whether the child and Greenvich were in that township received information that both were at the residence of an acquaintance of the man and that the latter had simply taken the child with him to give pleasure to the child. The boy was returned to his mother early this evening.

Frank Larkie, 8 Schoolhouse lane, employed as a stevedore, is seeking the whereabouts of his wife and two children who mysteriously disappeared from their home some time last night. Besides attempting to find his family, Larkie has requested the police to assist in his search.

According to Larkie, he went to his work last evening and there was no intimation by his wife that she and the children would not be at home when he returned. However, when Larkie concluded his labors at 2 o'clock he went home, to find his wife missing. He then entered the room occupied by the children and found that they were missing also. Larkie made inquiries of other occupants of the house, but they could not throw any light on the mysterious disappearance of mother and children for no one had seen the woman and her family leave the place and no one was located who had knowledge of where the mother and the children had gone.

As noted, over 250 men and women of St. Mary's Star of the Sea parish assembled last evening at the Diocesan Bureau community house 42 Jay street for a card social, the biggest and best event of its kind that has yet been held by the parish. The guests were welcomed by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, pastor, who also received the men's door award. Miss Mae Hanley was given the door award for women. Prizes were awarded at each table.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in this year before I started to [illegible] four bottles of the [illegible] and once [illegible] Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Joy in the Smiling Pool

Prithee tell me what is joy?
'Tis happiness without alloy.
Old Mother Nature.

For a while after his arrival in the Smiling Pool Old Mr. Toad sang just for the joy of singing. He had to sing. Yes sir, he had to sing. He just couldn't help it. His cousins, the Hylas and Tree Frogs, were singing. Redwing the Blackbird, perched in the top of an alder or on a brown and fluffy cat-tail on the edge of the Smiling Pool, sang all day long. Little

"Where, my dear, have you been?" cried old Mr. Toad

Friend the Song Sparrow, poured out his happiness in a little tinkling song that everybody loves. So Old Mr. Toad just had to sing with the others. He thought he was as happy as he could be.

He moved about quite a bit. Sometimes he was in one part of the Smiling Pool and sometimes in another. Just why he wasn't content to remain in one place he didn't know. But he wasn't and so he kept moving about. But wherever he was he sang.

Then one afternoon as he swelled his music bag out until it seemed as if it must burst he heard a gentle splash behind him. His music bag collapsed and he turned quickly. A pair of wonderful golden eyes looked into his and Old Mr. Toad's heart almost skipped a beat for pure joy. There were the eyes of Mrs. Toad.

"Where, my dear, have you been?" cried Old Mr. Toad. "I've looked everywhere for you."

"I've just arrived," replied Mrs. Toad. "I went in rather deep last fall and I didn't awake as early as you did. I knew I had overslept by the chorus coming from the Smiling Pool, so I hurried here as fast as I could. Long before I got here I heard you singing, so I came straight here. Your voice is better than ever, my dear."

At this Old Mr. Toad puffed out his music bag and began to sing again, and now his song was sweeter than ever, for in it was perfect joy. Mrs. Toad did not sing. She says that one singer in the family is plenty and she prefers to be sung to. So she never sings. But Old Mr. Toad sang enough for two. In fact, it seemed to him that he couldn't sing enough. He couldn't or wouldn't stop long enough to eat. He didn't even watch out for danger. It was Mrs. Toad who saw Longlegs the Heron just in time. It was she who discovered Mr. Blacksnake gliding toward them as they sat with only their fore feet in the water. Old Mr. Toad was too wrapped up in his singing. But for her he would have ended his singing for all time. So perhaps it was just as well that Mrs. Toad didn't sing.

So there was joy in and all about the Smiling Pool. Even Jerry Muskrat squeaked more than usual, that being as near as he could come to singing. Jerry was happy, for he had a family and as yet no one but he and Mrs. Jerry knew anything about it. Peter the Sandpiper, bobbing in his funny way whenever he stopped on the edge of the Smiling Pool, was happy, for he and Mrs. Peter had a secret all their own. Can you guess what it was? Rattles the Kingfisher was happy and his harsh rattle was heard more than ever, for that was as near as he could come to singing. He also had a secret in the bank just below the Smiling Pool. So there was joy in the very air. It was no wonder that Old Mr.

Greatest Flesh Builder For Skinny, Weak, Run-Down People—Full of Vitamines.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

"RIPPER BILL" IS PASSED BY HOUSE AFTER A LENGTHY DISCUSSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 13.—In the house at 10:52, the order of the day, the so-called Bridgeport "ripper bill", was taken up. The discussion was opened by Chairman Lynch of the cities and boroughs committee, who reviewed the conditions now existing in that city. The grand lists there have been reduced thirty-five times more than in either the cities of New Haven or Hartford. In 1923, 1,018 certificates of error were issued by the claims committee. Millions of dollars have been lost to the city through the loss. The supreme court of the state has ruled that these certificates of error were illegally issued, and that the amounts abated and that amounts should be collected. Bridgeport is taking no steps to collect and has continued to make abatements, has and is abusing the rights given them in matters of taxation. It is not a violation of the principle of home rule.

It is a question as to whether the small property holder should be made to assume the burden that should be born by those who should bear it.

Mr. Cubelli, of Bridgeport, was surprised at the report made by the cities and boroughs committee. He contended that these assessments were made necessary by economic conditions that have prevailed in his city since the close of the war. Property of all kinds have followed in Volume. Finkelstone of Bridgeport, asked the house to consider the principles of the bill and to act upon the "Golden Rule." The bill was called the "ripper bill" because it ripped out the will of the wishes of the people of his city. The bill adds to the financial expense of the city, which is unnecessary. The bill does not relieve them of taxation problem.

No newspaper in Bridgeport, or any other part of the state, has given approval to this bill. He appealed to the house to reject the bill and let Bridgeport work out its own solution.

Judge Hoyt of New Haven, contended that the conditions can not be remedied by doing away with rights of the local civil government in these matters. The question is shall home rule prevail in the cities and towns of the state or shall it be taken from them? He reminded the members that they had not been sent to the assembly to represent any one portion of the state, but to legislate for the best good of all and to stand for the preservation of all state and town rights.

Averill of Branford acting leader of the house was surprised that none of the opponents of the bill had recognized nor referred to the conditions existing in Bridgeport. Quotations were made from the special report of the state tax commissioner on the tax and illegal methods that prevail there and that made a bill of this character necessary. Bridgeport for a number of years has been to the general assembly for, and has been granted legislation to correct conditions but they have failed to correct.

All opposition to the bill has been outside the merits of its merits. The supreme court has made a ruling and they have failed to remedy conditions and have not even taken any steps to do so.

Judge Peck of Bristol said that the statements made by Mr. Lynch, had not been controverted nor had any attempt been made to do so. The claim that is made by all of the opponents is, that home rule shall prevail.

Reviewing the bill he considered the bill eminently fair to the city of Bridgeport. The bill provides for the appointment by the governor and there is a general elimination of the governors appointments and appointments to be made by the mayor.

Bell of Salsbury, was of the opinion the management of local affairs should be left to the towns. He opposed the bill because it was a desperate plot to deprive the people of their right to manage their own affairs. Let them take care of them even if they are bad.

Sterry of Waterbury, said that the question of home rule in this question was all bunk The real question is, is this bill right. When the paid attorney of the city refused to assist the tax collector of the city to collect overdue taxes, it was time that the state should so legislate that he will be compelled to act.

It was foolish to talk about the golden rule, when the small tax payers were made to bear the burden and the privileged ones with influence were given exemption. Corruption exists there and it is of more than local interest and it is time that the state should step in and try to correct it. Lavery of Fairfield said that he had been a resident of Bridgeport for fifty years and he could see no harm that could come to the people there if this bill should pass.

There was a need of revising conditions in Bridgeport and was in favor of passage of the bill. It was providing for the future as well as the present. Jones of Winsted supported the bill. It was not nearly as drastic as has been represented.

It takes nothing from the people of that city. The conduct of affairs remains with them. Havens of East Hartford moved the previous question and Finkelstone of Bridgeport objected and the speaker ruled that the question was not devotable. Mr. Havens granted the Bridgeport member three minutes which he asked for. The previous question was ordered and Chairman Lynch closed the debate. The vote on the question being doubled by Mr. inkenstone. A rising vote was ordered, but before it was declared Mr. Finkelstone withdraw his doubt, and the bill was declared passed.

The vote which was not announced was 140 in favor of the bill and 48 against it.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10.33 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Campbell of Beacon Falls. On motion of Mr. Sturges of Woodbury the bill concerning endowments for cemeteries rejected yesterday, was reconsidered and recommited to committee. The bill relating to the powers to be granted to the proposed city of Manchester was taken from the table and Averill of Branford moved that it be referred to the committee on manufactures. This was objected to by Miss Cheney of Manchester. She said the bill should be acted upon now. Explanations were made by Averill and Johnson of Manchester, Bronson of Winchester, Havens of East Hartford.

Acting under the previous question the motion to recommit prevailed and the bill was committed to the Manufacturers Committee. Resolutions appointing judges and deputy judges in several of the minor courts were adopted. The longest debate of the session was held on the bill amending the charter of the city of Bridgeport, regarding matters of taxation. It was 12:25 when the vote was taken and the report of the committee sustained and the bill was passed. On motion of Miss Cheney the Manchester bills were transmitted to the senate.

On motion of Mr. Bell the house at 12:55 adjourned till Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

Senator Pierson, explaining the reports, said that in the case of the state park, the committee had adopted a policy of appropriating to commissioners and not for parts of their work, that there were more important matters than elimination of mosquitoes, and that an appropriation of $500,000 for an armory in New Haven was not warranted by financial conditions. The reports were accepted and the bills rejected.

The committee recommended an addition of $50,000 to the deficiency fund at the disposal of the state board of control for the next two fiscal years. Calendar.

Unfavorable reports were received from the committee on appropriations on the following bills for hospital appropriations: St. Mary's hospital, Waterbury; Manchester Memorial hospital; Mount Sinai hospital, Hartford; Home Memorial hospital, New London; Norwalk hospital; to Wm. W. Backus hospital of Norwich; Meriden hospital; Sharon hospital; Grace hospital, New Haven. These reports do not mean that the committee on appropriations are not favorable to the institutions named. Senator Platt, the chairman of the committee stated this morning that the appropriations are taken care of in the general budget. The budget includes an appropriation of $5,000 for Mt. Sinai hospital, the amount being the sum asked for in a bill introduced by Senator Griffin.

In the first quarter of 1925 Graham Brothers built and sold more 1½ ton trucks than any other manufacturer in the world.

In the 1 ton and 1½ ton fields combined, Graham Brothers ranked second.

Publication of these facts is prompted wholly by the belief that truck buyers are entitled to know the trend of the times. With the facts before them, few would consider buying other equipment without first determining the reasons for Graham Brothers rapid advance.

The public utilities commission has given the Mystic Valley Water company the right to raise the water rates so much no doubt landlords may be obliged to raise the rents $1 a month, to meet it. Property owners are wondering where the increase is going to end with taxes advancing so that the rate in Groton is several mills higher than in the large cities. This is one cause for so little building at present.

JOBER MIDGETS VISIT RELATIVES IN MYSTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, May 13—An innovation on wheels arrived here Monday, the owners coming to visit friends thus giving the people an opportunity to see their tourist home built especially for them and to meet them personally. Major and Mrs. Stanley Jober are fast becoming as popular midgets as General Tom Thumb and his wife were. While Major Jober is larger than Tom Thumb, Mrs. Jober is much smaller than Mrs. Thumb was. Their home is built on a truck chasis fitted up with furnishings for housekeeping; all the furniture made to fit their needs. Telling their history, Nellie May was born in East Haddam in 1885 and at 12, began singing in churches and continued up to the time of her marriage, April 14, 1920 with Stanley Jober. The marriage took place at the home of her sister, Mrs. Thomas Warner in New London, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. A. Elder. Since their marriage they have traveled widely.

The outside of their home has the sign From Coast to Coast" on the front end; the rear reads Jober Midget Home." A sign on the back reads Princess Nellie, height 30 inches, weight 42 lbs., age 40; Major Stanley, height 35 inches, weight 56lbs., age 41." Mrs. Jober has a small folding organ and each has a harp. Both are talented musicians and gladly play and sing. They were invited to sing in the Strand Theatre last night giving the public an opportunity to see and hear them. While here they are guests of Mrs. Jober's cousin, Mrs. John Crandall, and family of Fort Rachael place. They leave Thursday morning to go on tour. A relative drives the car and they have been as far south as Richmond, Va., but plan to travel over the country in their new home.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, May 13—(A. P.)—Bullish operations in the stock market centered in a select list of rails, oils, motors and industrial specialties, the general list disclosing considerable irregularity on a renewal of extensive profit taking and bear selling. Trading slowed up perceptibly the day's sales falling below one and one half million shares for the first full session since May 4.

Trade news was largely constructive in character, two of the most significant developments of the day being an advance in gasoline prices along the Atlantic seaboard and a stiffening in refined sugar prices on reports of heavily increased consumption. Operators on the long side also derived encouragement from the publication of the government's foreign trade report, showing that exports last month were the largest of any April during the last five years. Imports also increased nearly $25,000,000 above those of April last year, but were about $15,000,000 below those of April, 1923.

Steel shares developed a temporary burst of activity and strengthened on the announcement of higher prices for the scrap metal in Chicago, but they sagged later on publication of the weekly trade reviews setting forth that while the advance of spring has brought increased consumption in some directions, as for automobiles and for building the scale of new buying and of specifying on contracts has not been sufficient to support the April rate of output. United States steel common closed fractionally lower at 115 after selling as high as 116 3-8.

Further accumulation of the St. Paul issues sent the common to 8 and the preferred to 18 5-8, but the higher prices invited a renewal of profit-taking and short selling with the result that they fell back to 7 1-8 and 13 1-8, respectively, where they were up about one point each on the day. St. Louis-San Francisco common and preferred established new peak prices at 31 3-4 and 54 1-2, respectively. Several of the dividend paying rails, notably Atchison and New York Central, also displayed a better tone.

Heavy profit taking took place in some of the recent strong rubbers, public utilities and motor accessories, net losses of 1 to 3 1-2 points being recorded by American water works, Manila Electric Corporation, Pittsburgh Utilities preferred, Stewart-Warner, Stromberg Carburetor, Montana Power and United States Rubber. However, Mack trucks, Fisk Rubber common and First preferred, United States Rubber First preferred, Kelly Springfield eight per cent. preferred, Spicer Manufacturing preferred, Eaton Axle, Motor Wheel Corporation, Consolidated as and United Railways Investment preferred, all mounted to new peak prices for the year.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

European currency rates held firm in quiet trading, demand sterling ruling around $4.84 3-4 and French francs around 5.20 cents. Argentine Exchange advanced about half a cent on the announcement that the Argentine government would permit resumption of gold exports on June 10.

PROMISE BIG EVENT IN VOITURE PROMENADE

Chef de Gare Jonathan L. Johnson presided over the meeting of Voiture Locale, No. 743, Le Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, held Tuesday evening at the American Legion rooms on Main street and there was an attendance of voyageurs militaire from practically every town in New London county where a Legion post has been formed.

The meeting of Tuesday night was to complete plans for the Voiture promenade to be held at the Norwich state armory on Saturday evening, May 23rd. All indications point to a most successful promenade and Chef de Gare Johnson reported that he had notified all locales of the state of the coming big time in Norwich.

Reports from a number of voyageurs indicated that many Voiture members from all parts of the state will be in Norwich to attend the celebration and assist in seeing that the "P. (i.)" or candidates are given everything that is coming to them in their trip "over the top."

Voyageur Clarence Whitaker and his committee reported that work is progressing rapidly on the French engine and box car which is to be used in the parade and that it will be equal to any owned by any Locale in the state. The members promised to work on this section of the promenade for several days to get it ready for the big event. Other reports were that various stunts would be pulled off during the parade that will delight those who come out to watch it.

Candidates are coming in fast for the promenade and it is planned to take care of about 60 prisoners on Saturday evening, making it one of the biggest events held in the state.

Voiture locale is composed of Legion members in Norwich, New London, Jewett City, Colchester, Mystic, Stonington, Lyme, Groton and Old Lyme and was organized about a year ago in New London when 87 prisoners went through the degree work.

William A. Anderson has been selected as conducteur for the promenade and has selected his committee to wait upon candidates and give them all they ask for.

Members of the Voiture are to go to Taftville this (Thursday) evening to attend the meeting of the Taftville Legion post when it is expected that nearly a dozen P. G.'s will be signed up for the Voiture. Baltic has already signed close to a dozen candidates and Norwich is expected to furnish over a score by the end of the week.

Plans are being made to furnish light refreshments for nearly 150 voyageurs at the armory and it is expected that Voiture equipment from other Locales will be brought into the city to add to the parade. The promenade is the first ever held in Norwich by the Voiture and enthusiasm is running high.

The prominence of the Voiture is well known and it's membership is made up of many of the leading service men of the country. Vice President Charles G. Dawes was recently made a member of Voiture 220, Chicago and to show his appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him, he made a personal contribution of $1,000 towards the Legion's $5,000,000 Endowment Fund. Voyageur Dawes has also been assigned to assist on the endowment drive in the Windy City.

LEGIONAIRES WILL HEAR SPEAKERS ON ENDOWMENT

Legionaires from all Legion posts of New London county are planning to attend the County Legion meeting to be held at the American Legion rooms on Main street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock when two prominent Legion men will visit Norwich.

The men who will come to Norwich are Vice National Commander E. P. Armstrong and F. L. Murrill, field secretary for the American Legion $5,000,000 Endowment Fund.

In a letter to Norwich officers Vice Commander Armstrong asks that every man be on hand for this meeting to get the information about the Legion drive. The American Legion is sending Armstrong and Murrill into Connecticut on this drive and they are visiting cities to tell Legion members about the Endowment Fund, the interest of which is to provide care for the orphans of World War veterans.

Vice Commander Armstrong is a Norwich boy and New London county went back of him strong during his term as state commander for the Legion and District Commander William E. Anderson at a meeting held Tuesday night, stated that "Armie" expects his Norwich Legionaires back of him in this drive.

Following the meeting on the Endowment Fund it is expected that Voiture "pep" will be instilled into the Legion boys to get them "set" for Saturday May 23rd.

SPEAKS FOR EDUCATION BEFORE GIVING CITIZENSHIP

Michael Kley, of New York, manager of the Immigrant Service and Citizenship bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was the speaker at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noonday at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Kley was an interesting speaker and brought to the attention of the Rotary club the urgent need of educating the immigrant in American citizenship before granting him rights of citizenship. The speaker, who has recently returned from abroad where he made an exhaustive study of conditions, civic, political and economic, in countries on the continent, spoke of conditions there and the influences that were brought by the immigrant to this country.

Mr. Kley suggested that the Rotary club sponsor a movement to encourage every foreign born resident of Norwich and vicinity to take out his first papers so that he may be prepared for effective citizenship. He pointed out that this would permit more than two years to pass before second papers could be taken out, during which period, the prospective citizen may be encouraged to go to school and learn the English language and American institutions.

Quoting from the Federal census of 1920 Mr. Kley pointed out that Norwich has a population of 22,304 of which 5,704 are foreign born, and of which about 15,000 are of foreign born stock. Of this foreign born population 3,050 are not citizens of the United States and according to the record 1,521 over 18 years of age are illiterate. He listed the composition of the foreign born residents in Norwich as follows: Poles, 1,723; Italians, 652; Russians, 565; Germans 314; Greeks, 270; Swedes, 145, and a dozen other nationalities of less than one hundred.

At the business session President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Clint Lane acted as song leader. There was the usual group singing with several selections by the visiting guests. One of the musical features of the luncheon was a delightful solo by Frank R. Murdy and also a duet by Mr. Murdy and Henry J. LaFontaine.

The five-minute speaker of the day was Russell A. Clapp, an ex-aviator, who spoke on the U. S. Air Force as a means of defense. He spoke of the very efficient service rendered by the air service and the necessity of maintaining this force in times of peace as the service is now the "eyes of the army."

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

CONN. EPISCOPAL DIOCESE HAS SHIELD OF ARMS

The Episcopal diocese of Connecticut has a shield of arms which has been registered by the College of Arms in England. Bishop C. B. Brewster is the only bishop in the United States to have such a shield granted by the Earl Marshal of England. The first Episcopal bishop of Connecticut was also the first bishop of the United states, and the see of Connecticut is the oldest of the Anglican communion outside of the British Isles, the next oldest being Nova Scotia, founded in 1787, says the Hartford Times.

The arms of the diocese are especially interesting because of their emblazonment with charges connected with the foundation of the church in Connecticut. The heraldic description, as given in the Patent of Arms, is as follows: "Azure, a Saltire Argent in chief two Swords points upward Saltirewise of the second pomels and hilts or, on an Inescutcheon Sable, a Key and a Pastoral Staff in Saltire, of the third and on a Chief also of the third three grape vines fructed and issuing from Mounds proper," to be borne and used by the bishop of the diocese of Connecticut and by his successors on seals, shields or otherwise, according to the law of arms. Interpreted, St. Andrew's cross, on a blue field, relates to Scotland. The swords of St. Paul in the place of honor, recall the See of London, whose bishop had jurisdiction over the church in the colonies. The inescutcheon is the small shield within the larger one. The key and pastoral staff are those used by Bishop Seabury on his seal and continue to be the Episcopal seal of the diocese. The vines are those of the colony, as used on the state seal.

Surmounting the shield is the Mitre of Aberdeen remainder of the places where Bishop Seabury was consecrated.

HARTFORD PAPER PRAISES MRS. MAYER'S PUBLIC SERVICE

The Hartford Times of Tuesday evening gave brief sketches of and pictured the thirty one appointees to municipal commissions named by Mayor Stevens.

Of a former Norwich resident and one of three women appointed The Times said:

Mrs. Jerome Mayer, (Sadie Plaut) appointed to the charity board for a term of three years, has rendered distinctive sevice as a member of a number of women's organizations in this city. She is chairman of the program committee of the Hartford section, Council of Jewish Women, and as such assisted in arranging the successful work of that organization for the present season.

Mrs. Mayer is also a director of the Travelers' Aid society and was a leading worker in the financial campaign of the society last spring. She is a director in the League of Women Voters, Consumers' league, Hartford Woman's club and Temple Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Israel. She was a member of a special committee which recently acquired the Case Memorial library for Women's club purposes.

If a woman's grief happens to be a wrinkle even time cannot heal it.

JOHN TROLAND'S ADDRESS TO MASTER PLUMBERS

An inspirational message by John Troland of this city, dean of the master plumbers of the state, is given a feature place in the year book published in connection with the 35th annual convention of the state master plumbers association, held in New Haven, Tuesday and Wednesday.

On another page of the year book, under the title "Wit and Wisdom, Some Old Sayings Revamped," are given a number of bits of philosophy and wit by Mr. Troland.

His address to the officers and members of the association is as follows:

When one has been long associated with your Essay Committee and identified with so many attempts in the past, the selection of a topic becomes an embarrassing task to the essayist himself; hence also a hit upon a theme that will at the same time be interesting to his auditors.

Even in the presence of suitable topics, too, we may find that many of these have already been treated by other and perhaps more competent writers.

In our particular business, perhaps more than some others, the literature that has been created by the plumbing business in all its departments has reached volumes, and in regard to the things we handle and the thoughts we think, the public as well as ourselves are deeply concerned.

It is well that this should be so, for no other trade lies so near to the public services and the public health. No other trade comes so close to the home, day in and day out, nor receives so much attention and criticism.

Surely, to build a home, after the architect has designed and drawn it, is no small undertaking. To make every apartment convenient and their approaches easy and suitable to their various uses, requires much skill and ingenuity. But, when all these adjustments have been fitly accomplished, they are calculated to remain for years with reasonable care; whereas the plumber's work is not simply constructive. His mitres and joints must have something more than a perfect alignment; they must stand the test of pressure and the variation of temperatures. Pneumatic and hydrostatic laws must be reckoned with, and all the nice balancings that exist between air and water. More important, also still, are laws of hygiene have to receive attention and every point be made secure against lurking ills. These of later years have become more generally evident and exacting in regard to our profession more than any other.

The fact that more emphasis is being placed on matters of sanitation and the discoveries of science, the plumber must be equipped with new qualifications above and beyond the mere mechanical arts that demand only constructive ability.

It is for this reason too that the public is deeply concerned about the personnel of our craft and the quality of young men who aspire to engage in it, and out of this have been evolved the schools for preparation, in which qualifications can be attained and classified.

Our National Association is giving proper heed to this matter, and the results are justifying their effort and helpful anticipation.

This upbuilding of the skill and dignity of our calling evinces to us the import of our organization and the duty of membership, and obligation thereto entailed and preeminent.

It is self-evident that every man who practices this art, and through it is aiming at success, shall be in keen sympathy with the organized body that stands for the progress of the art and the promotion of its perfection. Some part of his time and some part of his earnings should be devoted to this object, as well, also, to learn what is being accomplished and what has been accomplished, and how through organization it has reached its present status of importance.

The National Association which stands at the head of our organizations surely, commands our respect and support. In its infancy it "builded better than it knew," and its chief executive office has been ever filled with men who in every way deserved our fealty. As we look at this list of noble men, we have every reason to be proud at the remembrance of them. It should surely now be our ambition and our creed, to build as good as we know. We can only say this when every man who follows this art is enrolled in its organized membership. For this cause we set apart Interest to our business. For this cause we meet around the festive board in social contact and friendly intercourse. For this cause we write essays and strive to inspire ourselves and others to go home to our desks and benches with renewed zeal for success in our particular spheres of action. Can we do less or shall we do less, than give our best to the cause that gives us a living and a worthy place in the community of which we form a part.

This essayist will deem the time he has given to it not wasted in feeble preparation, if it may in some small way contribute to this end.

Let us remember, too, that the measure of human success is not all embraced within the circle of human attainment nor of the accumulation of wealth, but in what we contribute to the general welfare. The reward is for faithfulness in even a few things, and in the final assize the judgment will be based on the broader foundation "Inasmuch as ye have done it," or "Inasmuch as ye have done it not." For life is, after all, only an opportunity—a testing place wherein is developed human character, which is all that can be carried from earth to the other life when done with this one.

Mr. Troland, who is the dean of the master plumbers of the state, also gave "Some Old Sayings Revamped" which with the inspiration message were included in the Year Book of the association.

REMODELING NEW HAVEN'S HARTFORD FREIGHT TERMINAL

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, in pursuing its plan to afford its patrons the best service practicable, to eliminate all causes for congestion, to increase capacity, and to operate more economically, is commencing the revision of its freight terminal at Hartford and the construction of an addition.

Hartford is not only a very important point because of the large volume of traffic handled locally, which is received for delivery and is originated for forwarding, but in addition it is also the hub of seven radiating main lines. The present facilities for the receipt of trains, classifications, make-up and dispatching of transfers for local delivery, and the classification and making up of outbound trains, is now divided between two yards, one being in Hartford and the other in East Hartford. Neither is of modern design or adequate. A transportation situation of this character requires, instead of two separate terminals, a single facility of needed capacity, so arranged that trains and transfers from all directions can be received, that the classification of cars they bring into the terminal from whatever their source of origin, can be then sorted by gravity into classification tracks on each of which cars will be next gathered and consolidated, all of the cars properly blocked together for the outbound train or for the transfer which will handle them from the yard to the particular portion of local territory to which they are destined. In this manner, one handling will replace several and as all of the various operations are over double-ended tracks and the current of movement of all cars will proceed regularly in pursuance of the pre-arranged plans, delays are reduced, movement is expedited, and capacity is increased.

The terminal as rearranged and enlarged, will be a modification and extension of the present freight yard which is located on the east side of the main line and north of the line via East Hartford. It will consist of tracks of appropriate length for receiving and forwarding trains and transfers, with a line of crossovers through the center making each track available for two trains of shorter lengths. These tracks will be directly reached from the south and west, by double leads that will be connected with the interlocking. Adjoining these tracks on the west, will be a classification group of 19 tracks which will be served over a hump located at the northerly apex of this group. Next toward the east, will be located the bad order tracks. Additional tracks for receiving trains and transfers via East Hartford, including an open track for light engine movements, will eventually connect with the apex of the yard in the vicinity of the hump on one end, extending diagonally across southwesterly, to a junction with the main line before it crosses on the Connecticut River bridge.

The layout provides for the addition of tracks in accordance with the design, as traffic grows and further expansion becomes desirable.

The grading for the improvement is under way and that part of the project presently required by the volume of traffic now being moved, will be completed during the season.

The Cedar Hill terminal serves the principal requirements of the system, and in addition, those locally of the radiating main lines and of the traffic center of New Haven and surrounding areas. The Providence terminal serves the requirements of the lines east, and also those locally of the radiating main lines and the traffic area centering at Providence. Similarly, the Hartford terminal will serve the main lines which hub at Hartford, the traffic area at and around Hartford, and will supplement the Cedar Hill terminal in supporting the traffic requirements of the state of Connecticut.

MADE $100 GIFT TO THEIR RETIRING TREASURER

New London, May 13.—The following officers were elected at the 28th annual convention of the grand lodge of the Sisters O. D. H. ### MYOPIA IN CHILDREN NEEDS CAREFUL ATTENTION

Defective vision in children is receiving more attention than formerly, since it has been listed as one of the health defects, which, if serious, may interfere with normal progress in school. Eye tests now form a regular part of the complete physical examination which is being given children through public and private health agencies. It has also been recognized that with a general improvement in the nutrition of the child through proper diet and hygiene, health defects are lessened in severity if not actually eliminated.

While the extent of defective vision has been somewhat exaggerated in the past, it is true that a small percentage of school children, in the vicinity of twelve per cent, have eye defects which are in immediate need of correction. This seems to be more pronounced in the rural districts as shown by special surveys which have been made in certain states, the percentage ranging from sixteen per cent in the country to twelve per cent in cities of 10,000—30,000 and only eight per cent in the cities of over 30,000 population.

One of the serious eye defects which requires the immediate attention of an oculist is myopia or shortsightedness. This is described in a recent bulletin of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness.

"Myopia is caused by the elongation of the eyeball from front to back. In the normal eye parallel rays of light focus on the retina, the picture-making film of the eye; in the myopic eye, the rays of light still focus at this point but the retina is not there to receive the impression—it is further back; a vague, indistinct picture results, just as would be the case in a picture taken by a camera in which the focus is incorrect. This condition is sometimes spoken of as short sight, because the rays focus short of or in front of the place where the retina actually is. In the camera the focus is adjusted by the simple device of turning a wheel; the focus of the eye cannot be so easily changed. The lens of the eye is biconvex, hence if the rays of light must come to a focus at a point further back than that in the normal eye, a concave lens must be placed before the eye. This is known as a negative or minus lens; it is the opposite of the lens in the eye. The strength of this concave lens will depend upon the degree of myopia; thus a—3 lens would mean a moderate amount of myopia, a —14 lens would indicate a very high myopia.

"If myopia is progressive, there is grave danger of detachment of the retina since the retina is inelastic and will not stretch to fit the constantly elongating eyeball. The greatest care must be taken to see that the myopic child puts no extra strain upon the retina. His eye work should always be done with his desk at up angle so that he may sit erect and never have to bend over a flat surface. In gymnastic work all bending over exercises should be avoided. This does not mean that the myopic child should be deprived of exercise, but when the other children bend forward he should bend downward. A child with progressive myopia should not carry heavy weights. This must be taken into consideration in the selection of an occupation.

"In progressive myopia it is necessary to have the eyes examined regularly and frequently. The lenses may have to be changed often, sometimes it falls to the lot of the sight saving class teacher to explain the reason for this change so that parents will not think the oculist is unreasonable in ordering new lenses."

U. S. WINS POINT ON CONTROL OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION

That War Supplies Can be Shipped to Foreign Governments Without Previous Recognition of That Government—Agreement is to be Reached Later on How Shipments of Arms Can be Effected When the Importing Country is in the Throes of a Revolution.

Geneva, May 14.—(A. P.)—The United States won her point today at the international conference on the control of the trade in arms and munitions that arms can be shipped to a foreign government without previous recognition of that government. Although this point was won, it was in effect neither a victory for the United States nor a defeat for South American countries, which have been insisting on necessary recognition for the resolution, which was adopted unanimously, was accepted on condition that an agreement would be reached later as to how shipments of war material can be effected when the importing country is in the throes of a revolution.

In other words, when an important country is enjoying peace the United States is free to permit the shipment of arms without being tied down to granting recognition of the purchasing government. Apparently this hinges upon the views of the Americans.

The cases of former President Obregon of Mexico and President Alessandri of Chile are cited as examples where Americans might have the wish to dispatch arms, but where the conditions of recognition would make this impossible. By today's accord the convention read:

"The export (of arms) shall be or direct supply to the government of the importing state, or with the consent of such government to a public authority subordinate to it."

The clause of the draft convention on which the above will be substituted says that licenses are not to be granted for direct supply to a government recognized as such by the government of the exporting country.

Another article of the draft convention, which bears upon this same subject and which may create difficulties when it is discussed, deals with the shipment of arms in time of war or revolution. It declares that all restrictions concerning shipments to any belligerent will be suspended from operation until the restoration of peace, provided the belligerent has been recognized as such by exporting countries and that this recognition has been previously communicated to the other signatory powers.

From the American standpoint there was a second significant development today. Voted through the official delegation notification was practically given to the world that the United States government for the moment at least, wishes to have no official relation with the league council. That is how the delegates tonight generally interpret the sense of an amendment filed with the conference secretary by Representative Theodore E. Burton relative to the appointment of a central international office to collect and publish statistics and information regarding the trade in arms.

The draft convention specifies that this office shall be established by the league council. The American proposal does not mention the council, and wants the office set up by the powers themselves, or by certain number of them, who shall either sign or ratify the convention, and desires that it be created only when the convention has come into effect.

This opens up an exceedingly delicate problem for the plenipotentiaries of other countries, who are members of the league.

League officials tonight emphasized the fact that article 24 of the covenant stipulates that all international bureaus for the regulation of affairs of international interest shall be placed under the direction of the league. Everything depends, apparently, on how far the league members go to placate the United States and insure approval of the proposed convention by the United States senate.

If Mr. Burton's amendment is accepted another clause in the draft convention must presumably be suppressed. This authorizes the league council to publish an annual report on the operation of the convention.

UNEMPLOYMENT DISCUSSED BY BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London, May 14—Parliament occupied itself tonight in the house of commons in discussions of unemployment. And in the house of lords on American film competition, and in neither case with any important result.

The laborites attacked the government for its failure to do anything to check unemployment, accusing it of political prejudice in refusing to give the same government help to stimulate trade with Russia that it had willingly given to France.

The minister of labor, Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland replying for the government, admitted that he saw no signs of any great industrial development such as followed the Napoleonic wars, unless it was in respect to the generation of electricity, and in this matter the government had prepared extensive plans, which he hoped to submit to parliament before autumn. Finally the labor motion impugning the government was defeated 32 to 91.

In the house of lords, Lord Newton called attention to the way in which American picture films were monopolizing Great Britain and the colonies and creating a competition the British film industry was incapable of struggling against. He wanted the government to institute a departmental committee inquiry.

Viscount Peel, first commissioner of works, admitted the seriousness of the question, but doubted whether a committee would bring to light any information not already familiar to the board of trade. The subject was dropped and no vote was taken.

CONVENTION OF TOBACCO MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Washington, May 14—(A. P.)—Tobacco not only is a means for recreation and enjoyment but is a major source of income from the American farmer, Secretary Jardine declared in a prepared address tonight at the National Convention of the Tobacco Merchants' Association.

As a farm enterprise, he said, tobacco is exceeded only by corn, hay, cotton, wheat and potatoes, and it had enriched domestic agriculture by millions of dollars. In the last sixty years, he related, the area planted to tobacco has almost quadrupled, and the economic relationship of tobacco to American agriculture has increased proportionately as farming itself has increased.

"Tobacco production," he continued, "is one of those agricultural enterprises which are extremely complicated. So far, largely because of their difficulty, relatively little progress has been made in the solution of the problems of the tobacco producer in comparison with the economic importance of the industry.

"These problems must be solved if we are to be assured of the continuance of tobacco production with profit, and respond in the spirit of service more and more to the demands and needs of the country in his field."

RUM ROW IS GROWING OFF CALIFORNIA COAST

San Pedro, Calif., May 14.—(A. P.)—Two steamers, estimated to be of approximately six thousands tons burden each, dropped anchor off the north end of Santa Catalina Island, about 40 miles at sea from this port today.

Lookouts, placed tentatively in the category of "rum runners" came to join the southern California whiskey row, at Santa Catalina Island is not a port of call for ocean going craft.

Reports from vessels putting in here, as well as from the federal ships Tamaroa and Vaughn, engaged in blockading the rum runners, are to the effect that "rum row" located generally near San Clemente Island, south of Santa Catalina, now consists of five vessels, one of the ocean-going freighter type and the others smaller.

N. Y. TO HAVE RADIO POLICE ALARM SYSTEM

New York, May 14—A radio police alarm system, believed to mark an advance in rapid communication for the prevention of crime and arrest of criminals, will be installed in New York within a month, Police Commissioner R. E. Enright announced today after a successful test of the system before the international police conference.

Two hundred receiving stations will be installed throughout the city, Mr. Enright said, and the selectiveness of the receivers is such that headquarters can transmit an alarm to any one of the 200 stations, or simultaneously to every station in the greater city. Each station will have its own wave length, and the switch of a key at police headquarters will pick out the one receiver or group of receivers to which the alarm is to be sent.

Broadcasting will be through the municipal radio station linked by wire with headquarters. The system has been worked out by the Western Electric company.

The system is expected to be of especial value in dealing with robbers fleeing in automobiles, in which case the alarm can be flashed immediately to railway stations, ferries or bridges.

EARNINGS OF STANDARD OIL CO. OF NEW JERSEY

New York, May 14.—Combined net earnings of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its subsidiaries in 1924 totaled $81,016,570 an increase of nearly $25,000,000 over 1923, Chairman A. C. Bedford announced in his annual report to stockholders today. Sales of petroleum products during the year he said, were the largest in volume in the company's history and were reflected in an expansion of more than $42,000,000 in gross income to a total of $409,995,806.

After the payment of $12,998,103 in preferred dividends the company's earnings were equivalent to $3.30 or 12.3 percent on the common share, compared with $2.10 per share earned in 1923.

The company's total surplus at the end of the year stood at $278,260,965, an increase of $46,536,896 over that of 1923. Inventories of merchandise were valued at $238,102,340. The balance sheet showed total investments of $172,737,094, of which $90,387,437 were in government and other marketable securities and cash of $31,128,736.

ALL NATIONS CALLED UPON TO OUTLAW WAR

Houston, Texas, May 14.—All nations of the world were called upon to outlaw war in resolutions adopted at the closing session of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World convention here today.

"War is the foe of trade," the resolutions said, "the destroyer of property created by labor and is the common enemy of mankind, therefore it should be outlawed."

President Coolidge also was asked to "place the outlawry of war in the forefront of any world conference he may call to consider disarmament or any other question relating to world peace."

The Spanish grandee is said to have been inspired by the principles of democracy and hopes his example will be followed by other members of the landed gentry.

MISS ABBY ROCKEFELLER WEDS DAVID M. MILTON

New York, May 14—(A. P.)—Miss Rockefeller, heiress to one of the greatest family fortunes in the world, was married to David Meriwether Milton, a young New York attorney, at a simple ceremony witnessed only by members of the immediate family and relatives. The wedding was held in the drawing room of the eight-story home of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., her father, at 10 West Fifty Fourth street.

The Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, known as the "Rockefeller" church, performed the ceremony.

Those in attendance were relatives of the bride and groom, with the exception of Everit Macy, an intimate friend of the bride's father. John D. Rockefeller, Sr., came from his Lakewood, N. J., home to attend the wedding and to spend a half hour receiving guests at the reception which immediately followed the wedding. His arrival was the signal fro a crowd of approximately 600 persons, watching in the street outside, to break through a police guard and crowd about the canopied entrance to the mansion for a glimpse of the veteran oil magnate.

The wedding ceremony started promptly at 4:30 o'clock. The organist struck up the Lohengrin wedding march and the procession passed down a specially constructed aisle, set off by flower decorated posts, chained together by white satin cords. The altar was covered with white silk.

The bridal march was led by Mr. Woelfin, followed by the groom and his best man, Mr. Albert Fink Milton, a brother. The maid of honor, Miss Ellen Milton, the groom's sister, came next wearing a dress of hydrangia blue chiffon.

Mr. Rockefeller, with his daughter Abby on his arm, followed. The bride wore a gown of silver colored net with a train embroidered with pointe de Paris lace. She wore a net veil with a very narrow honiton lace border, and carried orchids and gardenias.

A single ring ceremony was used. The word "obey" was omitted from the marriage vows.

A reception to 1,200 guests followed the wedding.

The Miltons' honeymoon will be a two month's sojourn in Europe, and they are taking with them a roadster in which to tour the continent. Upon their return they will take up residence at an apartment which has been selected but the address of which has not been made public.

The romance of the couple is one which began in early childhood when they were playmates together on the adjoining Rockefeller and Milton estates at Pocantico hills, Westchester county, N. Y. Their engagement was announced February 25 of this year.

Miss Rockefeller, who is 21, was educated at the Chapin and Brearley schools, New York. On November 22, 1922, she made her formal debut at an evening reception given by her parents at their town residence.

Mr. Milton, 25, is the son of David M. Milton, a lawyer, who died in 1913. His mother, who was present at the wedding, was Ellen, Hunt Fink of Louisville, Ky. She is said to be a direct debcendant of Meriwether Lewis, private secretary to Thomas Jefferson and one of the principals of the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Pacific coast, 1803-6.

FIRE DAMAGES OF $1,000,000 AT AUSABLE FORKS, N. Y.

Ausable Forks, N. Y., May 14—Fire today destroyed virtually the entire business section of the Essex county side of this village. The property loss was estimated tonight at nearly $1,000,000. It is feared a fireman may die of burns. Two churches, a bank, two wholesale and retail mercantile establishments, one hotel, a score of stores and offices, 20 residences and dwelling houses, a telephone exchange and several garages are in ruins.

The fire was discovered about one o'clock this morning in the basement of Candyland, a store occupying part of the R. Smith & company building.

North and south the flames swept buildings on each side of the Smith establishment and leaped to the east side of the street. Almost before the residents were aroused to the magnitude of the fire the whole business section was in flams.

While groping through the smoke in a building, Fred Lefevre, a call fireman from Plattsburgh, sustained burns which may cause his death. Lefevre was seen at a window on the third floor. Shortly afterwards Fred Lefevre, his clothing ablaze, burst through the front of the building and fell into the arms of bystanders.

Many families were made homeless because they did not realize that the fire would spread to such a vast area and did not begin to remove their belongings until too late.

Smith and company and the Ausable Supply company estimate their loss at $200,000 each, while the other damaged property is expected to bring the loss to nearly $1,000,000. All the business houses were partially insured.

FAVOR SALE OF ENTIRE SHIPPING BOARD FLEET

New York, May 14.—(A. P.)—All the United States shipping board's idle fleet should be sold to Henry Ford or whoever makes the highest bid, was the consensus of opinion of members of the national industrial council, here for the semi-annual meeting of the executive, public policy and advisory committees of the council. In replying to a written questionnaire today, some declared the fleet should even be given to Ford or scrapped by the government.

Orra L. Stone, general manager of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, blamed "the traitorous proposals" of Robert M. LaFollette, for the condition of the American merchant marine.

Riffians Dislodged By French In...

Strongly Organized System of Trenches Were Captured by the French in One Day.

Paris, May 14.—General De Chambrun's men, in cleaning out a strong position of the Riffians on the heights of Bibane, in Morocco, in a single day, are declared to have administered a salutary lesson to the invaders. In military circles it was said today that it required close fighting with cold steel to dislodge Abd-El-Krim's followers, but the fact that the French forces captured the strongly organized system of trenches in a single day of fighting gave basis to the belief that there was little hope left that the pretender would be able to win the tribes in the French zone to his cause.

The Riffians were strongly entrenched around the Bibane position, and the Tribesmen knew it.

It was said in official circles today that the French have abandoned all thought of asking for authority to pursue the invaders into the Spanish zone. They will simply attempt to give the Riffians a powerful jolt every time they appear on the French side of the border, notwithstanding the fact that this plan will make it impossible for the French to utilize their favorite method of turning the enemy's flank.

There are political considerations in this decision of the French as well as diplomatic. The communists in France are beginning agitation against any military action against the Riffians. They assert in manifestos that the campaign in Morocco has been undertaken at the behest of capitalists and the imperialist elements. The workmen in France are called upon to demand immediate peace in the Riff and to recommend fraternization by the French soldiers with Abd-El-Krim's men.

The French government, it is understood what is necessary to keep the French zone clear of rebels, but to go no farther.

HEAVY FIGHTING BETWEEN FRENCH AND TRIBESMEN

Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, May 14.—(A. P.)—Advices received from the French zone are to the effect that fighting between the French forces and the rebel tribesmen continues, with heavy losses on both sides. The French military hospitals are described as being filled to capacity, making necessary the evacuation of other hospitals of wounded.

It is asserted that the French high command is using native Moroccans in the operations and that they are receiving high praise for their conduct in battle in view of the fact that some of them fought the French for 12 years and only last year submitted to French rule.

The advices declare that the Riffian advance appears to have spent itself, but that French reinforcements continue to come in from Algeria. The reinforcements include heavy artillery with which it is intended to smash the gun positions of the Riffians. The Riffians have captured French airplanes which were forced on account of damages to land in rebel territory.

The French are making strenuous efforts to prevent another uprising among the tribesmen between Fez and Tazza, where ramifications of Abd-El-Krim's organizations have been discovered. The French are said to have found indications that soviet and Turkish and Egyptian nationalists are being used to aid the rebellion of the Moors.

EARL WOODWARD FOUND NOT GUILTY OF LARCENY

Middlebury, Vt. May 14—A jury in the Addison county court today spent only seven minutes in deliberation before finding Earl Woodward of Warren, farmhand and ex-convict, not guilty of larceny. The charge against Woodward had to do with a rifle valued at $10 which he took from the home of Walter Chatterton in Granville, when he fled with Chatterton's 11-year old daughter, Lucille, April 24. He will be tried on Tuesday on the charge of kidnapping.

When Woodward was captured after he had wandered with the child seven days and nights through the wooded mountain townships he said he had taken Lucille away from unhappy home surroundings in order that she might have an education. He said he took a heavy horse blanket belonging to Chatterton to wrap the girl up at night, and the rifle was to be used if wild animals were encountered in the journey. Since Woodward's arrest Lucille has been a ward of the state.

Lucille was called as a witness today. She said her father had told Woodward, who was employed at their farm, that he might use the rifle at any time, and that the day they left Chatterton had seen Woodward take it down from its straps on the kitchen wall. She said that in the course of their long tramp Woodward used the rifle only once. On that occasion he shot at a partridge and missed. She said Woodward had told her he intended to return the gun as soon as they reached White River Junction.

Roy Freeman, who traded the rifle to Chatterton in exchange for some potatoes, was a witness, and the girl's father also testified.

Plans Of Roosevelt Asiatic Expedition

George K. Cherrie, Explorer and Scientist, Will Direct Trip Into the Russian Pamirs.

Chicago, May 14.—A hurried trip into the Russian Pamirs, where the Ovis Polt will be hunted, a trip over the passes to the south and a tiger hunt in the heavy jungles along the Yarkland river, and a month or six weeks collecting Indian mammals is the program of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and his brother, Kermit, who are heading the James Simpson-Roosevelt Central Asiatic expedition for the Field museum.

James Simpson, backer of the expedition, received a letter today from Colonel Roosevelt outlining the program. Recent cable dispatches reported the Roosevelt brothers completing their plans at Bombay.

The route from the vale of Kashmir to the Pamirs will be followed by the Roosevelts alone, "travelling hard and light," while the heavy train pushes ahead under direction of George K. Cherrie, explorer and scientist, the letter said.

As the heavy train goes slowly by Maral-Vashi to Asku "in the main through jungles by the river where there will be the greatest of small life and where there are few if any large animals" Colonel Roosevelt wrote, he and Kermit will go to Tashkurghan, and thence into the Russian Pamirs.

"As soon as we have our pelt we will go to Kashgar," he wrote. "There we will arrange with the British resident to have our specimens sent out by the first caravan and press on to Asku where we will meet the Safari.

"From Asku we will push up over the Muzart pass and work up the Tekkes valley. After this we will come over the passes to the south and hunt in the heavy jungles that lie along the Tarim or Yarkland river from Sharyar west. That is where we will have a chance of getting a tiger.

"That will finish the trip north to the mountains. We will then strike back to Yarkland. It will be winter then. If possible Kermit and I will get over the pass and put in a month or six weeks collecting Indian mammals."

FIND THAT SKULL OF BABY WAS CRACKED IN HALF"

New York, May 14.—(A. P.)—Completing an official autopsy, Dr. Otto M. Schultze, medical expert, today reported to the district attorney that the skull of six-months-old William Winters, who died in a baby home conducted by Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisel-Volk in East 86th street., was "cracked in half." The fracture, he said, extended from the back of the the head to the front and "its suggested cause was violent contact with a flat hard surface."

This report immediately led to a special investigation by police to determine how the baby received its injuries. It also renewed study of information, furnished the district attorney several days ago by a nurse, that a baby in the home had been lifted by its feet and its head dashed against a wall. These charges had been thought repudiated by an autopsy yesterday on the body of 18 months old Agnes Toohey, which revealed that the child had suffered no physical injuries.

The autopsy on the exhumed body of the Winters child was caused by insistent demand of his mother who told police that she was not satisfied that her child had died from heart disease, as the original death certificate indicated.

LIQUOR SEIZED ABOARD STEAMER IN BROOKLYN

New York, May 14—More than 600 bottles of alleged champagne, liquors and gin and a quantity of alleged liquor-filled candies were seized today aboard the Lloyd Royal Belge steamer Mercier at its pier in Brooklyn. The Mercier arrived yesterday and the seizure today automatically prohibits the ship's leaving port until a fine, estimated at between $2,000 and $2,500, is paid.

Today's seizure, which was made by a searching squad from the office of the surveyor of the port, is the first of any consequence since the coast guard began its intensive blockade of rum row. Most of the liquor was found hidden inside and on top of the boilers and in the water and oil tanks.

He said he was prepared to place a hundred ships on the river to combat the liquor traffic.

WIDOW OF SLAIN MAN TAKES STAND IN MACRI MURDER CASE

Accused Girl Also Heard Mrs. Mary Lombardi, Her Own Aunt, Testify Against Her—During A Recess in the Afternoon Miss Macri Cried For Several Minutes—At the End of the Day's Session the Girl Defendant Was Faint—State is Nearing the End of Its Case.

New Haven, May 14—The state neared the completion of its case against Olympia Macri late this afternoon when Mrs. Carolina Bagnona, widow of John Bagnano, shot to death by Miss Macri last February 26, took the witness stand.

Mrs. Bagnano, who was formerly on friendly terms with the slayer of her husband, testified regarding a conversation between herself and Miss Macri which occurred a few weeks before the shooting. She told of the defendant suggesting to her that she go out with Miss Macri's brother and be untrue to her husband. Mrs. Bagnano testified that this suggestion was made to her after Miss Macri had ostensibly came to her house to ask aid in the cure of her baby.

During the early part of the trial Miss Macri had frequently told newspaper men that she was afraid of what Mrs. Carolina Bagnano would say when she took the witness stand. "I am afraid she will not tell the truth," the girl defendant reiterated on several occasions.

Eleven witnesses were called to testify by the state today as Judge Christopher L. Avery urged that steps be taken to speed up the trial now nearing the completion of the fourth week. State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling stated tonight that the state would probably complete its case tomorrow morning.

Today was a trying one for Miss Macri. In addition to sitting face to face with the slain man's widow while she testified against her, Miss Macri heard her own aunt, Mrs. Mary Lombardi as she took the witness stand for the state. At the end of the day's session the girl defendant was faint and had to be helped from the court room. During a recess in the afternoon she burst into tears and cried for several minutes before she was comforted by Mrs. Frank H. Baldwin, jail matron.

At the opening of court today, Patrolman Simon Reisang was recalled to the stand. He told of searching the car in which John Bagnano was taken to the hospital a few minutes before he died. Questioned by States Attorney Alling, witness said he saw no revolver in the car.

On cross-examination Defense Attorney Joseph Koletsky asked the witness if he had searched John "Fats" Bagnano, driver of the car. The officer said that he had not done so.

Miss Anna Morrissey, a nurse, and Dr. Marcus Backer, an intern, both of the staff of the New Haven hospital, were called. Miss Morrissey testified to searching Bagnano's pocket and said she found no revolver. Dr. Backer testified that Bagnano died seven minutes after he was admitted to the hospital.

SHIPPING BOARD MEMBERS OPPOSE SCRAPPING SHIPS

Washington, May 14.—(A. P.)—Members of the shipping board for the most part were in a mood little inclined toward a policy of wholesale scrapping of ships tonight, as they awaited the return of Chairman O'Connor from Detroit and Buffalo with details of his conversation with Henry Ford, concerning the purchase by the latter of 400 of the board's ships. Mr. O'Connor is expected here tomorrow.

Several commissioners expressed themselves frankly as opposed to any policy of scrapping, while others said the question should be inquired into thoroughly before any such policy was embarked upon. President Palmer of the fleet corporation, indicated that he thought some ships might be scrapped when the merchant marine and naval reserve needs had been cared for, and the belief was general that if any of the 200 ships died up should be scrapped, they would be for the most part the 300 idle steel lakers.

In any event, it was said, should a policy of scrapping be decided upon in any degree, bids would be invited in open market, in which case Mr. Ford would probably have to meet competition.

The lakers cost from $500,000 to $750,000 to build and some have been recently sold at from $25,000 to $35,000 net. Views as to the price they might command for junking vary from $5,000 to $10,000 each. Similarly, estimates varied as to the cost of their maintenance in idleness, ranging from $500 to $850 a year, while the total annual cost of maintaining the entire idle fleet was placed at different figures from $1,000,000 to more than $2,000,000.

OWEN D. YOUNGS FAVORS JOINING WORLD COURT

He spoke in acknowledgment of the Institute's gold medal awarded him "in recognition of his distinguished services to humanity."

With his advocacy of adhesion to a world tribunal, Mr. Young joined a plea for the substitution of actual participation and experiment in world affairs for debate on underlying principles, and for consideration and patience toward the nations in America's debt.

"Most of all," he said, "let us see to it that the great moral, physical and financial power of this country is not used to impose impossible and unfair terms, and so pave the way for future default with all the evil reactions and bitterness which that may bring to the next generation."

WILLIMANTIC

George W. Hickey assumed Thursday the full duties of the office of Mayor of Willimantic, this right being granted by an act of the State Legislature. The executive has been Acting Mayor since the death of Mayor Hermiedes Dion, one year ago last April.

In connection with his taking over of the office, Mayor Hickey issued a message to the citizens of Willimantic in which he urged all to "carry on" in these trying time and to address themselves with singleness of purpose to protect the fair name of the city. In conclusion the message read, "I am proud of our city and pledge myself to serve but one interest during my term as mayor, that is the best interest of the city and the welfare of her citizens."

Willimantic is highly interested in a favorable report of the House Thursday granting an appropriation of $200,000 for land and buildings at the Willimantic State Normal school, on the condition that the town of Windham pay one-third of the final cost. The appropriation was inadequate. Just $100,000 less than the amount requested by the state board of education to erect the proposed buildings which is to replace the Model school which burned down in January 1924.

John and Malcomb Miller and Joseph Diffly, an inspector of the state highway department pleaded guilty to charges of throwing missiles at passing automobiles in the Mansfield town court Wednesday night and were each fined $5 and costs, amounting to $31.55. The assessments were paid. The Millers are relatives of the Mill Brothers, contractors who are laying a stretch of state road between Mansfield Depot and Storrs. Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews was on the bench. Last Tuesday night the trio threw rocks at a Dodge coupe owned and driven by Edward A. Zimmerman, military instructor at the Connecticut Agricultural College as he was leaving his passenger, Byron Houston at the latter's home in Mansfield. Zimmerman saw three men rush off into the fields after the stones were thrown. He had just started back on his way home to South Coventry when a large stone crashed through the window of the car and narrowly missed striking his body. A second and third rock followed in quick succession, denting the hood and fenders. Zimmerman notified Officer Harrison Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks and following a few hours of investigation the offenders were taken into custody. The men laid their peculiar actions to too much liquor which they drank in Willimantic. They settled for the damage to Zimmerman's car. Grand Juror Frank M. Millard prosecuted the cases.

MEETING VOTES 12-MILL TAX; AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING

Willimantic, May 14—A double issue the levying of a city tax rate and the vote on the daylight saving question, brought out in spite of rain tonight, one of the largest and most keenly interested gatherings to attend a special city meeting in local history. A 12-mill tax was levied and the vote was against daylight saving.

About 1500 men and women crowded the hall and a number of extemporaneous speakers. There was an hour and a half of this speech-making to dispose of the two matters mentioned, which were the only items appearing in the warning.

Mayor George W. Hickey presided. City Clerk James S. Donohue read the notice. Regarding the levying of the tax, Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley gave an explicit financial statement which proved that a 12 mill tax, one mill additional to that of 1924, was necessary to follow the pay-as-you-go program to which the past few administrations have endeavored to adhere. The gross expenditures for the year will be $202,000; of this over $19,000 is to pay off municipal bonds which become due next October and $10,000 is for permanent improvements. The bonds are for $100,000 which are to be mainly paid off with a sinking fund of approximately $77,000. The interest on the bonds is $4,000. Twelve mills will net in round figures $190,000 on a nearly $16,000,000 tax list and miscellaneous income aggregate $15,000, giving the city fathers the opportunity to carry on the business without recourse to borrowing money.

Patrick J. Twomey moved for a 12 mill tax, John Reagan dammened this motion with a sordid picture of Willimantic's present conditions. He said that there were 385 empty tenements in the city and unless people lived within their means, green grass would soon be growing on Main street. He recommended that the younger generation be allowed to inherit the burden of debts and therefore moved for a 10 mill tax which would net slightly over $158,000.

Lyman Main and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton appeared as hearty sponsors of a tax that would pay the bills. They pointed out that the people of their own accord, had accented the proposed budget. Regarding the subject, who would bear the bulk of a few additional mills, Capt. Fenton showed that in the average taxpayer the difference between 10 and 12 mills would mean about $3 while to the mill owner and other holders of large properties, it meant $5,000 or more. None of the latter class appeared to protest a higher rate. The 12 mill tax, due June 15, next, was levied by acclamation.

The daylight time issue brought out a flow of warm words. Town Clerk Fenton took the floor without resolution favoring daylight time, on the ground that the stubbornness of Willimantic against stepping in line with its sister towns was an economical loss to the community. Miss Amie M. Hooker, James Casey, John Reagan and Jay Haggerty appealed against the movement. James Haggerty was the Socrates of the evening. He attacked the store clerks, for having sponsored daylight time. He referred to them as hard-working, horny-fisted clerks, who just wanted to get out early in the afternoon to play golf. He said that very few of the boys with their sawed off trousers had marched down the streets with a gun, when Uncle Sam called them. Evading the question as the time people would retire, he said that the worker would suffer by having to arrive one hour earlier.

Albert J. Piche explained the standing of the clerks on the matter and Capt. Fenton, in brief but convincing remarks defended the clerks, relative to their share in the world war. Upon the taking a second verbal vote, the chair was convinced that the original motion had been defeated.

The meeting adjourned at 9.30 o'clock.

FOURTEEN STRIKERS' CASES CONTINUED TO TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 14—The fourteen cases against the striking operatives of the American Thread Company were ordered continued until Friday afternoon, at two o'clock, when the police court convened to hear the cases at two o'clock Thursday. Judge Frank H. Foss was on the bench. Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, appeared as temporary representative of the strikers and asked for the continuance, to give the workers time to secure proper counsel.

While the attorneys were conferring in the ante-room, two more cases were added to the list when state police officers brought in Sava Matchink and his wife, Annie Matchink of North Windham, on charges of breach of peace, interference with an officer while in the performance of his duty and intimidation of a state witness.

The trouble was caused when the Matchinks tried to induce their daughter, Annie, 18, an employee at the Elms, the company boarding house, to return home and not appear as a witness against the strikers. These two cases will be taken up with the others. The local police department had a hand in five of the cases in which the accused were arrested on warrants sworn out by persons who alleged intimidation, assault or breach of the peace.

Following is the docket as prepared by Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey: Frank Czajka, intimidation; Jeanette St. George, Celina St. George, Aldea Bertrand, Mary B. Bertrand, Mary Dablantlot, Julia Faucher, assault and breach of the peace; Katie Chebus, assault and breach of the peace, Ollie Rock, breach of the peace, Peter Nicholas, breach of the peace, Clarence Maine, John McCarthy, Mollie Parent, Harvey Charron, breach of the peace. The limited space in the spectators' gallery of the courtroom was filled, half an hour before court, making it necessary for hundreds of strikers and others interested to remain in the corridors and out into the street facing the police headquarters.

The strikers of the American Thread Company took a unanimous vote at their mass meeting in the Gem Theatre Thursday morning to discontinue all shouting, tumultuous talk and the escorting of employes to their homes, with a view of complying with the requests of Superintendent of State Police Robert T. Hurley, who stated that these acts would have to be eliminated, in order to avoid further arrests. Talks on the necessity of a peaceful picket line not only to stop arrests which are taking on a wholesale magnitude but also to maintain the model attitude which the local strikers have held, were made by Organizer Mary Kelleher and James Carsey of the local strikers' committee.

Organizer Thomas F. Callahan of Philadelphia delivered the principal address. He cautioned the strikers to obey the law at all times and made note that trivial acts which would be considered harmless at any other time would be misunderstood at this time and lead to the intervention of the police. Miss Kelleher asked for a strengthened picket line which would do its duty without shouting or demonstration of any kind and would avoid congestion of the street or sidewalk.

This practice of being more careful in behavior as regards minor violations was started Thursday morning and worked out well. It was noted that several of the employes who have previously been escorted on foot to and from their homes were brought through the mill gates Thursday morning in one of the American Thread company's large trucks which was equipped with seats. Regarding the serving of an injunction to prevent a large picket line at the mills, Miss Keleher stated that she hoped that with newly restored order such a procedure would not be taken. If an injunction should be resorted to, it would be adhered to, however, she said.

MAYOR HICKEY TO DEVOTE ENTIRE TIME TO HIS OFFICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 14—Mayor George W. Hickey made announcement on Thursday that under present conditions he had obtained an indefinite leave of absence from his position at the local American Thread company plant and would devote his entire time and ability to the fulfillment of the duties of his office. Mayor Hickey has been employed in an official capacity at the plant for about 15 years. His action is not a resignation and entitles him to return to his duties with the company at such a time as he deems advisable.

In his statement he continues: "We are facing a critical situation in our industrial life. This is a time for sober reflection and I feel certain I correctly interpret the wishes of the citizens wh odesire the enforcement of all laws and the right of all citizens to be safeguarded. I stand firmly and unequivocally for law and order. The chief of police has been instructed that the public peace must be maintained and all citizens and property must be protected. This a paramount duty at this time."

DANIELSON

The petition is in the hands of the selectmen for a special town meeting to be held next week, to consider the appointment of a committee to further inquire into and report upon the advisability of the enlargement of Killingly High school. This is a sequence of the work done a few months ago by the Killingly High School Alumni association and the student body of the school in raising money toward a fund intended eventually to be of sufficient proportions to meet the cost of building an addition to the school to provide for various requriements that the growth of the school warrants.

If the town votes at the special town meeting that has been petitioned for to appoint a committee as recommended, this committee likely will report on its findings in time for definite action to be taken by the electors at the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October. Members of the town school committee are signers with others of the petition for the special town meeting.

Such an addition as has been thought of for the high school likely would represent a cost of about $50,000, as much as the contract price for the present high school building when it was erected in 1907. The addition would provide space for a domestic science department, a manual training department and a gymnasium.

The importance of the project to be considered at the proposed special town meeting is sufficient to command the attention of every elector and taxpayer of the town of Killingly. It is already a matter of very general discussion. It has many supporters, many who are not so enthusiastic and many who evidently have not formulated, as yet, a definite opinion as to what their attitude will be when the time comes to vote. A large meeting, a full discussion and study of the question now seems likely. The matter is one that should command more attention than any project Killingly has been called upon to consider as a town during the past half dozen years.

Announcemnet was made Thursday that the following teachers have been definitely engaged to teach in Killingly during the school year opening next September:

High school: Ernest R. Warren, Ralph D. Brundage, Marion D. Chollar, Louise W. Danielson, Adan A. Danielson, Roberta A. Horton, Iva M. Bryant, Flora E. Shippee.

Danielson: Grace M. Stanton, Emma J. Keach, Alma K. Sayles, Anna M. Hammett, Beatrice B. Beckett, Edith L. Fuller, Esther C. Holley, Elizabeth R. Woodworth.

Dayville: Mildred E. Kelley, Maude T. Capron, Arline E. Babson.

Goodyear: A. Laura Chase, C. Ella Day, Mabel C. Frink, Agnes W. Jacobs.

Attawaugan: Margaret M. MacConnell, Mary E. MacConnell, Rena B. Morse.

Ballouville: S. Eloise Shelton, Marion P. Burnham.

East Killingly: Ruth B. Kelly, Sophia H. Burdick.

Valley: Myrtle H. Miller.

The following teachers have been appointed for the Brooklyn schools:

East Brooklyn: Cora M. Logee, Ethel H. Lyon, Marjorie F. Russell, Helen D. Nash.

Brooklyn Center: Mabel M. Ennis, Ella E. Lawton, Bertha G. Spaulding.

Richmond L. Scott, principal of Danielson graded school, has resigned to attend Boston university and obtain a degree. Mrs. Scott, who has been teaching at South Killingly, also will leave at the end of the present school year, when Mr. Scott completes his work here. Miss Winifred E. Duffy, eleven years principal at Dayville, will teach in Putnam next year. Mrs. Clara M. Williams, at her own request, has been granted a year's leave of absence. Miss Edna G. Shepard, of the high school faculty will fill a position at Wisconsin university next school year and will do further graduate work there.

Roland Harquoil, formerly of Attawaugan, is making good as an athlete at Fort Slocum, where he is enlisted in the United State army as a member of the Casual company of the Coast Artillery command stationed there. Harquoil recently was awarded first honors in the shot put and discus throw, winning the former event with a toss of 33 feet and the latter with a throw of 112 1-2 feet in competion with the best athletes that could be selected from among the 1,800 men at the station. He was congratulated by the officers, cheered by the men and presented a gold watch, as an award for his prowess. Harquoil is but 18.

Boys and youths who, on their own account, or that of their parents, will want something less than half a million dollars in case they are run down and injured by automobilists while they are riding their bicycles at night about the borough, are legion. These bicyclists scorn to carry lights and accept the chance of being hailed to glory while doing stunt riding on unlighted machines in streets where traffic is constant. The police have constantly warned against this riding bicycles without lights. Yet the practice persists. In Water, Franklin and Furnace streets there is nightly violation of the rule. And it is true also of other streets in widely scattered sections of the borough. A motorist can't get 50 feet without having a police whistle calling him to halt. How about letting the bicycle riders listen to the music for a while?

Yeah, this is the day—straw hat day. The day that cringing man takes off his earmuffs and puts on his summer headgear. And they talk about groundhog day! It appears that someone has put man in a hole, too, and he doesn't crawl out until fashion decrees that he may. He doesn't go around swinging a stone club any more and proclaiming that he is lord of the universe. Custom prohibits it—and many obeys.

While it may not be said that there is a building boom on in Danielson this spring, it is a fact that there is much building and that other work not yet undertaken will be getting attention within a few weeks. The forecast is that Danielson will have a net gain of a number of dwellings and various other structures during 1925, and that the boost to the grand list will be material.

The many members of Putnam lodge of Elks resident in Danielson and vicinity have been notified that the annual ladies' night entertainment of the lodge is scheduled for Thursday evening of next week. The programme is for a dinner at the Elks home followed by vaudeville and dancing at the state armory on Livery street.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, of Brooklyn, the secretary, has sent out notices to members of Quinebaug Pomona grange. A morning session will transact business. There will be a recess for a dinner to be served by members of Natchaug grange. Numbers on the programme for the lecturer's hour during the afternoon session are as follows: Piano duet, Helen L. Wilter and Myra L. Fink, of Brooklyn grange. The C. A. C. Dramatic club under the direction of Prof. Seckerson will present a play. Musical numbers by members of Natchaug grange. Secretary John H. Corbett of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. will deliver an address on the subject Friends of the Boys. There will be a vocal solo by Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam, and selections by the Warrenville Grange orchestra.

Earl Geer of Springfield is visiting here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Geer.

Asserting that times really have changed, an old-timer pointed out Thursday that there has not been a runaway here in years. Whaddaya mean, horses? inquired a flippant and impious listener of the younger generation.

A county convention of the W. C. T. U. at Putnam next Thursday will be attended by a delegation from the Danielson union.

Thursday evening at Columbia hall in Dayville, a successful three-night carnival under the auspices of the Men's club of that place was brought to a close.

Members of the Mystic Shrine from town hereabouts will be in Springfield today (Friday) for the dedication of the Shriners' hospital.

Henry C. Siegel of Bridgeport was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Postmaster E. H. Keach has department plans for Mailing week, which will be broadcast through the press during early June.

Add to the troubles of motor vehicle owners, the bad feeling they are getting out of the announcement of another cent a gallon advance in the price of gasoline.

The Service battery will get away for the annual encampment, to be held this year at Tobbyhanna, Pa., on July 5, the morning after.

Further increases in the St. James' school fund have resulted from a series of whists that have attracted large attendance.

Road crews continued Thursday the work of applying oil to streets in the borough.

MARS QUERIES ONECO ON TOPIC OF SUNSPOT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, May 14—Radio from Mars addressed to Cloud Digger intercepted on receiving set here by a Red Hot Mamma, Thursday afternoon, read: "Sunspots of 60,000 miles, approximate, due to flappers here smoking cigarettes. Won't you please help? Please send half column for next issue of Asbestos Ailurer, describing how horrid smokers obscuring the sun makes that glowing orb look from the earth Pay you when you come up here, sometime."

PUTNAM

Charles Derzuk, of Putnam, now serving a term in state's prison at Wethersfield, has made application for pardon, January 1 of this year he was sentenced to prison for from two to four years and fined $1,500 for violation of the liquor laws.

Putnam lodge, No. 574, B. P. O. Elks is to hold the annual Ladies' night Thursday evening, May 21. The committee in charge has arranged a fine program. At eight o'clock supper will be served in the Elks' rooms after which a high class vaudeville performance will be given in the state armory on Livery street and will be followed by dancing.

Putnam grange held Neighbors' night at the last regular meeting. Dudley grange furnished the entertainment. Refreshments were served under the supervision of Mrs. Clifford Mungeon. At the close of the meeting there was dancing until midnight.

At the meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., two reports were of especial interest. Mrs. William Wheaton reported the proceeds of the Brown Glee club concerts as $175.25 and the registrar announced the admission of 16 new members, making the present membership 175. Israel Putnam school band of 16 pupils chosen from the first grade entertained most acceptably and won much praise for themselves and their director and teacher, Miss Gertrude Warner. Mrs. C. D. Sharpe read an interesting report from Mrs. Alice Carpenter, the delegate to the Continental congress at Washington, D. C.

Food sale for the benefit of Baptist Missions, at Community Rooms, Savings Bank Building, this (Friday) afternoon, 2 to 5.—adv.

Archie Macdonald is again able to be on the job as postmaster, having been down a few hours every day this week. He shows the effects of the serious operation which he underwent but is steadily gaining strength.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of the Norwich State sanatorium will be at the Day Kimball hospital, Tuesday, May 19.

Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of Holy Trinity church, Pomfret, made an eloquent address to the Knights of Columbus at Webster, and was also the speaker at the graduating exercises of the nurses' training school at St. Joseph's hospital at Willimantic.

Walter D. Torrey of the mechanical department of the Observer company is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital. He has been suffering with a severe cold which his physician feared might develop into pneumonia and he was sent to the hospital as a preventative measure. He was reported Thursday as much better.

Headquarters Company, 43rd Division, will hold a Field day, Saturday, June 6, on the ball grounds on Main street. There will be an interesting programme of athletic events with prizes valuable enough to attract good entrants. In the evening there will be a dance. Arthur C. Davison is chairman of the committee in charge.

Rev. Nathan B. Burton, of Putnam, is to preside at the sessions of the annual convention of the Norwich district, Epworth League to be held at the Methodist church at Willimantic, Friday throughout the day and evening. Representations will come from all parts of Connecticut, east of Hartford and from Westerly, R. I., and Millville, Mass. The convention will plan for the annual institute at the Willimantic Camp ground in August. Speakers will include Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, new pastor of the New London Methodist church and Dr. William S. Mitchell, pastor of the United Methodist church Worcester, Mass., and an author.

Herman Putnam Sawyer, who died in Chicago, April 30, leaving his wife and three children, was born in South Woodstock, May 10, 1870, his parents being James and Sophia Putnam Sawyer. He has made his home in Chicago for many years. His uncle whose name was Putnam built the church at South Woodstock and his grandfather was one of its first ministers.

The historic Vernon Stiles Inn, at Thompson, continues a very popular hotel with motorists.

Mrs. C. D. Arnold, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital because of an infected foot caused by an ingrowing nail, is reported as improving.

Roland Harquoit, an 18 year old Putnam boy, now a soldier in Uncle Sam's army, has just won two events and broken a record from a big field of contestants in a military athletic tournament. He is son of Zepharon Harquoit, owner of the City Hotel, and is a member of the Casual Company of the Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Slocum, New York.

One of the prizes was a handsome gold watch, but the boy took more pleasure in winning the events than in the trophies. In a letter to his mother he said:

"I am sending home the watch I won in the contest. I don't know what it is worth but the honor of winning it is worth a whole lot more."

His description of how it happened is interesting.

"You see, every year," his letter read, "the 18th infantry goes on a trip for three months and the day before they leave is a Field day in which the best men in the companies are chosen to take part. My sergeant asked me to enter some of the events, but I told him I had had no experience in putting the shot or in discus throwing. He insisted and I said I would do the best I could. I am pretty strong and I thought my weight and build would get me somewhere, although I didn't expect to finish first.

"There were 1,800 soldiers on the field with all the officers, and the ones who took part were picked men. After the running and jumping events an officer called for those who were to take part in the shot put, to line up and give their names. I gave mine and then slipped back and was glad a big fellow pick up the ball and put it. There were thirty-three men in this event and they looked to me like they were built like Samson. One of them, a big fellow, made the best throw, 30 feet. I said to myself, 'I can beat that,' and I bowed my head and said a little prayer and then picked up the ball and let it go with all my strength. You ought to have heard the shouting. I had thrown it thirty-one feet, a foot farther than the best man. On the second throw I threw thirty-three feet. None of the others could equal that and so I won.

"All the fellows slapped me on the shoulder and my officers congratulated me and told me to go in and win the discus contest.

"The ones before me threw it 85 88 and 90 feet and then one made 96 feet and another 98 feet.

"'Harquoit, you're next,' shouted the lieutenant, and I made my try. They all cheered me because I had won the shot put and they knew I had had no training; but you ought to have heard those cheers from 1,800 men. Well, I started to swing it back and forth, made a lean and let it go with all my strength. I couldn't believe it when they told me I had thrown 113 1-2 feet. And how they cheered again! The 18th wanted to win and their best man tried hard, but he could only make 103 feet. Then the lieutenant, who was in charge of events, came up to tell me that I had made a throw to be proud of, that I had broken all the records of the Island for discuss throwing.

"When he gave me this watch I am sending you."

Partly in recognition of his victory and because he has a good record he got a pass that permitted him to come home for the week end.

WOMAN CLOTHING THIEF STOLE FIVE MEN'S SUITS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 14—The boldest, most novel and most audacious theft in the annals of the local police occurred here today. Two strangers, a man and a woman, walked into the store of Colt Bloomer and Co., at 11 o'clock this morning and while the man was pricing shirts, the woman took three suits of men's clothing from the hangers and secreted them under her coat. They left the store without making any purchases. The woman seemed completely at her ease and there was nothing to indicate that she was carrying under her coat the three men's suits, large size at that.

Farther down the street they stopped at Milot and Williams' clothing store and secured two more suits in the same way. Both walked leisurely out of the store, after the man had declared that he would have to have shirt made to order. With five suits concealed under her coat the woman seemed unconcerned. They made their way back to the railroad station where they attracted no attention.

They had left two large suitcases with the baggage master William Kilburn and from their weight he judged them to be empty. The woman took the cases to the lavatory and transferred to them the spoils of the morning's adventure. Then she gave them back to Kilburn and had him check them to Danielson. The increased weight of the cases and the actions of the woman aroused his suspicions and he called the police station. Captain Jarvis made a quick investigation and then he and the clothing merchants drove to Danielson by automobile. They found the couple at the railroad station, put them under arrest and brought them back to Putnam.

In the cases were the stolen suits with the labels of the local merchants on them. When searched at the police station $500 was found in the woman's stocking and the man had $250.

They gave their names as Joseph Starr and Anna Swick and their homes as Yonkers, N. Y. It was learned later that they had bought a mileage book at the Grand Central station in New York yesterday. They made no further statements. The woman appears to be about 40 and her companion 60. As the value of the stolen property is in excess of $100 they will be charged with grand larceny in the court tomorrow. On examination of the woman's coat, several hooks were found on the lining strongly fastened, to these the suits were attached.

JEWETT CITY

Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. F. met at the home of Mrs. B. C. C. Bliss, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Bliss and her daughter, Mrs. William McNicol were hostesses. The regent, Mrs. Henry Olson presided. During the business meeting the chapter voted to appropriate nine dollars toward flags for use on Memorial day. It was voted that the prizes of three and two dollars offered by the chapter to the graduating class of Riverside Grammar school for the two pupils ranking the highest in history for one year, be established as a permanent prize, in honor of the chapter's first regent, Mrs. Hannah Chaplin Avery Patridge, now living in Hartford. The regent appointed the following committees: Nominating, Mrs. G. H. Jennings and Mrs. E. C. Bliss; programme, Mrs. Alice Brown and Mrs. C. E. Armstrong; auditing, Mrs. Herbert Wyatt and Mrs. J. H. Tracy; decorating boulder & Pachaug, Mrs. James Crary, the patron saint, Mrs. E. F. Burleson and the Memorial tree, Miss Ida Foster. Mrs. G. A. Haskell of Faith Trumbull chapter, Norwich, who attended the national congress in Washington gave an interesting report of the meetings which was greatly appreciated. At the close of her talk Mrs. Olson on behalf of the members, presented her a basket of flowers. The hostesses served a most delicious lunch during the social hour.

Miss Anna Bugbee found white trillium, swamp apple blossoms and yellow violets Wednesday.

It is difficult sometimes for local botanists to identify flowers brought in by children, when they say they find them growing wild. Frequently they find that they were gathered in a garden, or are an escape from a garden. Last week a flower said to be found "near the river" caused much excitement as it looked like a new find. Investigation proved that the supposed harebell was a valerian growing in a garden "near the river."

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce held in the American Legion room Wednesday evening when Ben Schleifer the president presided, much business was transacted. A regular old fashioned Fourth of July celebration was discussed and a committee composed of John Dolan, B. C. Bliss, Jacob Weschler, Thomas Wakeley and Charles Russenas were appointed to consult with the merchants and manufacturers in town to find out if they will be willing to enter into the project. A field day with prizes would be one of the features. It could be made a great time for Jewett City if everybody would stay at home and enter into the plans. A flood light has been promised for the railroad crossing and danger lights at either side of Lisbon bridge. The dangerous curve at the Woodward school house is to be properly posted, all through the efforts of the chamber of commerce.

Amateur night at Finn Opera House attracted a big house. Arthur Legesse performed acrobatic stunts. Sidney Purple played a banjo and sang and received second honors. Harry Hegyes was another acrobatic performer. Bill Liberty, Jewett City's wonder juggler and magician took first honors. One of his stunts was balancing seven chairs on his chin. Eleven chairs was the number advertised, but four were broken in the afternoon.

Mrs. Minnie Hebart of New York City is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. R. Waters.

Mrs. E. B. Cheney was in charge of a bean and salad supper served in the Methodist church vestry Thursday evening. Her committee was Mrs. Ella Geer, Mrs. G. H. Thornton, Mrs. Irving Thornton, Mrs. Webster, Mrs. Thomas Gray, Mrs. Merton Bugbee, Mrs. Harold Jeffers, Mrs. Robert Robertson and Mrs. William McDowell.

The funeral of Mrs. M. E. G. Wilson was held at her home Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. E. E. Scates officiated, speaking from the words, Faithful unto death, and reading a sympathetic poem. Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. George Sparks, Miss Ida Foster and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox sang Rock of Ages and Nearer My God to Thee. Burial was in Robbins cemetery; the bearers were Leland and Lemuel Green, W. H. Parkhurst and A. C. Burdick. There were flowers from Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Parkhurst, Leland Green, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Green and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brown, Misses Lillian and Lucile Stetson, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Post, Clark Coon, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burdick and family, Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Rice, the Jewett City Baptist church, the Ladies' Aid society, Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughter and the W. out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Rice of Central Village, Mrs. Lydia Brown, Miss Lucile Stetson and Mrs. Annie Potter of Norwich, Mrs. Henry Congdon and Miss Gallup of Mocsup, Mrs. Rena Barber and daughter of Fitchville, Mrs. Martin Chapman and Mrs. Henry Johnson of Pendleton Hill.

MISUSING THE FLAG

From time to time as the flag is displayed in connection with decorations attention is called to the manner in which it is misused. On Flag day and other occasions emphasis is laid upon the display of proper respect for the national emblem and there have been established certain rules of etiquette concerning the flag for the purpose of preventing what is regarded as the misuse and disrespect for the flag.

Probably there are great numbers who would give no heed to any departure from the code of etiquette concerning the flag, if in fact they would recognize it. The number is as large as that which fails to lift the hat as the flag goes by. It is not because of disrespect, but because they have not been properly taught in that regard so as to carry it in mind for use when occasion requires.

Occasionally there are times when the flag is used for decoration purposes in a manner that is thoughtless. The effort to get the desired effect leads to many violations of the rules for hanging the flag, but perhaps attention is called to but one such instance in a dozen.

In the army and the navy there are fixed rules for the use of the flag, and because of what are regarded as indignities there are those who believe that a law should be enacted by congress regulating the use of the flag in public places. Perhaps that is the only way in which it can be brought to the attention of the general public in such a manner as to get adequate respect, but it would seem that there ought to be no such requirement if there was proper instruction concerning the flag and the methods of using it, and those who are engaged in public decoration were given to understand that they would be expected to take a lead in living up to the code of flag etiquette.

Possibly a little more insistence upon the correct use of the flag on all occasions would bring those who are responsible for the thoughtless misuse to realize the part which rests upon them in setting the example.

AMERICAN OPPORTUNITIES

Because of the advantages to be had here millions of people from other countries have been eager to come here. More would have come than has if it had been possible for them to get in. Those who have come have had varying success and there have been utter failures. The opportunity and the accomplishments of many have not failed to reach the ears of those back home, and it is cases like those which have been recently made known in New York which make others all the more eager to get into the land where prosperity is waiting for those who desire it.

There was nothing so extraordinary about the announcement that Frederick Brown had given a million dollars to a federation for the support of Jewish philanthropic societies in New York city, that he had also made another contribution for similar work, or that Benjamin Winter had purchased the Vincent Astor residence in New York which is assessed for $2,345,000 and on which site he will erect a seven million dollar apartment hotel.

The real interesting feature of the two news items was that both of these men were aliens without wealth when they came to this country, and that they stand out as examples of what the countries does for those who are willing to do for themselves. Mr. Brown came from Czechoslovakia a score of years ago, and four years previously Mr. Winter landed here from Poland without funds but a willingness to do what opportunity offered. They have plainly made the most of their chances and they have much today to show for it. And they are by no means the only ones who have done equally well, or even greater under much the same circumstances.

From Cleveland there also comes the story of an appreciation of the advantages of this country by the return to that city of a wealthy resident who found it advisable to go back to his home in Hungary when he was too closely pressed in his business activities because of bootleg operations. He avoided a fine and possibly imprisonment by going away, and he had plenty of money to live on elsewhere but returns to pay whatever is demanded of him for the sake of regaining the privileges and advantages which go with residence in this country.

The case of the third man differs decidedly from that of the first two, but in every instance there is keen regard for this country and what it has to offer.

BORAH'S COURT VIEWS

When Senator Borah talks concerning the world court he is talking for himself. That he voices the sentiments of others is not improbable, but perhaps more attention will be paid to what he has to say upon this subject because he happens to be at present chairman of the foreign relations committee.

In his address this week in Boston he did not vary the position that he had previously taken. He was strongly against the league of nations, and so was the country, but to make that the basis for opposing a world court does not appear to be entirely justified. The desirability of having international questions submitted to an international court is supported by large numbers and it would not be surprising if they were quite as large as those against the league of nations.

Senator Borah isn't unalterably opposed to a world court. He favors such an institution but he would have it absolutely free from the league of nations. On that score he does not differ with world court advocates but he does not support the idea of the reservations which have been proposed by this country in case it joins, such reservations being drafted for the purpose of nullifying the league's effect so far as this country is concerned.

On the other hand the senator from Idaho would not have this country adhere to the world court until there had been perfected a code of international law, and this in spite of the fact that authorities on international law maintain that there is adequate international law and that a code is undergoing additions and changes from time to time. It is necessary to make a start somewhere and perfection would be obtained only through operation.

Without a question Senator Borah takes his position in all sincerity and it is well that proper caution and consideration should be exercised, but should his ideas be carried out there would appear very slim chances of this country ever participating in an international court of justice.

NATIONAL DEFENSE DAY

When the suggestion is put forth in behalf of Defense day that it should be combined with Armistice day, or at least held on November 11 as National Defense day, it of course raises opposition from that large number which is striving for peace in the future.

They do not look at the fact that National Defense day can be justly regarded as one of the important steps in behalf of peace, but there can be little surprise over the opposition to the idea of combining the days. There are those who may have thought that the taking stock of the defensive powers of the nation might well take place on the day when the country was marking the closing of the World war, but such would simply bring to mind the opposite of what Armistice day signifies.

On the eleventh of November there is observed the closing of the war, the signing of peace and the ending of the conflict across the water. It concerns peace that is accomplished and the anniversary of the momentous occasion that marks the stopping of war's greatest devastation to the minds of the opponents of the joint observance calls for something different than the semblance of preparations for another clash at arms.

The idea of reducing the number of national holidays will meet with approval but if Defense day is to be combined with another day it would appear to be more in keeping if it should be combined with the Fourth of July. The value of Defense day is not to be decried for we cannot wisely shut our eyes to our own defense even though our thoughts and hopes are stressed in behalf of peace.

MUST EXPECT COMPETITION

In connection with the possibility that Henry Ford might buy up to 40% of the shipping board vessels the statement is made that any such deal would not be put through without putting the vessels up to bid, thus meaning that Mr. Ford would be subject to competition.

Mr. Ford has not stated what he would pay for the vessels. His willingness to buy would depend upon "a fair price," but the putting of the vessels up to bid is no more than should be expected and it is probably no more than Mr. Ford has in mind. His interest is enough to invite certain competition.

Just how stiff the competition he might anticipate would depend upon the effect that the knowledge that Mr. Ford wants them would have. Speculation will be heavy over what he sees in them. Many of the government ships have been offered before. It has been indicated by certain ones who have looked them over that they won't not take certain of them as a gift. Certainly the prospect of selling them abroad for junking holds no great promise for a very large return. But the fact that Mr. Ford is interested may be sufficient reason for developing an interest among others, of that results in getting a better price than might otherwise be obtained, or even if it has no other effect than the sale of the ships to Mr. Ford, it will result in a decided relief to this government. It would appear that Mr. Ford has offered new hope for the reduction of a large maintenance expense which gives no promise of being overcome unless some such disposition is made of the idle and poorly constructed fleet of wartime vessels.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, May 14—President Coolidge is taking no chances with his tax reduction program. Already the campaign is on in earnest. He has the jump on congress by six months, and it is quite apparent that he intends to make the most of it. His first attempt at scientific reduction was thwarted by those congressional demagogues who used the rich man "bug a boo" to cover petty politics among constituencies, which in the very nature of things, could not be versed in the intricacies of a perfect system.

The opportunity for such tactics this year will be considerably reduced. Into the states where the demagogues found the best opportunities of fooling the people last year the president is planning to send the most competent men in the administration to explain his tax program.

That is the meaning of Mr. Mellen's tour through the South. It is particularly significant that he went all the way to Mississippi to explain the A B C's of taxation reform to the constituencies of Pat Harrison and his neighbor Tom Heflin over in Alabama. A little later we will find Mr. Mellon in the middle west doing some educational and missionary work in states whose representatives in congress were largely responsible for blocking portions of the administration's program more than a year ago.

Meanwhile General Lord, director of the budget, has been carrying the gospel of economy throughout the country. It is rather a sad commentary on the personnel of congress that two of the busiest men in Washington must leave their desks to explain away the fables that have been spread by Senators and Representatives, but such is the fact.

General Lord and Mr. Mellon will be followed by other representatives of the president who will explain in detail how another $300,000,000 may be pared off the tax bill next year if the country will insist on honest action by a majority in congress. There is very little doubt that the campaign will succeed and that the program will be adopted at the next session with little change and less delay.

It is the Coolidge method of appealing to the good sense of the people directly rather than attempting to "trade" with certain members of the national legislature.

Secretary Hoover has caused a flurry among the "financiers" of Washington by proposing that a corporation be formed to finance low priced homes for government workers at fair rates of interest. Mr. Hoover has discovered that government employes who receive from $1,200 to $2,400 a year are paying from 20 to 30 per cent. interest on second mortgages which represent about half the face value of their homes. The "patriots" who hold the notes are greatly disturbed by the "interference" of the federal government in strictly local affairs.

As there is virtually no commerce in this city which has risen from a population of approximately 350,000 to almost 500,000 since the beginning of the war every other white citizen, not employed by the government, is in the real estate business. There is not enough business to go 'round. The result is that many of them have resorted to the loan shark trade as represented by the traffic in second, third and fourth mortgages. The department of justice has sought unsuccessfully to indict some of these gentry.

President Coolidge is receiving support for his economy program from sources least expected to assist. The federal trade commission, one of the pets of the Wilson administration, which has caused business men more trouble than any other single branch of the government, assisted materially the other day when two of its democratic members deliberately violated an order issued by the chairman. The publicity which followed showed the country quite clearly the type of activities of which the professional "commissioners" are capable. As of the present, of course, it is impossible for the president to reduce the expenses of the commission which are fixed by law, but the recent spectacle will assist him materially when he sends the estimates to congress next fall.

A similar spectacle in the shipping board a few weeks ago will strengthen the hands of the chief executive when the expenses of that organization come up for consideration. The two best bets in Washington today are that the functions and expenses of both of these institutions of the Wilson administration will be curtailed within twelve months.

The republican party, is a tariff party, and the tariff is one of the fundamental planks of its platform. It is a tariff party because those who have made this nation early foresaw that if we were to secure to the American workingman three square meals a day, a decent place to live in, and an opportunity to educate his children, and an equality of opportunity for advancement, that a strong firm protection barrier must be erected to safeguard him from the low-priced labor of Europe. The European wage-scale is improving, but it is worth noting that for all of its improvement in many cases European producers are able to meet the labor costs to pay a heavy customs duty and yet put the articles on sale at a lower price than the American-made products.

The interesting feature in the news of the day is that after years of free trade in England, English governmental authorities, faced with an extraordinary surplus of unemployed labor, which it is apparently impossible to place at work, are swinging slowly, but yet surely, towards the adoption of a protective tariff policy, similar in theory and method at least to that which we have in America. What has happened in England is what would happen in America if we relaxed our precedent. The lace industry in Nottingham has been practically destroyed by foreign competition. Key industry after key industry essential and vital to the life of the nation, has been driven to the verge of bankruptcy. The total unemployment in the country is a million and a quarter, 152,000 over the same period of last year. These are the facts and this is the story. When it is appreciated that our sale of wheat and of meat products drops materially with unemployment in America, the importance of the tariff to all our people, whether framers or manufacturers, is self evident.

In the last five-year period we are advised over 62,000 state and federal laws were enacted in the United States. Small wonder that the man who has to run a flivver, help in the spring house-cleaning and try to do a little planting under glass for his garden, is obliged to plead ignorance now and then because of lack of time to become acquainted with them when he is hailed up by the authorities for the violation of some one of these sixty-two thousand. A good law is only one for which a need is self-evident and generally agreed on by all of the people. The enactment of laws with the hope that the people will grow up to them is the poorest way out of a serious difficulty.

A man is never quite sure whether a woman is worried by her own troubles or by those of her neighbors.

THEIR NEW HOME

"Ethel Lambswool says they are going to build themselves a house!" cried the pretty little wife the instant her husband got one foot across the threshold at dinner time. "It made me just sick with envy hearing her tell about it. What I want to know is why we can't build one, too, and have things just as we want 'em?"

"Poor, deluded child!" said the placid husband, who was quite accustomed to such outbursts. "Just wait until I get off my galoshes and hang up my hat and I will tell you clearly in short words why we won't build a house and why the persons who do build 'em never get things as they want 'em. They may achieve precisely all they had in mind when they first planned the mansion but by the time they move in so many dozen friends have pointed out why the things should have been entirely different that they are very unhappy.

"I don't suppose you noted what went on while the Cottonbacks were erecting the nifty house they now occupy around the corner. Cottonback said they took a solid year to decide precisely what they wanted and he and Lulu were just crazy about the plans. 'Oh,' said Van Linnet, who took a trip abroad once and has been a connoisseur on almost everything ever since, 'so you decided on the Spanish effect, did you? Well, well, that's too bad! The Spanish has been so overdone out on the western coast, and, of course, you haven't the setting for it here that Spain itself has. Too bad you didn't go in for the French Gothic, with the iron balconies—such a feeling about the French style! Too bad! I am sure it will be very pretty, yes, indeed.'

"'Oh, are you going to have yellow plaster on the outside?' cried Lulu's aunt, who never could wear orange shades. 'Oh, why don't you have pale pink or even blue as they do abroad? It would be so original! I shall never forget those blue and lavender and purple and pink houses in the sunshine, with the Mediterranean in the distance—yes, I know that this is merely a little suburb, with no water outside the village mains, but I think it is your duty to give the languishing heights something to live up to, and I just hate yellow!'

"'Too bad your living room isn't bigger,' one cousin said after studying the plans solemnly for an hour, and the next woman who looked at them said it was a shame to have such a large room to take care of. Mrs. Bamp, Lulu's best friend, just wrung her hands when she was taken through the half completed house. According to her, they had got the living room chimney on the wrong end, the kitchen faced a most incorrect way, the staircase should have ascended from the other direction, there was not enough room in the butler's pantry, and for heaven's sake, when they were building a new place and could do as they chose, why hadn't they got it right? A bungalow would have been so much more appropriate than a two-story affair!

"Some people who kept an eye on the building's progress regretted because it looked so squatty. Others said wasn't it a shame it was so forbidding and towering in appearance, while many others declared that they certainly would have had a different chimney, a different entrance, different roof slopes, and, moreover, how could the Cottonbacks afford to build such an expensive house, and they'd rue the day!

"And then all of them galloped in on the house warming the Cottonbacks gave and everybody shouted that the house was perfectly grand and glorious. But the Cottonbacks' joy was poisoned because they distrusted their own taste after their long siege of withstanding criticism, and as for myself I have resolved——"

"Well, we'll start drawing plans right after dinner," cried the pretty little wife, quite oblivious to his remarks. "We've just got to have a house—only ours is going to be quite different from Ethel's because I can see ever so many things about hers that are entirely wrong!"

"Yes, we might just sort of plan one out," agreed the placid husband, who really was very easy to manage after all.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Joseph Rodman Drake, the Orphan Author of "The American Flag."

Unfurled her standard to the air.
When Freedom from her mountain height
She tore the azure robe of night
And set the stars of glory there

So begins one of the most celebrated of the patriotic American poems, "The American Flag," written by Joseph Rodman Drake, a poet who died in 1820 at the age of 25. Without doubt the privations that Joseph Rodman Drake had to endure in his boyhood were largely the cause of his death from tuberculosis while he was still a very young man. Both father and mother had died, leaving the boy to get along as best he could. He had by nature a studious disposition and was especially fond of reading poems, stories and essays. By his reading, even more than by school, he educated himself. Nevertheless, he did not at first aspire to become an author. He was interested in science associated himself with older men who were physicians, and became a doctor. At that time he had reached the age of 21.

In his studies he associated himself with young men of the best class. He was handsome in face and figure and most attractive socially. All this led to his marriage with a young woman of wealth, so that for the rest of his life he was set free from financial troubles. In those early days New York city was but a very small fraction of the great metropolis that it is today. Joseph Rodman Drake lived in the outlying region as did also his friend, Washington Irving. Drake was an intense American and had many debates concerning the value of American themes, the scenes for literary work. After one such debate he returned to his home and in three days wrote his longest poem, "The Culprit Fay," a poem that upholds the beauty and charm of American scenes. On another occasion he wrote his impassioned "American Flag," a short poem that is full of the fire of a virile patriotism.

Drake had never been robust in health, although he had always been of a companionable, cheerful disposition. Once he traveled to Europe, as did Washington Irving, also in search of health, and again he went to New Orleans. It was all in vain, however, and he died at 25.

It is interesting to note that he was a member of the same family as the famous Sir Francis Drake, the great English admiral in the days of Queen Elizabeth. With the admiral's spirit he had struggled to success.

MEMORIAL DAY TO BE COMPLETE HOLIDAY FOR NORWICH STORES

Memorial Day, which comes this year on the last Saturday in this month, is to be a general holiday in the city for the stores in the central business section, according to an agreement that has been reached among the retail dealers of the city.

Department stores, clothing stores, hardware stores and the general variety of retail stores that are not dealing in food or provisions reached the agreement to close for the whole day, keeping their places open until 6 p. m. of the day before.

An agreement has been reached with the retail dealers in food and provisions, such as butter and egg stores, bakers, grocers and butchers to keep open until 9 o'clock on the evening of Friday, May 29, but close all day on Saturday, May 30.

This movement on the part of the store keepers will be greatly appreciated on the part of the Grand Army veterans as it will enable all clerks and others who will be connected with the activities of the day to be unhampered as to the time they can give to assisting in the observance of the anniversary.

The generous spirit of the employers will also be appreciated by their clerks who will thus have a full Saturday holiday to use as they see fit in recreation.

TREASURY DEPT. ADVISES LIBERTY BOND HOLDERS

The treasury department has made an important announcement for all holders of first and second Liberty loan bonds that June 30th, 1925, is the limit for these bonds to be converted into similar bonds bearing interest at 4 1-4 per cent. The interest rate at which the bonds were issued was 4 per cent.

Some of these bonds were issued in temporary form, with only four interest coupons attached, and it was the intention that they should be exchanged later for the permanent bonds that would have all the interest coupons for the full term of the bond. Bank officials state that it is surprising to find out how many people have never exchanged these temporary bonds for the permanent bond. They thus have never collected their interest coupons for a term of several years and the aggregate makes a very large sum which the government is ready to pay if the coupons are presented. There are many thousands of dollars worth of interest due on these coupons that have never been presented.

Victory notes are also another government obligation which are still out in the hands of the people in large amounts although they were all called for payment and ceased to bear interest on Dec. 15, 1922 or May 20, 1923. It is stated that there are about $5,000,000 in these Victory notes that are still in the hands of the public which could be turned into cash as soon as they are presented at any bank.

It is the belief that there may still be a considerable quantity of these early Liberty bonds or the Victory notes in the hands of people in this vicinity. The Norwich Savings society is urging people to look over their holdings of Liberty bonds and to make prompt conversion of them without delay.

Pipps of Colorado who seeks to recover $10,000 alleged to have been loaned to the late senator on a personal note dated May 15, 1924.

Additional claims have been filed one by J. Thilman Hendrick, Washington attorney, for $3,700 on a note executed by the late senator on Oct. 13, the day before he committed suicide and another for $4,500 by Charles H. Soran, Washington contractor. ### WALLINGFORD POWER HOUSE JUST LIKE STONINGTON'S

The Connecticut company which has a large power house near Toelle's crossing, Wallingford, that transmits "juice" for the borough trolley lines, has installed automatic controlling devices so that the plant is now operated without any workmen twenty-four hours a day. This is the second power house owned by the Connecticut company in the state to be operated in this manner, the other being in Stonington.

NO CLUE TO ROBBERS OF $23,000 PAYROLL IN CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge, Mass., May 14—Several suspects were taken to be released later leaving the police without clue to the five bandits who today held up two bank messengers at the entrance of the Lever Brothers company plant in East Cambridge, robbed them of a $23,000 payroll and shot their way to waiting automobile for a clean getaway.

The automobile which the bandits used was a stolen machine and as each of the men wore a mask, the police were unable to get any clear description of them. The bandits worked fast and apparently were familiar with the way the money was brought in. While one disarmed one messenger as he entered the building and seized his bag a second did the same to the second bank man as he stepped from his armored car. Two more covered the bank car chauffeur and a negro guard, while a fifth sat at the wheel of the bandits' machine, standing nearby with engine running.

Payroll bags in hand, the first two robbers raced to their car and their two guards leaped aboard as the machine swung into a side street and sped off. William Scott, plant engineer, stepped from a side door as the robbers car dashed by and a bullet from the racing automobile struck the wall a few feet from his head.

As soon as he heard of the holdup, Vice President Charles F. Weed of the First National Bank of Boston offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the bandits.

PREDICTS FAILURE OF RUM ROW BLOCKADE

Washington, May 14—The coast guard's activities in concentrating off rum row was characterized as "futile and a waste of money," in a statement today by W. H. Stanton, head of the association against the prohibition amendment.

"In the old Revolutionary days," he said, "the entire British navy was sent to these coasts to stop smuggling. The immediate result of this action was the making of real sailors out of the American smugglers. History repeats itself. The vigilence of the coast guard will make skillful seamen out of the rum runners. The so-called successful hoisting up of rum row is nothing less than a farce.

The statement declared the government had adopted a plan to divide fines and proceeds of ship sales with informers, adding that "this disgusting scheme links the republican party and the present administration more closely with the Anti-Saloon league."

A similar system, it is said, introduced into Ohio at the instance of the Anti-Saloon league was followed by a reign of terror, graft, corruption and lawless acts.

Old Chamber Music

A festival of the chamber music of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries is being arranged for August at Haslemere, England, where instruments will be used representing those of old en times. The festival is to be staged by Arnold Dolmetsch, who with other members of his family and pupils will play numerous rare instruments virtually unknown to the average music lovers of today. The lute, the recorder, the viol, the virginal, the viola d'amore, the harpsichord, the clavichord, referred to by Rossetti as the "seven sweet symphonies," will be used in rendering the music of the old masters. English music of "the golden period" (the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries) will have a prominent place on the festival program.

Duplicates Without Carbon

Typewriting multiple copies without the use of carbon paper has been made possible by a recent invention perfected by Max E. Melton, an employee of the Post Office Department, according to Popular Science. His device is attached to a standard typewriter. It consists of paper rolls ingeniously arranged so that as the paper is fed to the typewriter platen the sheets are automatically interleaved with duplicating ribbon.

The invention, it is reported, is expected to save the government thousands of dollars a year. The inventor has received a cash reward for his efforts.

Invented in a Dream

A dream invention, making possible moving picture shows in broad daylight, is claimed by a young bookbinder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city.

The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen, but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper, which radiates from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiments and is already patented.

The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

FRENCH BOHEMIANS ROUTED BY HIGH PRICES

American tourists desiring to see the real life of French Bohemia are at a loss. They wander from place to place, from the cafes indicated in pre-war guide books to the rat-throated dens described as the "real thing" by so-called expert guides. But they fail to find the bearded long-haired French artists. The artists have not ceased to exist, but have had to withdraw their patronage from their favorite haunts because of the higher prices for coffee and beer.

In the old places, the French artist is replaced by the American, Spanish or Dutch artist, and the atmosphere is changed.

ACADEMY PREPARING FOR BULKELEY GAME AT CAMPUS ON SATURDAY

A record crowd is expected to witness the Academy-Bulkeley game at the campus on Saturday afternoon and Manager Marty Gilman is making arrangements to handle a capacity crowd. It has been years since so much enthusiasm has been shown in an Academy baseball team and this year's team is certain deserving of the patronage of local people. The old fighting spirit that has been characteristic of Academy teams of years past has returned to this year's team and they are upholding the traditions of the old school.

When the Academy met Bulkeley early in the season the local team was overawed at the reputation of the New London team and they suffered a bad case of stage fright. But today it is different. Gone is that timidity that marked the first game and it is a fighting aggregation that takes the field each day in practice, bent on preparing to be in the best possible condition to beat Bulkeley on Saturday. Bulkeley holds no terrors for the local team and it would not be surprising to those who have followed the Academy team during the season to see the local boys beat the New London school.

The Academy has been both against Parisi and Montalli and these two pitchers can not be classed with either Moran or McElroy of LaSalle whom the Academy boys hit freely, losing only through errors by a green player. Daniels, Bulkeley's best bet, is stated to pitch against New Haven in today's game and will not in all probability get the assignment for Saturday. Neither Parisi and Montalli have much speed, both depending largely on hooked balls to get them by and the Academy boys have curved balls thrown at them so much that they just lay all over them.

The local team has developed into a slugging combination and presents a mighty mean array of hitters. The first six men that will face Bulkeley are hitting well over .300 and the other three come through with a hit now and then when it is needed. In the game against LaSalle on Wednesday the boys hit McElroy's offerings freely and McElroy is reported to be going to Holy Cross next year.

Bulkeley can be beaten. No team is ever invincible. Bulkeley when it takes the field Saturday against the Academy is due for a surprise for it will not be the same scared bunch of athletes that played against them early in the season but a team that has determination to win in back of it and a team that will fight every inch of the way until the very last ball is thrown. Bulkeley will know that it has been in a ball game after Saturday.

NEAR RIOT ENLIVENS BRAVES-PIRATES GAME

Boston, May 14—Pittsburgh defeated Boston today 7 to 1, in a game punctuated in the eighth inning by a near riot which took several policemen to quell. Morrison turned back Boston with five hits, three of which were made by Burrus. Barnes was hit hard in the first five innings and was forced to retire.

The trouble started when Earl Smith, Pittsburgh catcher, ran toward the grand stand for a foul fly which he failed to catch. He became embroiled in an argument with W. J. Lewis, of Boston, a spectator. They were preparing to "mix" when, onlookers said, Smith struck the spectator a glancing blow. Police and others intervened and Smith was ordered out of the game as the crowd swarmed onto the field. As he passed down the steps to visiting team quarters beneath the grandstand a chair thrown by an unidentified spectator landed on top of him. Although the game was one-sided and the feeling was not strong the police had difficulty for a time in handling the crowd. When Lewis left the park he declared that he would swear out a warrant for Smith's arrest. Score:

MAJOR CLUBS MUST GET RID OF SURPLUS PLAYERS

St. Paul, Minn., May 14—The St. Paul Dispatch today said Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the New York Americans who was here yesterday, says Commissioner K. M. Landis has ordered major league clubs to call in all but eight optional players.

"Plans of the major league magnates to increase their hold on the young playing talent of the country by sending 15 players out on options, instead of eight, as provided in the minor-major agreement, thus has been frustrated by Commissioner Landis," the paper quotes Mr. Barrow as saying.

The order, the paper continues, will force the majors to place on the market close to 100 players who have been under their control, and this is regarded as a big victory for the minor leagues."

PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL FOR EAST IN FALL

March for years a devotee of college football, are reported to be interested in the New York enterprise, and already are seeking a coach of national repute. Offers have been sent to several leading gridiron performers.

BULKELEY TO CLASH WITH HILLHOUSE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 14.—The 9 to 1 victory which New Haven Hillhouse High scored at the expense of New Britain High Wednesday afternoon gives promise that when Bulkeley clashes with Hillhouse on Friday afternoon an even battle in High school circles will be played. That Hillhouse will give the Orange and Black a keen battle is already anticipated by the Bulkeley nine who are keenly awaiting the arrival of the Elm City team. All previous efforts will go for naught as far as the State championship is concerned. It will be either Bulkeley or New Haven Hillhouse High after the dust of the battle clears up on Friday, and the victory for either will be an important stride towards the coveted goal. Undoubted the game Friday will be one of the best stared games which will be seen locally for some time to come.

Captain Tillie Daniels will hold down the hillock for Bulkeley. Daniels is going unusually well this year, having let down the opposition with four hits in two games. In one contest he was robbed of a no hit game. When New Haven Hillhouse used Haynes its star boxman in the game with New Britain on Wednesday, it is expected that he will not be given the assignment against the Orange and Black. Cox the twirler to oppose the Bulkeley swatsmiths will be the same twirler who won from West Haven High by a 9 to 1 score last Friday. Because this game is an important one from all angles, Haynes may be sent upon the mound to put the Elm City athletes in it at all times. For a schoolboy pitcher Haynes is one of the best in the state as his record in victories and his meager allotment of hits shows.

SUB BASE PLAYS ITS FIRST GAME TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 14.—After the early weeks of baseball practice which has been rather monotonous, the Submarine Base will swing into action in its first game of the season Friday night opposing the lowly Tabs in a regular scheduled contest of the City league. The entrance of the gobs into the circuit has strengthened it considerably and they will lend their strength in making the league one of the strongest twilight organizations in the state. Early games have already tapered off into fast contests, and the schedule which calls for the games next week will find them even better played than the early ones this week.

The Sub Base has practically the same team as last season. Lefty Harrell is back again as is Dinty Moore and the remaining players who made the record for the base nine last year. The gobs have it over the other teams in the league for they are out on the diamond at least three afternoons a week to get themselves into shape for the opening game, while the other teams in the circuit are handicapped for early season playing due to little or no practice which they have. For that reason the league will not show its real strength in the number of close contests played until after the league has progressed steadily and reaches the more balmy days of summer.

CHAPMAN PLAYS PRATT HIGH ON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 14.—Deviating for the present from league games, Chapman Tech, although facing the loss of its captain and third baseman, will tackle Pratt High of Essex here Saturday afternoon. Tuesday's victory over Stonington places the Red and Black in second place, only a step being Norwich Free Academy, the leader at present.

In dividing the assignment for mound duty, the dope points towards Zip Gero as the likely candidate for hurling honors. It is expected that Gero will have plenty of speed. The team will be weakened materially by the absence of Captain Courbois to center field, and Johnny Brown at the dizzy sack. But the Red and Black mentor is confident that these positions will be filled capably by the reserve material, which Tech is more than fortunate to have ready to use in event of an emergency.

In the remaining games Chapman Tech has scheduled in the league, the two most important of these contests will be played out of town thus forcing the Red and Black to play on foreign fields. Both games are important towards the champion ship of the league, and it will no doubt make matters more difficult to bring home a victory playing away from home. The Tech lads has shown a tendency of late to play good baseball out of town and it is hoped that this will be the case during these games.

MANY OLD TIME DIAMOND STARS HELP IN GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION

New York, May 14—New York baseball fans paid tribute to more than a score of old-time professional players at the Polo Grounds today.

The great stadium of the Giants was in gala array, flags being draped from the stands all around the field, and a band contributed martial music. Shortly before game time the players of the Cincinnati and New York teams, combatants of the afternoon, marched to centerfield where the guests of the day had been gathered.

Commissioner Landis and President John A. Heydler of the National league marshalled the little band of veterans as they made their way across the field, past second base to the home plate. There they were introduced to the crowd of 15,000 gathered in the huge structure.

Sam Crane, veterans of diamonds and sports writing, received a loving cup from the Giants during the ceremonies. Others who received ovations from fandom were Jim Mutrie, Roger Connor, Dan Broughers, George Gore, John Morrill, Colonel A. G. Mills, Amos Rusie, Bob Emslie, Hydler Westervelt, Billy Hilbert, Jack Warner, Arthur Devlin and Frank Dwyer.

AGGIES TAKE EASY GAME FROM CLARK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., May 14—The Connecticut Aggies easily defeated Clark University in baseball here this afternoon when in the opening event of the Junior Week activities at the state college, the Storrs outfit whitewashed the Worcester team by a score of 5-0. "Biff" Makofski, pitching his first game for the Aggies came close to pitching a no-hit, no-run game, as Farrells single in the seventh was the only safe hit made off the Schenectady boy. Makofski held the Clark batsmen in check at all times, retiring them in 1-2-3 order. But 31 men faced Makofski in nine innings.

Anderson the Clark pitcher was touched for 8 hits by the Aggies which with the poor support accorded him by his team mates gave the Aggies their margin of victory.

The Aggies made 1 run in their half of the first inning. Ahearn went to first when hit by a pitched ball stole second and then took third on a wild throw by the catcher. With 1 away Makofski singled through third scoring Ahearn. In the third frame, with one down Schofield sent a screeching single to right field and then stole second. Makofski was safe at first on a poor throw. Schofield taking third. O'Brien followed with a sacrifice fly scoring Schofield and sending Makofski to second.

Wardle came through with another single, scoring Makofski. Three hits and a Clark error in the fourth inning allowed the Aggies to score two more runs with one away. Tiernan singled and then stole second. Seymour followed with a double that scored Tiernan. Seymour was able to take third on an error of the center fielder in handling his hit. Captain Ahearn followed with another single that scored Seymour.

Clark's only threat came in the eighth inning, but this was stopped by fast playing on the part of the Aggies. With men on first and second, and no outs Beaton filed out to Tiernan, who threw to third in time to catch Graham. Anderson, next man up was safe on an Aggie error, but the inning ended with no scoring when Sleeper filed out to O'Brien.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

For the last half of this week you are going to see a six act programme of B. F. Keith vaudeville that cannot be improved. Every act went over with a bang yesterday, there not being a dull moment in the entire show of pictures and vaudeville.

Spencer and Carroll in "Do You Remember" opened the bill with a comedy novelty of childhood days. In harking back they recall the dog fighting youthful laughter, the eagles crying the bees, the chickens and with songs and comedy patter they give imitations of all these things.

Dorothy Casey proved to be a revelation as far as juvenile artists are concerned. She is just a wonderful kid and succeeded in delighting everybody with her comic songs and interpretations.

Chuck Holtsworth and Band followed with a great offering of real music and dance specialties. There are seven men in the band who get volume as well as harmony out of jazzy blue numbers that brought them well merited applause. One pretty girl did specialty dancing between numbers. The whole offering is set off by a beautiful setting.

Harrison Greene and Katherine Parker in "Just the Two of Us" are excellent entertainers. This comedy offering sparkles with humor and bright songs.

Leon Flatow and Jack Frazer, these two song writers, sing their own songs in their own way. That way is thoroughly likable and of course no one can get as much out of a song as the fellows who write it.

A strand of wire is used as a dancing floor by Al Frabell and Sister in their offering entitled "You Can't Beat Them." They proved to be as graceful in their evolutions on this perch as the average dancers are on a large and more staple surface.

The photoplay also proved to be great entertainment with Thunder, the marvel dog, as the hero. Black Lightning is the picture which is a thrilling story of love, adventure and a dog's devotion to his master. Clara Bow, Eddie Phillips and Joe Butterworth is in support.

A new Kinograms weekly completes the programme.

Breed Theater

Dan Prentiss is a one-woman man, and Pal is a one-man dog. Marjorie Donald has a heart of gold, but the real gold comes from the Gold Eagle Mine and is driven in a big wagon over winding trails where bandits lurk.

The girl, the gold, the bandits and Buck Jones are the ingredients which go into the making of Gold and the Girl, the thrilling William Fox western picture which will be shown today and Saturday at the Breed theater.

It will run the entire week. And, in this case "run" is used advisedly. There isn't a slow minute in it.

Dan Prentiss first comes into the life of Marjorie Donald when his lariat, swinging straight and true, halts her runaway mount and saves her life. He loses his heart to her that morning, and Dan's dog, Pal, loses his heart, too, when Marjorie remarks he is a "darling."

After that, many things happen, but in the end, Dan wins Marjorie.

There is a great deal to be said for Pal's acting. He not only does things intelligently, but he shows his emotions by his facial expression just as other actors do. He is listed on the cast as Pal. Although this is the first time he has appeared in a Buck Jones picture, he promises to become as familiar a screen figure as Jones' horse, Silver Buck.

Silver Buck's best scene this time is in a wild chase Jones makes after a runaway wagonload of gold bullion. His leap from the horse's back to the seat of the wagon is a real thrill. But there are many others featuring fist fights, pistol duels, rescues, and captures. For the benefit of the fair sex, it might be added that there are two scenes on a certain rustic bridge where Buck meets the heroine and tells her—well the kind of things a real hero does tell the one woman he loves.

Coming to the Breed

Under the caption Long Shots and Closeups, the Brooklyn Daily Eagle printed some reflections upon Marion Davies and her new Cosmopolitan picture, Yolanda, which is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday for four days. The article follows:

"The Cosmopolitan Corporation hasn't made known just how many millions were spent in the production of 'Yolanda,' but whatever it may have cost to film this magnificent spectacle we hope the expenditure will be justified when the box-office returns begin to come in. The settings, designed by Joseph Urban, are the most gorgeous ever seen on any screen.

"It has been said that William Randolph Hearst is running up an enormous deficit in sponsoring the motion picture producing company that has given us such fine productions as Little Old New York, When Knighthood Was in Flower and Yolanda, but it can cause only the added thrill, whether or not the Cosmopolitan Corporation is a financial success, it cannot be disputed that it is setting an artistic standard in the cinematic field which other producers are finding hard to live up to.

"The cast of Yolanda represents one of the most important accumulations of acting talent ever assembled for a motion picture. The supporting cast includes Lynn Harding, Ralph Graves, Holbrook Blinn, Maclyn Arbuckle, Leon Errol, Mary Kennedy, Johnny Dooley and Theresa Conover.

WESTERLY

Trial in the $23,000 damage case of Albert L. Castritius of Westerly vs. Henry P. Walton of Pawcatuck, which was begun Thursday before Judge Edward W. Blodgett, without a jury, will be continued this (Friday) morning with the defendant on the stand. In the Westerly trial calendar of superior court for Washington county. The suit involves an alleged deal to purchase the New Park hotel property, High street, made by Albert L. Castritius with the late Joseph T. Murphy to whom was tendered a check on Jan. 12, 1920. That was the date when the agreement was reported for the conveyance of the property, a three-story wooden structure, with four large stores on the ground floor and a hotel and rooming house above. The deed, it was testified, was to have been delivered at the Industrial Trust company January 17, 1920 at 11 o'clock, the price to have been $22,000. The agreement to purchase was recorded at 11.10 by the plaintiff's attorney, Harry B. Agard, since deceased. For failure to carry out that agreement for which the plaintiff said he stood ready at the time with the promise of Manager James M. Pendleton of the bank with a 50 per cent. mortgage and the balance in liquor collateral and cash in his possession to pay cash the damages are claimed.

Albert L. Castritius, the plaintiff, occupied the witness stand for the entire morning session. His attorney, E. E. Roche, filed as exhibit A the cancelled $100 check, as exhibit B a listing card of the Murphy Real Estate agency, showing the rents of the building to total $197 and C the agreement drawn by Attorney Agard. Representing the defendant were Attorneys Herbert W. Rathbun and Augustine T. La Lumière who at the beginning of the suit questioned the agency of Mr. Murphy in the deal. Other witnesses were Joseph Curry, James Burke, A. T. La Ledwidge, C. E. Roche, A. J. Castritius and Henry P. Walton.

Spellman sang Face to Face and Nearer, My God, to Thee. Burial was in St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Fr. Casagne. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

For Chicago's Radio.

Does New London things want a good broncho-rider, plain wrestler or calf roper? Or a fellow adept at trick and fancy riding? He may now be considering a following as best employed as delivery man for a meeting concerning in a grand or holiday down an office job, but it is still true the spirit of the plains and ranges in this and things he's not back thinking he's wanted. The Chicago Association of Commerce is putting on a "Roundup" August 18 to 28 and has asked the help of this newspaper in finding persons formerly having a part of the life of the great West.

Thirty thousand dollars in cash purses in addition to world's championship titles, belts and trophies will go to the victors of the "Chicago Roundup" which is to be held in the Grant Park Stadium under the direction of Tex Austin, famous rodeo man, and it is thought that there may be some one in New London county who is still good enough to fly and run away with a part of this money.

There will be none of the "circus" atmosphere at this rodeo, it is announced. No paid performers. It is a free-for-all and open to the world, and those who think that they still have some of the blood of the West in them will never have a better chance to prove it. Arrangements are going forward for the entertainment of "Roundup" visitors from this and other localities on a scale unheard of in the annals of American business. The town will be in festive humor and all comers from the least known to the most prominent are awaited by a tremendous welcome.

Any person or persons here who think they might be interested in entering the "Roundup" lists may secure a complete prize list and rules by writing the Chicago Association of Commerce.

THE PITFALLS OF THE FARMERS.

(Written specially for This Bulletin)

We've all heard of the city fine lady who, upon her first visit to the country, complained that she couldn't see the trees because of the trees.

Also of the famous dead-shot frontiersman who, after vainly endeavoring to shoot down what he took for a distant tree, found it to be a bluebird perched in that what he really had seen was a mouse on his own eyebrow.

Also of the character in the proverb who is reputed to think a cent is bigger than a dollar because it's nearer his nose.

All of which goes to prove that human beings, often, don't see beyond their own noses.

We're inclined to smile superiorly at the foibles of such people. And therefore, therefore, therefore, we should use judicious care not to read into their mistakes. When I say "we," I mean we farmers.

The fact is, the farm situation is so terribly depressing and farm prospects so gloomy, that we farmers are inclined to think we are the only persons mired in the Slough of Despond. We are in some danger of falling into a state of self-pity, which would be about seven times worse than the ills we pity ourselves about.

Frankly, knowing from the inside, the almost intolerable coil of mortgages and confiscatory pitfalls which practically all farmers are enmeshed in, I can't find it in my heart to blame them, even if they do tend towards a state of introspective self-pity. Nevertheless, no matter how strong the temptation, it is a temptation which should be resisted for it leads to despair. And despair leads either to abject surrender to fate, or reckless rebellion. Both are abominations devoutly NOT to be wished.

We sell many of our products for less than it has actually cost us to produce them, we have to render the services of workers in trying whose wages are far below the standard of living. We pay exorbitant prices, mostly, made up of unearned and utterly unnecessary in-between profits, for practically everything we must buy. We are carpenters and bricklayers and plumbers and blacksmiths and general handymen and farm laborers and combined sailors pulling double or treble those long oar sweeps ash. At the end of the figures, and we chase quotations, we find ourselves thrusting the farmer, and farm-owner, taking the whole country into account, isn't earning as much for his time and for interest on his investments as he would if he dumped his farm into the scrap-heap and went out to work by the day.

In view of such glaring and outrageous unrighteousnesses it isn't John Farmer who will throw any stones at his fellow agriculturists. They have excuse, big excuse for feeling blue.

But——

We arn't the only poor devils who are passing under the harrow. We aren't the only ones who are having a hard job to make both ends meet. We aren't the only ones who are being spoiled as ruthlessly as the Hebrews were oldden to spoil their Egyptian tyrants.

The biren workman who is drawing twice as big wages as he used to for the same or less work, is being charged more than double rent for his tenement; he is having to pay double for his groceries and double for his clothes and double for his fuel and more than double for his furnishings and tools. His admittedly swollen wages are not just so much clean "velvet." Whichever way he may turn he runs into a greedy hand stretched out to get its "rake-off" from him.

Some recent disclosures by the census bureau are extremely interesting as throwing a vivid side-light on the why's and wherefore's of this crusade of greed. The census bureau reports that American clothing manufacturers turn out about $5,000,000,000 worth of clothing per year. That is what the makers get for the garments they produce.

But the consumers pay close to $15,000,000,000 a year for those same clothes,—roundly three times as much. We farmers, complain justly of the manifest wrong which pays us for the food we raise only about thirty cents of each dollar the consumer is mulcted for that same food. We, then, must in decent impartiality denounce the equal injustice which compels the clothes-wearer to pay a dollar for every thirty-three cents worth of clothes he buys.

"This country made, in the year, 351,151,000 pairs of shoes, which the makers sold for $850,479,000. This figures up $2.72 a pair as the value of the shoes, all made and ready to wear. What is the average price you have to pay when you buy your new pair? Figure up for yourself what the "spread" is in this item.

Consider socks and stockings. The average cost of men's socks is twenty-two cents and of women's stockings thirty-nine cents. That is what they bring at the factory, knit, boxed and ready for shipment. Again, figure for yourself what that "spread" is between the actual value of the hose and the price you are asked for them.

In which connection another census-disclosed fact is of considerable interest to would-be thrifty buyers. In that year 13,000,000 pairs of silk stockings were made and imported into the United States. But 113,000,000 pairs of "silk" stockings were sold! Eh? What d'ye make of that? Of course, the 100,000,000 which were sold as silk to the wearers, but which were not silk,—had not so much as a thread of silk in them,—added a very pretty penny to that aforementioned "spread" of cost between maker and user. Naturally, we farmers don't run to either silk or "near-silk" socks. But those chaps whom we envy because of the huge wages they are drawing do, many of them. They think their improved standard of earnings necessitates an improved standard of living. And don't they have to pay for it!

I am not seeking to minimize the grievous pillage which robs us farmers of two-thirds of the value of our earnings. I am simply suggesting that the other fellow isn't getting off much easier. As you've perhaps noticed, I'm rather fond of quoting the line in the old Sunday school hymn: "Other men's failures will never save you." Nor can any twisting of economics make what is wrong for you right for the other man.

The truth seems to be that we're all of us, farmer and hired man, employer and employe, suffering from a sort of social and economic pestilence; a moral disease whose bacterial germ might be named the "Bacillus Easy-Snapii."

Superficial observers lay the reign of lawlessnesses which is disgracing our civilization to various assumed causes.

It may be admitted, without question, as some argue, that the horrible cruelties and wastefulnesses of the great war, both at home and abroad had something to do with it.

It may be admitted, with equal candor, as many charge, that the ill-judged and intemperate Volstead act tends to provoke rebellion in vast numbers.

It may be admitted, quite as readily, as others reason, that the impoverished condition of Europe and our one-sided gold-holdings in this country have something to do with it.

But the primal cause lies deeper than any or all these symptoms. It lies in a wide-spread and widder-spread moral degeneracy, which puts success above deserving; which assumes that the end sanctifies any means; which regards profit-making as superior to productivity; which subjectures the greed of gain for the ambition to service; which blatantly pronounces number one the greatest of all possible numbers; which takes for its motto without shame or disguise the slogan, "Every man for himself and devil take the hindmost," which runs to the ends of the earth after chances to get and turns its back defiantly on all opportunities to give.

It is the age of the "Easy Snap." "Why, man," said I one day to the store-keeper who gave me a simply intolerable price on something I was thinking of buying, "Why, man, that's profiteering." "Well", he replied with a tired smile, "everybody's doing it, ain't they?" As if he assumed that "everybody" was doing wrong made that wrong right for him—or for me! I'll wager that there isn't a reader of this who can't count more cases like that in his or her own experience than the fingers of both hands will register.

It seems to be the majority, if not the almost universal, spirit. "Everybody takes everything he can get, want more," said one cynical-minded money-grubber to me. Dunno if it doesn't begin to look as if he were right in this verdict.

It's a vast deal easier to charge [illegible] than it is to [illegible] the going price becomes always [illegible] the life-blood [illegible] men.

In this country, that point was passed long ago. The sponge is soaked [illegible] and has been for years. Yet other sponges are being at the time squeezed on us to absorb the last drop [illegible] of sweat they will take up. How long, Oh Lord, how long?

It would really seem, in view of the common belief in an assumed human intelligence, that fore-seeing beings would pretty soon become aware of the horrible mess they are making of so-called "business," utterly regardless though they may be of any ethical laws.

But if men, in the old phrases, can't see beyond their own noses, they can't be expected to notice the pitfalls a few steps ahead.

The chaser of will-o-the-wisps in the old fable was led into a particularly deep and nasty swamp-hole.

Must we all go on imitating that fool of the fable? Must we go kerplunk into the slimiest spot of the morass before we learn that eyes were made for seeing and brains for acting upon knowledge thus conveyed?

The farmers are not, probably, very much different from other men. We are neither better nor worse than the run of our neighbors. We are being, as we think, rather too profusely tarred with the smearings of adversity. It may do us good and start our minds off on a more wholesome route, if we admit that some of the same tar is daubing those neighbors, as well.

It certainly will be for our soul's advantage if we stop doctoring for symptoms or taking quack advice, and go after the original cause of the epidemic.

It's the deep-seated germ which is causing the disease,—not the neglected pustules which show on the outside skin.

THE FARMER.

Who Said Frogs

Before you speak choose well each word,
Lest it by chance be overheard.
—Old Mother West Wind.

Peter Rabbit had made a discovery. Just by chance. He had been over to the Smiling Pool to listen to that joyous concert. It was very early in the morning and he intended to stop for only a few minutes and then hurry home to little Mrs. Peter in the dear Old Briar Patch. But there was so much to listen to and so many to see that time slipped away, as time will do, and when at last Peter decided to start for home he discovered that it was broad daylight and it wouldn't be safe to try to cross the dear Old Briar Patch.

"Why didn't you get out of my way when you saw me coming?" asked Peter mildly

"Humph" exclaimed Peter. "I suppose Mrs. Peter will be worried to death, but I can't help it now. I'm sorry. I didn't intend to worry her. There's nothing to do but spend the day in the Green Forest." He tried to make himself believe that he felt badly about it, but the effort wasn't much of a success.

When at last he actually started for the Green Forest he didn't pay particular attention to where he was stepping, with the result that a most indignant small person flew up in his very face and startled him so that he jumped backward.

The indignant small person was little Mrs. Teeter the Sandpiper. "Why don't you use your eyes and look where you are going, Peter Rabbit?" she demanded. "Another step and you would have been right on me!"

"Why didn't you get out of my way when you saw me coming?" asked Peter mildly. Before Mrs. Teeter could reply Peter's eyes opened very wide and he stared at the ground just ahead of him. "Oh!" he cried. "Are those yours?"

"Who would they be if not mine?" snapped little Mrs. Teeter, bobbing up and down in that funny way of hers.

"I don't know," confessed Peter. "My they are pretty eggs!" He hopped a step nearer for a closer look at the four creamy, spotted eggs in the simplest of nests on the ground.

"Look out," cried Mrs. Teeter, rushing to cover them with her body.

"I'm not going to hurt them," declared Peter loftily. "I didn't know you had a nest here, Mrs. Teeter, or I would have taken care not to frighten you."

"You are the first one to find it, declared Mrs. Teeter. "Oh, Peter, I am glad it was you and not Jimmy Skunk or Unc' Billy Possum or Sammy the Crow or some other egg-eater.

Please promise me, Peter, that you won't tell anybody about this nest and these eggs."

Of course Peter promised. He and the Teeters were good friends, and not for the world would he knowingly have brought trouble or worry to them. So he promised faithfully and then started off for the Green Forest, while Mrs. Teeter settled down on her eggs and looked so much like her surroundings that had you come along I am sure you would not have seen her until she moved.

Up along the Laughing Brook and so into the Green Forest went Peter. He was greatly pleased at having discovered Mrs. Teeters home. He even tried to make himself think that he had done it through his own smartness, when all the time it had been by accident and he knew it.

"My, those were pretty eggs," said Peter, talking aloud to himself as he squatted under a tree to rest.

"Who said aiggs?" demanded a sharp voice above Peter's head. "Did yo' all mention aigga, nice fresh aigga, Brer Rabbit?"

Peter hastily looked up. Peering down at him was the sharp, shrewd face of Unc' Billy Possum.

"Hello, Unc' Billy!" exclaimed Peter. "How are you this morning?"

"Fine Brer Rabbit. But Ah would be finer still if Ah could get some nice fresh aiggs," replied Unc' Billy. "Whose aiggs were yo' mentioning, Brer Rabbit?"

The Little Thing Called "Good Morning"

It lives in a cheer-niche somewhere in the soul,
Just give it a start, then away it will roll,
And all it will take is a smile for its toll—
The little thing called "Good Morning!"
There's something about it of magical skill,
It goes to the mine pit and up to the mill;
Gives dimples to Mary and chuckles to Bill—
The little thing called "Good Morning!"

Of course there are places, I'm sorry to say,
Where that merry minstrel has never held sway;
The whistle just blows, then they start on the day
And nobody says: "Good Morning!"
Like slaves in the galleys they take up the grind,
Pass elbow to elbow as though they were blind;
Leave love in the lockers and cuff life unkind—
Where nobody says: "Good Morning!"

But O there are places I joy to go in!
Where little "Good Morning!" arrives with a grin
And makes all the toilers of workday kin—
The shop where they say: "Good Morning!"
I've known it to win the most arrogant boss,
Bring joy to a job long condemned as a dross;
Oil all the machinery, make profit of loss—
That little soul-song: "Good Morning!"

LEGISLATURE HALTS BUSINESS TO PRESENT SWORD TO WORLD FLIER

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, May 14—Today was the busiest day of the session and required an afternoon session to complete the business. The special feature of the day was the presentation of the sword to Lt. Leslie T. Arnold, presented to him by the state of Connecticut. Ex-Governor Holcomb was seated on the speaker's platform. Gov. Trumbull was accompanied by Major Freeman and his staff.

Shantok Bill Reported Unfavorably

The bill appropriating $15,000 for the purpose of establishing a state park at Fort Shantok on the Thames was unfavorably reported. At 11:05 the senate led by Lt. Gov. Brainard entered the house chamber for the purpose of holding a joint session at which the sword recently voted to Lt. Leslie T Arnold, of New London, in recognition of the successful flight around the world, which began March 17, and ended Aug. 32, 1924, would be presented.

Senator Cronin and Representatives Sturges and Bransfield were appointed to notify the governor that the convention was ready to receive him and he entered soon after. Mayor Freeman, chairman of the committee, appointed to secure the sword reported that the sword had been selected and then handed it to Governor Trumbull who in turn presented it to Lt. Arnold.

Governor Trumbull in presenting the sabre to Lieut. Arnold in behalf of the state, the general assembly and his fellow citizens, spoke of the great achievement and the esteem in which the flyers were held. Lieut. Arnold replied in appreciation of what he designated "the marvelous honor." He said: "Your Excellency, ladies and gentlemen: I appreciate the honor which has come to me. Words mean so little when one desires to express one's feelings. It is an honor to receive so splendid a gift and to be received in this way. I can say very little but there are two words which express what I mean, I 'thank you,' very much."

The sabre had been procured by Major Talbot O. Freeman, commander of the C. N. G. Air squadron at the request of a committee appointed by the governor and Commander Freeman and Lieut. Arnold appeared on the rostrum in uniform. The presentation of the sword was authorized by a resolution adopted by the general assembly some days ago.

Following the presentation Governor Trumbull, Lieutenant Arnold, Major Freeman and Bank Commissioner John B. Bryne went to lunch together.

Among the bills passed in the house was one that makes changes in the employment of minors in shoe shining establishments, billiard or pool rooms.

The bill provides that no minor between the age of fourteen to sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in any such place after six o'clock in the afternoon of any day immediately preceding a day when school is in session. Section 2 provides that they shall not be employed more than fifty-eight hours in any week.

Sec. three provides, that every person whether acting for himself or as agent for another, who shall employ, or authorize or permit to be employed any such minor in violation of any provision, of this act shall be fined not more than $100.

The state board of fisheries and game was authorized to sell the property in the towns of Madison, Clinton and Killingworth which has been known as the Game farm. The board considers it more economical to secure birds in other ways than to breed them. The bill also authorizes them to sell about 49 acres of land in the town of Burlington that is not needed by the fish breeding station located there. H. B. 526 increases the fee of deputy sheriff from five to six dollars a day for attendance at court.

State Hospital Appropriation

The appropriations committee reported favorably a bill giving the Norwich state hospital $236,790 for extensions, alterations and repairs.

H. B. 416 passed today authorizes the comptroller upon application of the motor vehicle commission to draw his order upon the treasurer in favor of any person equitably entitled to a refund for registration of motor vehicles. It has been necessary heretofore to have special authority from the general assembly.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10:35 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was made by Rev. Arthur F. Lewis the house chaplain.

A resolution was passed authorizing the attorney general to employ assistants in the prosecution of the condemnation proceedings against the McCook property at Niantic that is needed for the sanitarium at that place. The office of the attorney general is so crowded that this is necessary. The bill was referred to the committee on appropriations.

The bill consolidating the town of Hartford and East Hartford was rejected.

The appropriations committee reported unfavorably on bills making appropriations to hospitals as they have already been taken care of in the budget which has been passed.

The speaker announced that there remained only seven legislative session days and urged speedy action on the part of those who have introduced private bills, in paying for the printing of the same.

H. B. 702, making an appropriation of $15,000 for a state park at Fort Shantok in the town of Montville was rejected as was the bill providing for the purchase of land at Mount Carmel in the town of Hamden. The famed "Sleeping Giant" profile is located there.

Resolutions were adopted appointing William Fenner Wood, judge and Chas. S. Francis, deputy judge of the town court of Killingly; C. C. Costello, judge and C. Tyler Lanphere, deputy judge of the town court of Groton; Mahlon H. Geissler, judge and Archibald Macdonald deputy judge of the city court of Putnam; Henry A. Adams judge and John W. Goffe deputy judge of the town court of Sprague.

The vote appointing C. Tyler Lanphere was reconsidered and was then rejected as it was found that Judge Lanphere was beyond the constitutional age limits.

Unfavorable reports were made on the resolutions appointing Otto B. Robinson and Curtis Dean, judges of the city court of Willimantic. The petitions had been withdrawn. The appropriation committee reported favorably for the Norwich State Hospital as follows:

For completion of wood buildings $85,000; for repairs to reservoir $20,000; for building for bake oven, electric ovens and rearrangement of kitchen $24,000; for purchase of Davis property $9,500; for greenhouse and improvement to roads and grounds $20,000; for power house improvements including 200 k. w. generator, copper cables and lighting property out of doors $30,000; for farm improvements including new silos $8.00; permanent repairs $18,000; and for purchase of land approved May 23, 1923, $3,000; the entire appropriation totaling $226,700. At 12 o'clock a recess was taken till 1 o'clock.

The House was called to order at 1:10 with Doctor W. L. Higgins in the chair. Concurrence was voted with the senate in the election of minor judges by that body yesterday.

Norwich Bond Bill Passed

The Norwich bond bill that was recalled from the governors office was received again in the house and after being amended by the addition of a clause that the amount should not exceed 4 per cent. of the amounts of the grand list, not including the value of the water and gas departments. The bill was then passed as amended.

The bill that had been recommitted that abolished ferries on the Connecticut was received and was amended by restoring the "Rocky Hill" ferry as one to be continued by state.

Favorable reports were made on a large number of bills. All of them were ordered printed and placed on the calendar.

RIVER PIRATES STEAL HAWSERS FROM BARGE IN NEW LONDON HARBOR

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 14—River pirates followed an old time practice last night, for thieves boarded the barge Mauretania, owned by the Keeler Transportation company, of New York, while the craft was at anchor near the stake boat in the middle harbor and stole a considerable quantity of hawser, the plunder being of the estimated value of $300. The rope stolen included one eight inch line of 12 fathoms, one seven inch line of 16 fathoms and one three and one-half inch line of 20 fathoms. It is believed that the boat from which the crooks operated was of considerable size and that the rope was dropped from the barge to the other craft while Capt. ## UNKNOWN SEAMAN DIES— MAY BE FROM NORWICH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 14—Schooner M. [illegible] Monsell, master, put into port here this afternoon because of the serious illness of a member of the crew, but before medical aid could be obtained for the man he died.

The identity of the man is not known, for he had been a member of the crew since yesterday, having been shipped at New Haven and his name to the ship's articles was not obtained by Capt. Monsell.

He is apparently about 45, weighs about 190 pounds and is about five feet eight or nine inches in height, rather florid complexion and sandy hair. One lower tooth and two upper teeth in front and on the left side of the jaw are missing and a slight scar to the left of the middle of the forehead and just above the eye are the only identification marks, excepting for two slight scars on the left fore-leg.

It was the opinion of seamen, who viewed the body in an attempt to establish identification that he originally hailed from this vicinity. William Nobbs, a former steamboat man and [illegible] employed by the old Chelsea [illegible] that the seaman had resided in Norwich and had been employed at various times on the New York boats, leaving from that port.

The schooner reached New Haven Tuesday night and Capt. Monsell was in need of an extra hand. While moored at one of the docks there Capt. Monsell came upon the stranger and offered him an opportunity to ship, the offer being accepted. This morning the schooner, which was bound to Boston, cleared and while the trip down sound was being made, the stranger became ill and went to his bunk where he remained throughout the day. When this port was neared, as the man still in a serious condition, being in a comatose state, Capt. Monsell decided to enter the harbor and obtain medical treatment for the man.

The schooner proceeded up the harbor and moored at the municipal wharf.

As soon as the craft had been made fast, Capt. Monsell went to the corner of State and Bank streets where he reported the condition of the member of his crew to Traffic Officer John Courtney. The latter communicated with the police station and Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock were dispatched to the boat. The seriousness of the man's condition was apparent and while medical assistance was being summoned he expired.

It was at first believed that the man had died from drinking poisoned alcohol and Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman viewing the body, ordered it removed to an undertaking establishment where he performed an autopsy. It was then revealed that the seaman had died from heart trouble.

BALTIC

A committee of arrangements under the auspices of the American Legion, Post Joseph Saint Germain, of Baltic, is planning for a Memorial Day parade and exercises. It is expected that every organization in the town along with the clergy and town officials will be in line, and it is expected that the citizens at large will co-operate to the fullest extent in making the day fitting for the perpetuation of the memory of the hero dead. The parade is to start from the town hall at 9 a. m. and the route taken for the line of march, headed by the Baltic Band, will be, High St. to Main and River, through Main again to Depot Hill, around by the Flag Pole and finish up at the Baltic Social and Athletic Club, where speakers will address the assemblage.

The committee is making arrangements to have poppies and small American flags for sale and it is expected that there will be a generous response in buying these as the profits from them will be used for some worthy purpose, such as disabled ex-soldiers, or for any other such charitable need, that the Legion may know of.

The committee is requesting that business men and citizens in general, display flags and any other decorations suitable for Memorial Day.

Harry Collins was one of the Entertainers to Canada at the week end.

Profit-taking tendencies again slowed up the advance of railroad bonds, although Southern Railway general 6s, Seaboard refunding 4s and some of the St. Paul issues added materially to their recent gains. A $4,250,000 issue of Great Northern 4 1-2 percent equipment notes was sold on a 4.75 percent basis.

Magma, Chile and other copper bonds were the most conspicuous strong spots in the industrial group, trading in these issues being stimulated by the bullish demonstrations in some of the copper shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 14.—Wheat ready to be delivered here this month jumped up in prices today as much as 7 1-2 cents a bushel. Brisk demand from Europe and a big falling off in shipments from Argentina was the chief apparent reason. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2 to 7 cents above yesterday's finish, latest transactions today being at $1.67 3-4 to $1.68 for May and $1.52 to $1.52 1-4 for July with corn 1-2 to 1 3-8 cents up, oats showing 1-2@5-8 to 3-4c gain, and provisions varying from 40 cents decline to five cents advance.

One Chicago firm was alone credited with having sold during the last two days a million bushels of wheat for export at the highest premium yet on the 1924 crop. Under such circumstances any prospect of much increase of the amount of wheat here this month appeared slight, especially as the Minneapolis stock was reported as having decreased 1,100,000 bushels in the last five days. Aside, however, from immediate conditions of supply and demand here, leading traders were outspoken in asserting that world conditions justified a higher level of values. It was estimated that the world carry-over of wheat on July 1 would be the smallest on record.

Corn and oats were affected mainly by the action of wheat, cold weather complaints added to the general upward trend.

Provisions were depressed by a severe break in hog values.

With the usual large attendance the meeting was opened with the singing of America. President E. Edward Carpenter was in the chair. During the business session the club voted to purchase an awning for the Rock Nook Children's Home sand box and the following were appointed a committee to take charge of the matter: E. C. Pullen, Louis Fontaine and Rudolph Henschel.

The usual entertainment programme was dispensed with to allow time for the election of officers. The nominating committee, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, William A. Barry; second vice president, Max Hanover; third vice president, J. B. Max Hanover, second vice president-elect, also addressed the meeting. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN DIVORCE TRIAL

Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court here Thursday took the papers in the contested divorce action brought by Lucy A. Lamphere Neff, teacher in the Nathan Hale Grammar school, at New London, against Raymond Neff, formerly of that city and an overseas war veteran now in the Veterans' hospital No. 44 at West Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Neff, in her petition, charged Neff with desertion since April 13, 1921, while the latter, who contested the case and who was present in court, stated that were it not for Mr. and Mrs. C. Tyler Lamphere, parents of the bride, he believed that he and his wife could have lived together peaceably. He attributed his trouble to nervousness and stated that he did not enjoy being locked up as though he was an insane man, when he was not.

Mrs. Neff who was represented by the law firm of Geary, Davis and Keefe was the first witness to testify. She said she is married to the defendant June 20, 1910, she said she went with her husband in December 1920 to the Hartford Retreat. He remained for some time as a patient and later on the advice of doctors he was removed to West Roxbury where he now is. She said he applied for compensation. Mrs. Neff said that George MacDonald, who is conservator of her husband's estate, gave her $19 per month for her son while he was living and $15 per month for herself but that now she simply gets the $19.

C. Tyler Lamphere testified that he had been obliged to contribute to the support of his daughter since her marriage to Neff and stated that on one occasion, while they were seated at a table, Neff jumped to his feet and said, "She's a liar, and you—I'll get you."

George MacDonald testified that on March 1, 1921, he was made conservator for Neff and that the defendant's estate amounted to about $2,000. He said that Neff was a very nervous man.

Neff said that following his leaving the service after much war duty in the navy in Europe he encountered trouble with his feet, which nearly drove him crazy. He declared that he had always been a steady worker and that when his son was alive, the boy thought more of him than anyone else.

"LOST BATTALION" MAN DIES AT L. I. HOSPITAL

Charles W. Frink, of Lincoln avenue Norwich, who was a member of the famous "Lost Battalion," has learned of the death of another member, Charles D. Noe, 35, of 66 Amity street, Flushing, L. I. Noe died Saturday in Seton hospital, a Veteran Bureau institution, from tuberculosis, which developed from the effects of gas wounds received in France. He was a member of Company I of the 308 Infantry, Seventy-seventh Division. He was captured and spent more than a year in German prison hospitals, before his release after the armistice.

A requiem mass was celebrated in St. Michael's church in Flushing, at his funeral Tuesday, and burial took place with military honors in Mount St. Mary's cemetery. The military escort at the funeral consisted of members of William A. Leonard Post, American Legion, and Flushing Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to both of which Noe belonged. There was also present a firing squad from the Sixty-second Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Totten. The only near relatives of the young soldier are two married sisters.

MONTVILLE POOR FARM LOSES HOUSE AND BARN

The farm house and barn at the Montville poor farm were burned late Wednesday afternoon, with loss estimated at $6,000. The cause of the fire is not definitely known.

Jerome W. House, first selectman of the town of Montville, is quoted as saying that the fire started in a room in which an aged couple, inmates of the farm, were located. It is presumed that someone must have been smoking in the room. As there is no fire department in Montville and the poor farm is rather remotely situated, the flames spread without check and there was just time for nearby farmers to save a little of the furniture and release the animals in the barn.

The house, which was of two-story frame construction, burned rapidly and Mr. and Mrs. George Beckwith, who leased the farm and maintained it, had little time to save any of their personal effects. The aged couple, in whose room the fire started, lost their few belongings, all they had in the world, and presented a pitiful sight as they were taken from the house and watched the only home they knew, go up in flames. It is fortunate that there were no more than the two, to rescue, for the flames shot out into the hall upstairs and cut off any escape from the part of the house in which the bedrooms are located. The two inmates were later taken to a farmhouse close by, where they will remain pending their disposition by the town. A large barn and silo on the farm escaped the fate of the other buildings only by being situated in the direction from which the wind came. This barn has been recently built, the former being struck by lightning a few years ago and burned down.

There was nothing but a few smouldering embers at dusk to greet the many people from Montville and Palmertown who visited the scene. The strings of a piano presented a grim remembrance of the happy home of a few hours before. A massive old-fashioned fire-place stood up in the center of the debris reflecting a picture of aged ruins.

A light wind carried sparks for rods around and only the timely appearance of more nearby farmers prevented a serious fire in the woods. The barn, which is located about 30 yards from the house soon took fire and burned to the ground with the house.

The fire again brings up the question of the need of fire apparatus in Montville. Selectman House said that an attempt was made last fall to organize a fire company but the project fell through. Since then a house belonging to the Robert Gair company has burned to the ground, a paper box plant belonging to the Robertson Mills has burned down and there has been several serious brush fires, resulting in much damage. At the time of the Robertson fire the New London fire department was summoned and a bill of $400 was later sent to the town of Montville. The town officials do not believe that they should pay the bill and the Robertson company has not signified an intention of paying it. There is still a question as to who is liable.

Selectman House said that the town of Montville has a grand list of more than five million and a half dollars and in view of that fact the attempt was made last fall to organize a fire company. He said that at the time the proposal was brought up the Robertson interests were the most opposed.

The poor farm burned to the ground 20 years ago, much as it did Wednesday. In that space of time there has been no more protection afforded, although the grand list has been increased more than half.

Whether the destruction of the poor farm, town property, will cause town officials to make another attempt to organize a fire department, is not known, but people of Montville do not feel safe with the nearest fire engines seven miles away and the sentiment may compel some action to be taken in the near future.

BACKUS HOSPITAL

The past month at the Wm. W. Backus hospital has been a busy one. Tuesday afternoon of this week was National Hospital Day, and in accordance with this custom, the hospital held its annual at-home. The beautiful afternoon brought many visitors, and found the building newly scrubbed and painted and made fair with gifts from interested friends. Over 150 people availed themselves of this opportunity for looking over the equipment and mechanism of a modern hospital. Laboratories, laundries, kitchens, operating rooms, wards and private rooms were open to everyone's inspection, under the guidance of Superintendent F. L. Hutchins. Miss Kathleen Dowd and an able corps of nurses. The gala atmosphere was accentuated by lovely spring flowers, generously sent by Carl Johnson, the florist, and Frank L. Woodard. All the trays of the ward patients and the children bore fruit and miniature lolly-pops which were given by the ladies of the Spiritual Academy who visited the hospital that day.

To make the day more memorable, the new silver for the trays—the gift of the Women's Auxiliary—came early that morning and was used for the first time at dinner. This equipment of twelve trays, bowl and food cover, is made on simple, fine lines, and of the best quality of hospital silver. It is but the beginning of the replenishment of the silver which the auxiliary is desirous to complete as soon as the necessary $1,200 can be set aside for the purpose.

Hospital Day not only showed the working and daily regime of the Backus hospital, but proved its growing efficiency to the citizens of Norwich. It became to the visitors a challenge to help make it the best hospital possible, worthy of the earnest support of its own townspeople.

With Hospital Day successfully accomplished, the nurses of the class of 1925 are plunging deeper into study which will bring them safely through the final examinations, soon to begin. One pleasure which lightened the days of anxious study was afforded by the management of the Palace Theatre who sent ten tickets for a recent show to the nurses of the graduating class.

As warm weather draws on, the hospital farm is the center of much attention. The hogs are being fattened by the food from the hospital which cannot be used otherwise. Eight acres of land are under cultivation for summer vegetables, potatoes, strawberries and ensilage corn, for winter fodder for the cattle.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE FOR BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

That Norwich has appreciated the vision of what a perfectly equipped modern hospital can do for a city has been evidenced by their support in the past for the Backus hospital. The Nurses' Home, now approaching completion, proves the interest and enthusiastic loyalty to an institution so necessary to the safety and well-being of its townspeople. The Women's Auxiliary, newly organized a year ago, has had genuine help from Norwich women and women. The past year has proved the Auxiliary a splendid clearing-house through which the interest and enthusiasm of Norwich women have been able to work. Last year's membership list showed over 1,200 women glad to show their approval by joining the Auxiliary.

The first membership drive was a great success, and, on Friday, May 22nd, the second annual drive opens under the same able leadership as last year, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman of the membership committee. In an interview with Mrs. Brown, she said: "We asked for 500 members last year, and over 1,200 people joined. This year we are asking for 1,500 members, feeling sure that the work of the Auxiliary has kept old friends and made many new ones. The dues are the same as last year, one dollar annual dues, and twenty-five dollars for life-membership which a man and his wife may take out together if they so desire. The city is being districted and will be thoroughly canvassed. However, if every one who can would send their dues to me by mail, at 262 Broadway, they will receive their receipt by mail, and greatly help the canvasers. We ask the same co-operation and response as we had last year, and greater, as the Auxiliary has proved its worth to the hospital and community."

Mrs. Brown also explained the life-membership of twenty-five dollars is kept as a separate fund which is already over $500, and which will form the nucleus of a nurses' scholarship fund.

The names of the workers in Norwich and surrounding towns will be published later. The Auxiliary believes that a quick and effective response of all those eager to have a hand in so worthy a cause will be forthcoming, and the work for the Backus Hospital will be more ably supported this coming year.

FORESTRY TOPICS FOR ROUND TABLE MEETING

The nearness of Arbor Day guided the Norwich Round Table toward forestry programme for its meeting this week which was held with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Collins of 65 McKinley avenue. An instructive paper upon Arbor Day, Its History, Spirit and Significance was read by Edward Smith, formerly the Mohegan park superintendent, and John E. Fanning presented an interesting paper upon American Forests. The musical numbers for the evening were sung by Miss Elizabeth Collins and Joseph Hynd, who were later heard in a pleasing duet. Dainty refreshments were served.

The next meeting, which will be held with Mrs. Arthur R. Blackledge, will be the annual meeting of the Round Table.

WARNING TO VETERANS OF THE WORLD WAR

Washington, May 14—[A. P.]—Warning was given to all veterans of the world war to hasten the filing of their applications under the adjusted compensation act, in the form of a ruling issued by Comptroller General McCarl which disallowed payment on an application which had been started, but not completed, at the time of the applicant's death.

Relatives of the veteran whose case was cited in the ruling found the incomplete application in his effects and filed it in behalf of his estate, but Mr. McCarl ruled that it could not be construed as valid.

"Where a veteran entitled to compensation under the world war adjusted compensation act partially completed an application for the benefits conferred by the act but died before completing same, and the uncompleted application is subsequently found in the effects of the deceased veteran, and filed on and in his behalf by other persons," he said, "it is not valid application as contemplated by the act and payments under an adjusted service certificate issued on the basis of such an application are unauthorized."

STATE RESTS IN TRIAL OF OLYMPIA MACRI FOR MURDER

Joseph Candee, a Photographer, Testified That He Found Scratches and a Stab Wound on the Body of the Girl Defendant—Three Witnesses Gave Testimony That Might Furthur the Claim That the Accused Killed Bagnano in Self Defense.

New Haven, May 15—After the state had rested late today in the trial of Olympia Macri charged with the murder of John Bagnano, the defense opened up its case at 4:05 p. m. by recalling two witnesses who had previously testified for the state. A third witness who took the stand before court recessed until Tuesday morning told of finding scratches and a stab wound on the body of Miss Macri.

All three witnesses were called to testify to testimony that might further the claim that the defendant shot Bagnano in front of a theatre here on February 26 in order to protect herself.

The last witness called by State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling was James J. Sisk, local undertaker, who testified to finding the missing trousers which John Bagnano wore at the time he was shot. Sisk said that he had located the apparel in his establishment and Mrs. Carolina Bagnano, widow of the slain man, took the witness stand and identified the trousers as those her husband had worn on the day in question.

The first witness called by the defense was John A. Tierney, professional singer, who was in the lobby of the theatre when Bagnano was shot.

Asked by Joseph Koletsky, counsel for the defense, if he had ever seen a revolver on the person of the deceased witness said that he had on a Wednesday night three weeks before the shooting. Witness said that Bagnano had taken the gun from a fight and kept pocket and had given it to him. He said he returned the revolver to Bagnano later.

The second witness called by the defense was Dr. James J. Gettings, local physician. He testified to making an examination of Miss Macri shortly after she was brought to the jail following the shooting. Dr. Gettings told of finding a scar on the right hip which he declared might very likely have been inflicted with a knife. He also testified that on further examination he found three scratches on her body, one on the right side of her neck and two on her arm.

The last witness called by the defense today was Joseph Candee, a photographer, who told of taking pictures of the marks found on the girl's body.

The state rested after the re-direct examination of Sisk. Asked as to how he had located the missing wearing apparel, witness testified that Mrs. [illegible] had given the information over the telephone and asked him to look for the trousers which Defense Attorney Koletsky had previously intimated had been taken from the body of John Bagnano by bandits. At an early stage in the trial Defense Attorney Koletsky contended that a revolver had been in one of the pockets of the trousers when Bagnano was shot to death.

On the cross-examination of Sisk he was asked: "Did you find a revolver in the trousers?" He said that he had not.

Mrs. Carolina Bagnano, called earlier by the state, told of a conversation she had with Miss Macri a few weeks before the shooting.

"When Olympia came and told you her story, weren't you amazed at it?" she was asked.

"Yes, I was."

"And still you remained a good friend of Olympia's?"

"No sir, I was no friend of her's after that."

On examination by State's Attorney Alling the widow was asked if she did not go once to see Miss Macri's baby. She admitted that she had.

"Didn't you really go to see if the baby looked like your husband?" Defense Attorney Koletsky asked her a few minutes later.

"No, I did not. I told Olympia that I would care for the baby if she could prove to me that Johnny was the father."

William Joseph Kelly, an amateur theatrical director, was the second witness called at today's session. He testified that he had been on friendly terms with John Bagnano for a long time and that the slain man had confided in him.

"Did he ever tell you anything about this girl?" State's Attorney Alling asked the witness. Kelly repeated a conversation between himself and Bagnano in which the latter had told him of going with Miss Macri.

Ralph Bagnano, brother of John Bagnano, and one of the two members of the family who took Bagnano to the hospital, testified that on the day of the shooting he saw a crowd gathering up the street and found his brother lying on the pavement.

On cross examination Defense Attorney Koletsky asked him: "You knew that John was going to kill Olympia?"

"You are lying now."

"Weren't you supposed to meet your two brothers?"

"I tell you again you are lying."

The two youths who aided in carrying Bagnano into the auto in which he was taken to the hospital after the shooting were next put on the witness stand in turn. They were Frank Carretta, an actor, and Stephen Pulso, a clerk. They both said they heard shots fired and rushed to the scene. They then aided in carrying Bagnano to the car, they testified.

SHIPS ON RUM ROW ARE PLAYING WAITING GAME

New York, May 15—New York's rum fleet, which is [illegible] the relentless siege of the coast guard, is preparing to return to its old position within a few days, coast guardsmen attached to the cutters Seneca and the Yamacraw said today, when they put in at Staten Island for supplies.

Information filtering through from the few ships that still are playing a waiting game with the dry navy, the guardsmen said, indicated that the return of the fleet, many ships of which scattered yesterday, is scheduled for Monday. Most of the ships that left, they said, were off Hampton Roads or had sailed for Canadian ports to replenish their supplies.

If the ships return, however, it was said, they will find the coast guard still vigilant. There are forty government ships now patrolling rum row, with nineteen in reserve ready to keep tight the blockade.

Two legal blows were struck today in the work of drying up the Atlantic coast. Judge Garvin in federal court reaffirmed his previous decision that the $200,000 cargo of the Dutch schooner eZshord, seized last December, is forfeited to the United States. Its owners contended that it was captured while making for shore in distress.

Captain Lemaitre of the Lived Royal Pelee steamship Mercier on whose ship nearly 800 cases of liquor were seized yesterday, today was fined $1,597.

MILDRED SAVE SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS IN PRISON

Paterson, N. J., May 15—Mildred (Babe) Save, 22, was sentenced to not more than ten nor less than five years in state prison after a jury returned a verdict of manslaughter for the killing last month of Samuel Campelmo in a Little Falls roadhouse, which they operated together.

Sentence was pronounced by Supreme Court Justice Charles A. Black, after a jury of seven women and five men had balloted for three hours before reaching a verdict. Miss Save fainted when the verdict was read and could not be revived for ten minutes.

John A. Matthews, counsel for Miss Sage, indicated that no appeal would be taken from today's verdict. Mrs. Marjorie Kuyl, foreman of the jury was so overcome with emotion when the talesmen returned to the courtroom to report their finding, that she was unable to read the words of the verdict printed on a yellow paper which she held in her hand. Silently she handed the verdict slip to Rose H. Hopper, juror number two. Miss Hopper read it in words scarcely audible.

FAVORS LIMITATION OF POISONOUS GASES IN WAR

Washington, May 15—President Coolidge favors limitation by international agreement of the use in war of poisonous gases.

The president has no definite plan now in mind with respect to the placing of such restrictions on the use of gas, however, and has no inkling what the Geneva arms traffic conference may do in the matter. He feels, however, that the conference should not interfere unreasonably with peace time commercial transactions in chemical materials or limit their sale for legitimate usage in any decision it reaches to curtail their employment in warfare.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES RETURNED TO FLYING FIELD

Lakehurst, N. J., May 15. — The navy dirigible Los Angeles returned to the flying field at 6.34 o'clock tonight after a flight over New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware with 30 guests of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The big ship had covered a total of 290 miles since it set out at 11.30 o'clock this morning.

The passengers, many of them prominent in finance, industry, education, many in army and navy circles, said that the flight had been without any delay or engine trouble. Many of the guests expressed themselves as convinced by the flight that the lighter-than-air craft was destined to become a valuable asset to the country both from a commercial and military standpoint.

Lunch was served to the guests while the airship was flying between Trenton, N. J., and Easton, Pa. Captain George Steele, in command of the Los Angeles, said that the engines worked perfectly during the entire flight, and that there was no incident to mar the performance of the dirigible. The landing was effected on the first trial.

OBTAINED BABY FOR PAYMENT OF $100 CASH

New York, May 15—(A. P.)—A new phase entered into the investigation of Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen-Volk's "baby farm" when Mrs. Rose Fielhart told Chief Assistant Attorney Pecora that in September, 1924, she obtained a baby from Mrs. Geisen-Volk's East 86th street infants' home after paying $100 in cash.

Mrs. Fielhart said she went to Mrs. Geisen-Volk's place and chose a 4-year-old girl, whom she named Rose, after herself, and who has been known to her friends as her own child. She said she wanted a child, never having had one, and wants to keep the baby now, although recent disclosures concerning Mrs. Geisen-Volk's institution made her worry about the way she acquired the girl.

Immediate steps to investigate Mrs. Fielhart's story were taken with the issuance of a subpoena for Florentins Voshla, a midwife, who, records of the health department show, was present at the birth of the child in question.

PRESIDENT AWARDS THE ROOSEVELT MEDALS

Washington, May 15.—In the east room of the White House, President Coolidge late today presented medals awarded by the Roosevelt Memorial association to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, George Bird Grinnell of New York, and Miss Martha Berry of Georgia. The awards are made annually for distinguished service in any of ten fields of endeavor.

Addressing Governor Pinchot, who receives the medal for his services in behalf of conservation, President Coolidge declared that "no American who is" familiar with the history of the great movements inaugurated by such men as John Muir, Edward A. Bowers and Secretary John W. Noble, and later sponsored by President Roosevelt, for the preservation of our forests, our waterpower and our mineral wealth, will question the justice of this award."

President Angell said he believed athletics was the most valuable training for good character and strong bodies. "And the biggest thing in Yale athletics is the spirit which inspires the men who are carrying it on.

"Under the leadership of Coach Tad Jones, Yale has had for the last four years the most extraordinary run of success in athletics, winding up with the Olympic success of last year. The football team has made good. Track and swimming teams are coming into their own."

Officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Judge Walter D. Makepeace, Waterbury; vice president, Joseph R. Ensign, Simsbury; secretary-treasurer, Irving Badger, of Boston.

FIREMEN FIGHT BLAZE IN WAREHOUSE AT WESTPORT

Westport, May 16.—Westport and Saugatuck volunteer firemen were battling vainly against a blaze in the warehouse of the Saugatuck Feed and Grain company adjoining the railroad station here this morning and it was feared that the whole building would be destroyed with an estimated loss of $100,000. The fire was discovered a few minutes before midnight and the cause could not be determined. State and local police were called out to keep back the crowd of spectators which numbered into the thousands.

The building which was of brick construction and about 150 feet long, was owned by Harry Tobin and Augustus Knorr. The railroad station nearby was threatened by the fire and its side was blistered by the heat, but the firemen kept the blaze from spreading. Two automobile trucks were removed from the building and a freight cars on one of the sidings caught fire but was drawn out and the blaze was extinguished.

The firemen were handicapped by a low water pressure.

MEETING OF COUNCIL OF SOCIAL AGENCIES

Bridgeport, May 15.—Outlining the necessity for private and public welfare agencies working in co-operation with one another and emphasizing the fact neither could operate independently of the other, and the fact that both are necessary in the community Robert W. Kelso, secretary of the Social Agencies of Boston and formerly commissioner of public welfare for Massachusetts, addressed the annual meeting of the council of social agencies, at the University club here this noon.

He also explained the need of a uniform standard and a programme of social service so that the social workers, whom he described as elements of a great enterprise, could see the programme of the whole horizon of social and welfare necessities.

The warrant for Rome's arrest was issued by the West Hartford authorities. Rome was discharged to their custody and will be tried in the West Hartford town court next Monday night.

Gen. N. A. Miles Died Suddenly at Circus

Complained of Feeling Ill, Then Collapsed Into the Arms of Dr. A. E. Craig.

Washington, May 15—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, Nestor of American army leaders, premier Indian fighter, diplomat and author, has taken up the long trail.

His career, spanning four of the six important military periods of his country's history, ended suddenly late today in the big tent of a circus just as a fanfare of trumpets announced the opening pageant.

General Miles was surrounded by happy children, including those of his own family's third generation, excited over the prospect of witnessing reproduction of scenes which in their actuality had occupied so important a phase of his own life.

Turning to Mrs. W. B. Noble, mother of his daughter-in-law, the general complained that he felt ill. Before help could be summoned, he collapsed into the arms of Dr. A. E. Craig, sitting directly behind him.

The body was removed, underneath the tier of seats, to the outside, where a hasty examination resulted in the diagnosis that death had resulted from myocarditis and acute dilation of the heart. This was confirmed later at the hospital to which the body was rushed.

Despite his advanced years—86—the death of General Miles came as an extreme shock to his intimate associates. During the 22 years which have elapsed since he was retired "for age," he had maintained an active interest in current affairs, particularly those which touched either the army or navy. Any incident affecting either service was a matter of immediate personal interest to the veteran soldier.

There was no outward indication of a change in his uncommonly robust when he announced today his intention of accompanying his grandchildren on their annual circus jaunt. Arriving at the show grounds, he gaily greeted one of the proprietors, whom he had known for years, with the remark that he intended never to miss a performance.

Mrs. Coolidge was present when General Miles collapsed but was seated some distance from him, and, as was the case with most of the audience, failed to recognize the crumpled figure which was carried hastily but tenderly away. The excitement in that vicinity lulled quickly, and the circus programme was resumed after a brief pause. As the acrobats tumbled and the clowns grimmaced, however, the wires were carrying news of the warrior's passing far and wide and even to the western reservations where wait a few aged members of Indian tribes he fought, grimly but fairly, through so many campaigns.

Plans for the funeral services are expected to await the arrival of General Miles' son, Major Sherman Miles, who is returning on the Leviathan from a long tour of duty with the American high commission at Constantinople, and of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel M. Reber, wife of Major Reber retired. She was visiting friends in New York and left at once for Washington when advised of the general's death. The Leviathan is reported due at New York Sunday.

Interment is expected to be in a mausoleum, constructed under the general's personal direction on a gently sloping lawn of Arlington, directly in front of the Lee mansion. The edifice is of white marble, and from its portico can be seen plainly the high walls of the war department, around which was centered so large a part of the general's activities.

You would not like to hire anyone without a good reference.

Why not extend the same plan to the servants you buy for your home—the servants that sweep your floor, that wash and iron your clothes—that play music for you—that feed your family?

You can buy such servants—vacuum cleaners, washers and ironers, phonographs and food—with or without references. When they are advertised they are vouched for by a responsible person—the merchant or manufacturer. You can buy them with confidence—knowing they must live up to their references.

That's why it pays to read the advertisements in The Bulletin. Through advertising you learn not only what is good, but what is trustworthy.

A Bulletin advertisement is more than a reference—it is a certified check of satisfaction. Use them and read them.

MOTOR BOAT TO RACE 20TH CENTURY LIMITED

Detroit, May 15—Gar Wood, world motor boat champion, announced today that he will attempt to defeat the Twenty Century Limited in a dash from Albany to New York on May 26. Two motorboats, the Baby Gar IV and the Baby Gar V will be used in the race, one of which will be piloted by Wood.

Officials of the American Power Boat association and the Yachtsmen's association will be asked to verify the time on starting at Albany and the arrival at New York. Mayor William S. Hackett of Albany, has been asked to start the boats on their way as the Twentieth Century Limited crosses the bridge over the Hudson river. The distance to be covered is approximately 150 miles, the finish for the hydroplanes being at the Columbia Yacht club, New York.

Gar Wood in 1921 defeated an express train from Miami to New York in a dash up the coast, covering 1,260 miles in 47 hours and 28 minutes.

BOSTON MAN MISSING IN HILLS NEAR VANCOUVER

Vancouver, B. C., May 15—A man registering at a local hotel under the name of J. P. "Dorgan, of Boston, Mass., has been missing several days following his departure, clad in mountaineering clothes, presumably for the mountains near Vancouver.

Police were requested to search for him today. He arrived here last Saturday.

GENEVA CONVENTION EXCLUDES EXPLOSIVES

Geneva, May 15.—(By The A. P.)—Another blow was struck here today by the military and naval representatives to the international conference for the control of traffic in arms and munitions at the draft convention, construction after two years of painstaking effort by experts, as suitable and effective machinery for supervising traffic inarms and war materials.

These representatives already had eliminated battleships and all other warships from any control. Today they decided that gunpowder and explosives should be placed in the category of arms which are supposed to have no military value and therefore are not subject to any control whatsoever. Up to the present gunpowder and explosives had been listed in Category 2, which under the draft convention, is subject to supervision provided it is demonstrated that material in this category is intended for war purposes.

NAVY NOT TO BE USED FOR CHASING RUM RUNNERS

Washington, May 15—President Coolidge expects the cost of fighting rum smugglers by the coast guard to be kept within the appropriations allowed that service by congress.

These appropriations are understood at the white house to amount to $10,000,000 or $11,000,000 and the president believes this amount will be sufficient for the guard to cope with the rum fleet.

In any event, he is not prepared to use the navy or any part of it for chasing rum runners. He told that the navy is an arm for defense and not a policing agency.

STRUCK CHILD IN TEST FOR DRIVER'S LICENSE

Meriden, May 15.—An auto operated here today by Lawrence Miramant, while accompanied by State Policeman B. K. Palmer, who was examining him for a driver's license, struck six year old Louis Slovik as he dashed out into the street from behind a bakery truck. The child is in a serious condition at the Meriden hospital tonight, suffering with a fractured skull. Miramant is held on a technical charge of reckless driving.

French and Riffians In Pitched Battle

Engagement That Commenced Wednesday Still in Progress Yesterday.

Paris, May 15—Official information reaching Paris tonight from Morocco says that the engagement which commenced Wednesday along the Riffian front between the French forces and the Riffian tribesmen is assuming the proportions of a pitched battle.

Marshal Lyautey, the French governor general, reports that the tribesmen in the Bibane sector alone, who offered such a stubborn resistance to the French, numbered 3,50 men, who were armed with rifles and some machine guns and cannon.

It would seem that the Bibans post, besieged by the rebels, has not been completely liberated as tonight's communique from the Babat headquarters in Morocco mentions it as having been revictualed yesterday by the troops of General Colombat. The communique says:

"General Colombat's groups revictualed the posts at Bibane and Dar Remisch, relieved Maghala and sent a detachment to Ourtsag. In the center of the front Colonel Fredenburg attacked a fortified position at Chemus, in the Ben Mahmed territory, defended by 1,600 TeBalis and Riffians. After a very violent combat the French troops stormed camouflaged trenches of the adversary and revictualed the post of Amzes. The enemy losses were heavy.

"Some Riffian infiltrations are reported among the Ouled Amrane tribesmen in the direction of Ain Mastouf.

"On the eastern part of the front important reinforcements of Riffian contingents are concentrating before Kiffane and in the region of Sakka."

POLICE STOPPED COMBAT IN HARVARD CAMPUS

Cambridge, Mass., May 15—A riot call to the college police department was necessary to stop a combat between the staffs of the Harvard Crimson, college daily, and the Lampoon, humorous publication, in the Crimson building here. The trouble started over the annual baseball game between the two staffs, or rather the lack of it.

Each year after the game, both sides declare they have won. Today the Lampoon team arrived for the game at Soldiers field, grabbed as old ladies, only to find "news boys" selling "baseball extras" of the Crimson, giving complete details of the "Crimson victory" and the box score. Lampy's men rushed to the Crimson building and after plastering its front with mud, and burning several Crimsons in the yard, stormed the editorial sanctum for a hand to hand encounter with the editors. Two yard watchmen quelled the disturbance.

FRENCH GOV'T TO HASTEN WAR DEBT NEGOTIATIONS

Cabinet Has Instructed Finance Minister Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand to Make a Study of the Whole Question—Active Negotiations Probably Will Begin Next Month—Correspondence Will be Opened With London and Washington When the Time Arrives For Concrete Proposals to be Made.

Paris, May 1—(A. P.)—The cabinet approved the common suggestion made by Finance Minister Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand that the way be prepared for a settlement of French war debts, and directed these two ministers to make a study of the whole question with a view to the institution of early negotiations. The official adhesion to the principle calling for a settlement of the debt problem in the near future confirms the reports current during the past few wekes that the new French government would not allow this cloud to hang over France much longer.

Active negotiations, it was said at the Quay D'Orsay on Wednesday, probably will begin within fifteen days. It is thought at the ministry of finance, however, that this opinion was too optimistic because France can make a definite proposal for a settlement only after the budget is voted for 192, by which it will be seen whether the French parliament approves. Finance Minister Caillaux's plan is to take the receipts from the Dawes plan out of the regular state revenue account and use them in part for debt settlement. And in order for the completion of the reconstruction work in the devastated areas of the north of France.

It is expected that the budget will be out of the way in about six weeks, and then M. Caillaux having finished the first of his three-stated financial plan, will grapple with the second, which is debt settlement. This means all debts owed by France, internal as well as external.

The minister of finance has in view a vast project for the funding of the floating debt, and for the refunding of all other government bonds into an entirely new system. He will at the same time take up the debt owed to the United States and Great Britain, providing the French parliament in the meantime have placed the annuities meantime has placed the annuities from the Dawes plan at his disposal.

If the budget and debt stages of his three-part financial programme are safely passed, then Caillaux will take up his last task, that of restoring French money as near as possible to its pre-war value. All of these projects, it was pointed out at the ministry of finance, depend, first, upon the decision of parliament regarding the disposition to be made of receipts under the Dawes plan, and secondly, upon French public opinion, which must be prepared to realize that the bulk of reparations payments must in the future go toward the payment of French debts.

Negotiations will be opened with both London and Washington when the time arives for concrete proposals to be made. They will take the form of personal conferences between Finance Minister Caillaux, Foreign Minister Briand, the British foreign secretary, Austen Chamberlain, and Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the exchequer. In the negotiations with Washington a special French commission probably will be sent to deal with the American Debt Funding Commission.

METROPOLITAN OPERA CO. TO RETAIN PONSELLE SISTERS

New York, May 15.—Talent and music new to Metropolitan audiences marked by the addition of American artists and one American production, will be offered by the Metropolitan Opera company in its 1925-26 season, beginning November 2, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, impresario, announced today preparatory to his sailing tomorrow for Europe.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza spoke of the past season as "such as to establish a record without precedents" and outlined the coming programme, including five new offerings and six revivals. He announced the re-engagement of virtually all last season's artists and the addition of new stars to the Metropolitan's galaxy. These include Miss Carmela Ponselle and Miss Dorothea Flexer, both Americans and mezzo-sopranos; Miss Edith Fleischer, soprano; Lauritz Melchior, tenor from the Berlin opera and Mario Basiola, baritone.

The engagement of Miss Caramela Ponselle marks the romantic reunion of the Ponselle sisters, former choir singers at Meriden, Conn., and later of the vaudeville stage together. Some years ago the sisters separated, the younger, Rosa, being given her chance to enter grand opera through the unselfishness of Carmela, who remained on the vaudeville stage when, for financial reasons it was possible for only one to prepare for opera. Rosa made her triumph in "La Forza Del Destino" in 1918. Last January, Carmela, who meanwhile had made notable progress, sang with her sister on the Metropolitan stage and the reception she received resulted in her engagement for the coming season.

SMALL FINES IMPOSED ON STRIKING OPERATIVES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 15—"It is the sole interest of the police court to preserve law and order and as it is against the statute laws for a crowd to follow persons on public streets for the purpose of annoyance there is no alternative for this court but to find the accused guilty of breach of the peace," was the statement of Judge Frank H. Foss, previous to fining three striking operatives of the American Thread Company, on charges of breach of the peace and one for assault. Through their attorney, John T. Barry, of Jewett City pleas of not guilty were entered.

Fines of $2 and costs were imposed on Aldea and Mary R. Bertrand and Celina St. George. Jeanette St. George was fined $5 and costs for assault. The total assessment of $31.31 was paid.

The four defendants were arrested on the strength of warrants served by the local police department, on complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Benson. Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey appeared for the state. Court convened at 2 o'clock before an overflowing gallery. The state witnesses were: Mrs. Ida Benson, her husband, Raymond Benson, Lester G. Clark, Ralph Bertola and William D. Talcott. Witnesses for the defense were: Jeanette St. George, 17, Yvonne Lord, 12 a grammar school student; Celina St. George, Aldea Bertrand, Mary R. Bertrand, John Potvin Jr., Aldea Fontaine, Lena Vaillaint, Helen Van Haverbeck, Alvea Rail, Rosie Riquier, and Beatrice Lamontagne.

The defense sought to establish that the trouble started when someone pushed the Lord girl against Mrs. Benson and the latter turned about and struck the girl in the face. Jeanette St. George then interfered in the defense of the child. A hair-pulling match resulted during which Mrs. Benson was kicked in the stomach. Her husband, Raymond Benson, was alleged by the defense to have been violent in separating those figuring in the fracas.

The testimony of the various witnesses for the defense was based on facts that only Jeanette St. George, of the four accused, fought with Mrs. Benson. The trouble occurred on Union street. Saturday, about noon, after the Bensons had been followed from the mills where they are employed for the American Thread Company to their home on Union street. The demonstration was confined to remarks, the nature of which was questioned by both sides, until the Lord child was pushed against Mrs. Benson. Officer John Killourey of the local police department stated that Benson had his arm around the neck of one of the girls when the officer arrived. Benson was taken to police headquarters and released with a reprimand. Officer Grant Rombria testified that he had reasons to believe that there had been a mix-up, but when he arrived the trouble had subsided. Officer Killourey and John Potvin, were controlling Benson.

Jeanette St. George stated that she was only defending herself. She said that when she told Mrs. Benson to leave the Lord child alone, Mrs. Benson started after her. Witness returned the attack by pulling Mrs. Benson's hair and kicking her once. All of the defense witnesses stated that they did not use vile words and confined their remarks while following the Bensons to mere Hurrahs. It was successfully established that only Jeanette St. George took any part in the alleged assault. The four had been arrested on similar charges of assault and breach of the peace. The assault charges against three were nolled.

Ida Benson, for the state, told of the crowd of strikers following her and her husband from No. 5 Mill. She said that the Lord girl pushed her with some force and she swung about and struck her in the face. Jeanette St. George, Celina St. George, Aldea and Mary Bertrand then pitched into witness, pulled at her hair and kicked her. She knew that her husband came to her rescue, but she did not see him strike any of her assaulters.

The state based its case on the grounds that it was unlawful for the strikers to follow workers in a body. Some thirty were in line behind the [illegible] It was alleged, were also responsible for the instigation of the fight by [illegible] Lord child against Mrs. Benson adding such names as "epithets as 'scabs,' 'suckers,' and 'stinkers,' which caused the Benson [illegible] Judge Foss brushed aside [illegible] they had annoyed him all the way from the mill to Union street by attempting to stir him up. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey recommended a small fine which would be sufficient to insure against any repetition of the actions.

Attorney Barry made a plea to the court to keep the records of the girls clean by finding them not guilty. He rested his side of the case with the statement that Mrs. Benson had started the trouble when she struck the Lord girl in the face.

Court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock. Ten other cases of similar nature held against strikers were continued until 9 o'clock Monday morning. An effort will be made to have all the cases disposed of by Tuesday.

NORWICH DIST. EPWORTH LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 15—The Norwich District Epworth League Convention was held Friday at the Methodist Episcopal church with a large attendance from Willimantic and surrounding cities and towns. The morning session was opened at ten o'clock by Rev. N. B. Burton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Putnam. An address on the Epworth League followed, by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist church, New London, and former superintendent of the Worcester, Mass., district. Mr. Spaulding said that the league was as yet small, but mighty, making up what it might seem to lack in size by "hollering" using the comparison of a man who thought he had four million frogs in the pond next his house and then was only able to find two.

He said the normal age for entering the organization is about fifteen, the age when one first enters high school, and that the next year membership is not to let any one of that age get by without joining, also that everyone in the community who is decent should be eligible to membership. He recommended five I's which should be of use for Epworth League work, information, imagination, inspiration, initiation and insistence.

Mr. Burton spoke briefly on the work of the league commenting on an increase in membership in Norwich district from 1380 in 1923 to 1455 in 1925 and talked of the importance of the things of the spirit. Reports from district officers and local leagues followed.

The leagues and districts represented included New London, North Grosvenordale, Norwich Town, Rockville, south Manchester, Danielson, Stafford Springs, Uncasville, Vernon, Westerly, Millville, Gales Ferry, Hockanum, Jewett City, Mapleville, Glendale, Moosup and Willimantic.

The afternoon session opened with a business meeting, followed by a discussion of goals to be attained by the Norwich district. # AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

ROOSTS RECOMMENDED FOR SIX-WEEK-OLD-CHICKS

Roosts should be made for chicks as soon as they are six weeks old, or by this time of year. If the two-room brooder is being used the roosts should be made in the warm room. They should not be more than one foot from the ground and should be made to be moved about easily. The sooner chicks are taught to roost the less trouble they will make, the less huddling there will be and consequently less mortality will result. Some people think that early roosting causes crooked keel bones and misshapen bodies. This is a mistaken idea for hardly any trouble can be traced to this cause. It is caused by malnutrition, improper feeding methods.

Before putting in these roosts be sure that they are treated with some coal tar disinfectant to help to prevent the infection of mites and lice. The roosts should be placed near each other so that the chicks will not catch cold by being in small groups.

MANY ORCHARDS THREATENED BY CURCULIO

The curculio is one of the most serious pests in the orchards of the state at the present time. It is responsible for an immense amount of damage every year, and might even be said to rank with apple scab as a cause of blemished fruit. The peculiar, russeted scars, often crescent-shaped, as well as the feeding punctures, are common evidence of the work of this insect.

Orchard sanitation is one of the effective agents in the control of the culculio, since the adults live over winter in trash on the ground. For this reason, curculio injury is less common in well cultivated orchards, and removal of all brush, hedge rows, etc., is recommended. The destruction of "drops" soon after falling, before the larvae go into the ground, will also make control easier. But clean-up methods alone will not solve the problem. They should supplement, rather than be a substitute for a timely application of arsenate of lead.

Cases are on record where a bad infestation of curculio has been practically cleaned out in a single season by the method suggested. Two facts should be borne in mind, with regard to the habits of this insect, if our efforts are to be successful. First, the curculio feeds to some extent upon the foliage before it begins to lay its eggs in the fruit, and second, the emergence fro nwinter quarters is often delayed on account of a backward season, and as a result the adults appear in the trees over a period of two or three weeks. Arsenate of lead, three to five pounds to one hundred gallons of water, along with the other materials recommended in the "pink" and "calyx" sprays, is undoubtedly of great value and in some seasons may be sufficient to secure control. But on account of late emergence, a similar spray a week or 10 days later than the "calyx" may prove profitable. Some orchardists feel that this application is of equal importance with the earlier sprays, because a number of other pests are reached at the same time.

WELL TO PLANT EMERGENCY HAY CROP

An emergency hay crop, such as soybeans, should be planted this spring by dairymen or it is quite likely they will have to buy other expensive western grain next winter, warns Prof. J. M. Abbott of the Massachusetts Agricultural college. Two successive drought seasons not only decreased the hay crops of the last two years but so injured the permanent hay stands and the new seedings as to threaten a serious shortage this year.

Even if it costs $25 a ton to put soybean hay in the barn, as compared with $20 for common grass hay and $15 for alfalfa, it is an angual that can be planted and harvested this season and which will provide a harmful of feed for next fall and winter. Land that will raise 10 tons of silage to the acre will make one and a half to two and a half tons of soy bean hay.

SODIUM ARSENATE WHEN USED TO KILL THE COMMON BARBERRY

Because the method of destroying the common bargerry by digging has proved to be not only difficult but expensive, the United States department of agriculture has sought an effective method of exterminating the bushes with chemicals. Many different chemicals were tried on small bushes, first in the greenhouse and later in the field when the greenhouse experiments seemed to warrant it. Among the most promising chemicals so studied was sodium-arsenite solution.

A discussion of the experimental work with sodium arsenite is contained in department bulletin 1316 just issued. A review of the literature on arsenic, primarily sodium arsenite in its relation to uses for seed kiling, reveals the fact that arsenic has been extensively used for this purpose with good success and with no apparent permanent damage to the soil, which of necessity becomes the recipient of the substance. Soil organisms, such as bacteria, have been stimulated by small quantities of arsenic, and even higher plants grown on arsenic soils have shown stimulation, as manifested in increased growth.

Carefully selected ground portions of various plants with a solution of arsenite identical with the one used for application on the roots showed that only the treated portions were killed, and then only in the case of tender plants. Plants with waxy or leathery leaves were not affected when held in the solution for three minutes.

This suggests that spraying may fail to kill some plants and also that spraying the above ground portions of plants may not result in arsenic being carried to the roots or tubers, thus leaving these portions safe for animal or human consumption.

Field practice has shown that two gallons of a solution prepared from one gallon of commercial sodium arsenite containing the equivalent of 8 pounds of white arsenic and diluted with 40 parts of water were sufficient to cause the death of a single bush of the common barberry. Killing was effected within three to seven days. As the use of sodium arsenite on farms is accompanied by more or less danger to livestock, its use in killing common barberries has been discontinued. Numerous other plants, including grasses and trees, were tested, and all were killed by the solution specified, arsenic being found in their tissues.

Incident, to the use of arsenic, its extreme toxicity to animals, had to be considered, and the literature cites numerous cases of poisoning cattle, sheep, and horses from arsenic obtained from different sources. It had been discovered that cattle are attracted by the sweetish taste of the arsenic. Repellents, such as aloes, have been used with success. These would eliminate the most undesirable features in the use of arsenic.

Since these studies were begun in 1921 the price of arsenic has about doubled, owing primarily to the greatly increased use of calcium arsenite for boll-weevil control. Even at its present price, however, arsenic should be considered when a weed eradicator is being sought. However, extreme precautions to prevent death of livestock always should be taken when using arsenicals.

CABBAGE CELERY AND TOMATO PLANTS

Set out cabbage, celery and tomato plants in the cool of the day. Garden soil that contains much clay should be watered only toward night; otherwise the sun will bake the soil around the stalk so hard that it cannot be thoroughly pulverized without injuring the young plant. Cellar tomato plant stems with cardboard to keep cutworms off.

POINTS ON FEEDING THE LAYING FLOCK

The feeding of the laying flock should be varied slightly as the season advances. The amount of scratch grain per hundred birds per day should be gradually cut down, reaching 11 pounds in June and July. In the meantime, the amount of mash consumed (with mash before the birds all the time) should gradually increase until it reaches about 14 pounds during June and July. Birds that are fed heavily on liquid milk will probably consume slightly less mash than the birds that are not given milk.

As good or better results are being obtained where the birds are allowed to run on range only during the afternoon or the last two or three hours of the day. This practice has several definite advantages: 1st—the eggs are all laid inside of the henhouse and they are kept clean; 2nd—the birds are kept near the mash hoppers and consequently eat more mash and drink more water during the part of the day when they are confined; 3rd—if the range supplies green food it will last longer because the hens spent the time that they have available outside in picking green food and less time trampling or scratching.

Spraying trees in a yard where hens or chickens are running has not been known to cause mortality. For the sake of convenience, it is usually advisable to keep the stock confined until after the spraying is finished and the trees dried off. This also prevents the possibility of hens or chickens drinking from puddles sometimes left by a leaky pump or connection where the sprayer stood.

There is no class of livestock that can make gains equal to poultry. At the end of the eighth week chickens weigh ten times as much as they did at the end of their first week—and they consume ten times as much feed as they did during the first week. This means that the chicks require more room in the brooder house and better ventilation. They require larger mash boxes, larger milk dishes, larger water dishes, and more range room outside; in fact, chicks gain so rapidly that they very frequently outgrow their surroundings and equipment.

Artificial heat for early-hatched chicks cannot usually be discontinued until the chicks are six or seven weeks old. Even then it is advisable to leave the stove in the brooder house so that a fire can be kindled in case of an extremely cold or rainy day. The greatest need for heat occurs during the day or at night, when the chicks come in wet and chilled. After they have once settled down for the night, additional heat is of less importance.

—Unc' Billy 'Possum.

"Whose aiggs were yo' mentioning, Brer Rabbit?" repeated Unc' Billy 'Possum as Peter said nothing.

"What do you want to know for?" demanded Peter suspiciously.

Unc' Billy grinned. "Yo' seemed to be right smart interested in aiggs yo'self a minute ago. Why shouldn't Ah be as interested in pretty aiggs as you'?" retorted Unc' Billy.

To this Peter could find no satisfactory answer and so he made none at all. He wished he hadn't talked aloud. He wished he had kept his tongue still. Anyway, he wouldn't tell where those eggs were or whose they were. Thus Unc' Billy would be no wiser and no harm would be done. So he abruptly turned his back on Unc' Billy and took to his heels. Away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip. Unc' Billy watched him go and chuckled. "Brer Rabbit is trying to run away from his own tongue and taking it with him," said he. "A lot o' folks are that a-way. Brer Rabbit done find some aiggs. If he hadn't he wouldn't have been talking about them. He can't climb trees, so he must have found those aiggs on the ground. He came along the Laughing Brook, so Ah reckon it was somewhere down the Laughing Brook, and not long ago, that he found them. Ah reckon Ah might as well take a look down that a-way."

"Whose aiggs were yo' mentioning, Brer Rabbit?" repeated Unc' Billy

So Unc' Billy climbed down from his perch in the tree and shuffled along over to the Laughing Brook and along the bank in the direction from which Peter had come. His shrewd little eyes kept sharp watch of the ground all about and his sharp little nose was poked into every likely place. But he found no nest and, of course, no eggs. He came to the edge of the Green Forest to where the Laughing Brook went on through the alders and so to the Smiling Pool on the Green Meadows.

Unc' Billy paused. He was a bit in doubt about going on. Then in some mud he saw the prints of Peter's feet. Unc' Billy chuckled. "Ah reckon Ah am headed right," said he. "Ah wonder could it have been the aiggs of Longbill the Woodcock that Brer Rabbit found. It will do no harm to look about in these alders."

So Unc' Billy kept on. Pretty soon Redwing the Blackbird spied him and flew over to make a great fuss, calling him a thief, a rascal and other unpleasant things. Unc' Billy didn't mind particularly. In fact, he didn't mind at all. You see he knew by Redwing's actions that somewhere near was Redwing's nest. So Unc' Billy began looking up in the alders as well as on the ground. There must be two pairs over here, for he was sure that Peter couldn't possibly have seen Redwing's eggs.

But when he reached the edge of the alders without having found any nest at all Unc' Billy began to think that he wasn't so good a guesser as he had thought himself. He didn't just like going out in the open broad daylight. Just a little way ahead was the Smiling Pool. Unc' Billy thoughtfully scratched his nose. There might be Turtle eggs buried in the sand near the Smiling Pool. Turtle eggs would be a great treat, quite as much of a treat as any eggs Peter Rabbit would be likely to have found. This decided Unc' Billy and he moved on again.

The instant he came out from the alders he saw on a stone on the edge of the water a neat, small person, whose tail kept bobbing up and down. It was Teeter the Sandpiper. Unc' Billy grinned. It was a pleased grin, a satisfied grin. He recalled that Peter had said those eggs were pretty and he remembered having once found Teeter's eggs and that they were pretty.

"As sholy as Ah am an old sinner it was Teeter's nest that Brer Rabbit found," he muttered and started on.

Bread Theater.

Among the notables who have expressed themselves upon the brilliant success of "Yolanda," Marion Davies' latest starring picture now being shown at the Breed theater, are Sidney Olcott, famous motion picture director, who directed Miss Davies in "Little Old New York" and the late Spanish town in Potigny in the Pyrenees.

The story opens with Dix, as Robert Gaylord, being sent abroad by his father on the pretense of searching for some valuable mineral— in reality to keep him away from his one weakness—women.

It's a big laugh when Dix and his companions arrive in Potigny during siesta time. It is the custom in this country for the people to take a nap between the hours of twelve and two-thirty o'clock. When the siesta bell rings they stop work and doze off wherever they happen to be. This is the scene that greet the star's eyes when he first arrives.

A big scene is the annual masquerade held on the town's biggest holiday, with the star and William Powell rivals for the honor of dancing the "farandole" (betrothal dance) with Frances Howard. The event is an occasion for much colorful romance and rapid-fire action.

Other high spots in the picture include the scene in Dix's room where he takes all of Powell's insults because he has promised Yvonne (Miss Howard) not to fight. Then the girl releases him from his promise and a real battle follows. The episode in the bandits' cabin in the mountains where Dix is carried a prisoner is another thrilling sequence.

And there's a real smash climax when the star escapes and arrives at the scene of the masquerade just in time to encounter Powell making off with the girl. Here's a scene with a punch for your life—take it any way you like.

Powell has the role of Julio, captain of the guards, in "Too Many Kisses." Others in the cast of the picture are Frank Currier, "Harpo" Marx, Joe Burke and Paul Panzer.

A mermaid comedy and new Kinograms will round out a perfect program.

Palace Theatre.

For the last time today Thumm's Orchestra will present their vaudeville act which has taken the audience by storm at every performance. Other acts on the bill are Berner Damorous Trio, musical clowns, Dodes and Norton, comedians, Edith Knowles past master of hot songs. The Criterions, novelty dancers. The feature picture is The Mansion of Aching Hearts.

Fishing along the California coast is one of the finest sports for amateur fishermen, except for the thieves that infest the waters of the West Coast, especially off Seal Beach. So believe Cullen Landis, star, and James P. Hogan, director, of "The Mansion of Aching Hearts," now showing at the Palace Theatre.

It was while some of the water scenes in this production were being made at that famous beach that the actor and director went fishing. A guide rowed them from the inner bay out through the inlet to the ocean. A mile out they anchored. Landis hooked a fish and started pulling in. Suddenly there came an exceptionally hard and sharp pull that almost yanked him out of the boat. There was nothing at the end of the hook when Landis got the line in.

Sunday night brings a double feature bill of pictures to the Palace.

"Tragedy," as some famous writer once wrote, "is part of life."

The truth of this philosophy will be aptly illustrated to those who see B. P. Schulberg's latest production, "The Parasite," which comes to the Palace theatre for an engagement of four days commencing Sunday.

In picturizing Helen R. Martin's famous novel, B. P. Schulberg has caused his scenario department and his director, Louis Gasnier, to navigate along a straight line and stay close to the text of the story, which treats in a humane manner with the evils of divorce, in homes where children have come to share the sorrows of their parents.

For the various important roles, Mr. Schulberg has assembled a great cast which includes Madge Bellamy, Owen Moore, Bryant Washburn, Lillian Tashman, Mary Carr, Bruce Guerin, and Dorothy Dwan.

The Harrigan Apartments Sold.

One of the most important of the Spring real estate sales was recently consummated through the agency of Archa W. Coit, by the sale of the Harriman Apartments, 175 Broadway, a part of the estate of Mary T. Harriman, under the management of John P. Corcoran, Administrator. The property, just beyond the crest of Broadway hill was for some years known as The Sayles Mansion. It afterwards became the home of the late Charles W. Briggs. Some time after his decease it passed into the possession of New York owners. Shortly following the purchase of the property by Mrs. Harriman it was remodelled for use as a high grade apartment dwelling. Six apartments being fitted up in the mansion and an additional apartment in a building a short distance from the main house. The grounds are unusually attractive for a property so centrally located, extending several hundred feet from Broadway and increasing in width as they recede, providing a number of most desirable house lots within a short walking distance of the business section of Norwich. The new owners, Doctor John T. and Marie L. Boynton purchase the property as an investment and plan to give their personal care and attention to its management and further development.

Attractive Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

The intensely interesting story of "Judith of Bethulia" will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. on the next two Sunday afternoons at 4 o'clock daylight time. The story is taken from the Apocrypha and the poem by Thomas Bailey Aldrich. The poem divides itself into three parts; The Tower, The Assyrian Camp and The Flight. The opening scenes include the Holy Land showing the women drawing water at the wells, the touching episodes of Naomi and her beloved Nathan, and of the beautiful Judith in her tower, the coming of the Assyrian hordes, "like the wolf on the fold" thrills one and a scene impending disaster. The whole story is one of real interest and without a story replete with helpful lessons. In addition to the picture, Hugh Kinder will render vocal solos and furnish music for the pictures, and a brief talk drawing lessons from the picture story will be given by Secretary Hill. Both men and women are cordially invited and boys and girls under fourteen if accompanied by parents.

SUIT THIEVES PUT UP BAIL OF $500 EACH AND DEPART

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, May 15—The two alleged shoplifters, a man and woman who were arrested yesterday charged with stealing five suits of clothes from Putnam merchants are at liberty on a cash bail of $500 each. Both have left the city and it is the general opinion that they will never return to face the charges in court and reclaim the $1,000 bail money.

Putnam people are still wondering at the nerve they displayed, particularly the woman, who in one store, concealed three suits of clothes under her coat, while her companion talked with the owner and in another added two more to the same hiding place and walked up Main street, undetected.

Last night she secured Arthur S. Macdonald as her attorney and was released on $500 cash bond. This money came from her stocking.

She did not appear in city court Friday morning when her companion who gave his name as Joseph Starr was presented on a similar charge. He pleaded not guilty and his bond was fixed at the same amount as hers, $500. He had more than $200 in his possession and from Yonkers, N. Y., which, both of them gave as their home the woman, Anna Swick wired enough additional to permit Starr to be released on bonds. He immediately left the city.

Both denied their guilt, but the stolen suits were found in their baggage and they offered no explanation of that or any other incriminating evidence. Before she left Putnam last night the woman tried to raise $500 on a diamond ring that she wore. It exceeded four carats in weight and officers and others said it was one of the most beautiful they had ever seen. She said it was worth $2,000 but in the absence of any proof that she was the owner it was for her to obtain a loan.

The hearing on both cases was continued to Monday morning next Starr declared before leaving that he would be here at that time, but it would be difficult to find any one here who would take a wager to that effect.

ISLAND OF MAJORCA BORE BRUNT OF RECENT TORNADO

Europe's most recent tornado, coming hard on the heels of that in the Mississippi Valley, struck the Spanish island of Majorca, a hundred miles south of Barcelona in the Mediterranean, demolishing several villages.

"Majorca is an island paradise not very well known even to Spaniards, and almost wholly missed by the stream of outside tourists that courses through other parts of the Mediterranean, Italy, and to a less extent through the Spanish mainland," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "But the beauties and delights of the island are beloved of its own people who have an intense local particolism.

"The island is almost square, about 50 miles along each side, and lies as though hanging by a cord from the eastern end of the Pyrenees by one corner. Thus a corner points in each of the cardinal directions, while the sides are exposed to the northeast, the northwest, the southwest and the southeast.

"Along the northwest side which faces Spain is a high mountain range whose loftiest peaks, nearly a mile high, bear patches of snow in winter. But even in the summer their tops are gleaming white, for they are of marble and the crests of many are devoid of vegetation. The lesser peaks and shoulders are clad in a marble of dark green pines while lower are groves of lilex and flowering shrubs. On the gentler slopes of this northern coast and in its valleys man has placed vineyards and orange and olive groves. The whole panorama, sweeping from the blue sea through varying greens to the shining white peaks, makes a picture of incomparable loveliness.

"If is south of the mountains that Majorca's garden spot is found, and the fertile plain that sweeps off from the foot of the range to the hills that rim the southeastern side of the island is called just that, the 'Huerta.' This level region supports many thousands of acres of almond and apricot trees, and in the spring is a vast sea of blossoms. Among the trees gardens are cultivated and grass is grown for pasturage. The hills that rim the plain have been terraced for centuries and on them rise tier after tier of grape vines and olive trees.

"Palma, the capital of Majorca, lies in a broad bay that indents the southwestern side of the island just south of the high mountains. A city has existed there probably since the days of Carthage when colonists from that African empire occupied Majorca; but there is little evidence now of anything but Spanish influence. Scattered about the city are numerous interesting old palaces of the leading island families—one at least for almost every street. The population is about equal to that of Mobile, Alabama, or Portland, Maine.

"Majorca, like the Spanish mainland, was overrun by the Moors. For 500 years they held the island with Palma (then Mallorca) a flourishing Moorish city. It was a thorn in the side of the Spanish Christian kingdoms, however, for the Majorcan Moors became piratical in the 12th century and no christian ship was safe. King Jayme I of Aragon organized a strong expedition which sailed from near Barcelona in 1229, and after a siege, captured Palma. Soon the whole island was subdued and divided among Jayme's knights and soldiers. It has remained Spanish ever since and there is no trace of Moorish blood among its inhabitants.

"The Spanish Majorcans followed in the footsteps of their Moorish predecessors in so far as developing nautical ability was concerned. As traders they rivaled the Genoese for a time and once dominated the entire western Mediterranean, controlling Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica, Malta and the Balearics. Palma had a great dockyard for galleys. In the middle of the 14th century more than 30,000 sailors and 460 vessels were in the Majorcan service. The Majorcan navy constituted one of Christendom's chief budwarks against the ravages of the Barbary pirates.

"During their prime as merchant shippers, the Majorcans were famous as the leading geographers of Europe. They invented crude but effective instruments of navigation and drew the most reliable charts then known. One of the most valuable old maps in existence is in a museum in Palma. Drawn by a Majorcan in 1439 it was once owned by Amerigo Vespucci. It is a remarkably accurate depiction of the Mediterranean; the Atlantic Coast of Europe and Great Britain as far north as Jutland; and the Near East, including the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea. The latter is colored a brilliant red. When Prince Henry the Navigator, of Portugal, founded a nautical school at the opening of the great era of Portuguese exploration, he placed a Majorcan in charge of it.

"One of the interesting sights of Palma is the old exchange building, near the harbor, where great mercantile affairs were conducted in the old days, as they were in the exchanges of Venice and Genoa. The passage of the galley and the sailing vessel as the chief burden bearers of the world's sea-borne commerce, and the shifting of the world trade center from the Mediterranean, put an end to Majorca's importance as a trading station, and it now finds itself in a sort of eddy of world affairs, thrown on its own resources.

"Near the middle of the southeastern coast line of Majorca are great stalactite caves, among the largest in Europe. They are not, however, so extensive as those of Kentucky and Virginia or the huge Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico."

Fluorspar in 1924

The shipments of fluorspar in 1924, as shown by a statement given out by the department of the interior compiled by Hubert W. Davis of the Geological Survey, amounted to about 124,914 short tons, valued at $2,453,950, an increase of about 3 per cent in quantity but a decrease of about 2 per cent in total as compared with 1923. The reported average selling price f. o. b. mine shipping point decreased from $20.88 in 1923 to $19.65 in 1924. Colorado and Kentucky were the only states that recorded an increase in 1924. The shipments of fluxing grade fluorspar to steel plants and foundries showed an increase of about 11 per cent in 1924, but the shipments of higher grades of fluorspar recorded a decrease of about 25 per cent. The stocks of fluorspar at mines or at shipping points at the end of 1924 amounted to about 69,000 short tons. These stocks consisted of about 23,900 tons of crude fluorspar (which must bemilled before it can be marketed.) 32,400 tons of gravel fluorspar, 6,600 tons of lump fluorspar, and 1,100 tons of ground fluorspar.

Graphite in 1924

The graphite industry in the United States suffered a considerable setback in 1924, according to a statement given out by the department of the interior as shown by figures compiled by the Geological Survey in cooperation with the state geological surveys of Alabama and Michigan. The output in 1924 was 4,971 short tons, valued at $87,510, as compared with 6,038 tons, valued at $150,844 in 1923. Of amounted to 4,071 tons, a very slight increase as compared with 1923, and crystalline graphite amounted to 900 tons (1,800,000 lbs) as compared with 1,982 tons (3,964,000 lbs) in 1923,a decrease of 55 per cent. During the world war—both before and during our participation in it—the graphite industry in the United States flourished and reached its highest output and value. With the cessation of hostilities the demand fell off and the sales decreased markedly in 1919. In 1920, in line with the general prosperity, the output increased, but it fell off again and reached its lowest output and value in many years in 1921. In 1922 and 1923 the trend was upward and increases were made. The manufacture of artificial graphite at Niagara Falls, N. Y., also decreased markedly in 1924, 10,986,192 pounds being manufactured, as compared with 1923, when the output was 26,761,013 pounds.

One of the first considerations of the designers and builders of the new good Maxwell was to make sure of ample strength.

Transmission and rear axle are strong enough for the most powerful lugging through deep sand and mud. In every particular the car is built to do the job—whatever the job may be—and do it unfalteringly.

The new good Maxwell is in truth a car of exceptional quality. The motor is designed not only to deliver 58 miles an hour and accelerate from 5 to 25 in 8 seconds. It also combines such structural features as force feed lubrication to main bearings.

Facts like these account for the car's dependable service and low maintenance costs. We would like an opportunity to tell you the complete Maxwell story. But most of all we are eager to demonstrate the car's finer results and riding qualities.

Meaning of Great Statue

The Saint Gaudens statue in Rock Creek cemetery is correctly called the "Adams Memorial." Saint Gaudens had no intention of symbolizing "grief" in designing the figure. He said that to him it represented the soul face to face with the greatest of life's questions—"If a man die shall he live again?"

No Stated Sum for Church

The government of England does not appropriate any specific sum of money in support of the church. One of its important sources of income is the Queen Anne's bounty, a fund formed by Queen Anne in 1704 to augment the poorer livings of the Church of England. There are also large endowments. Church rates are voluntary and cannot be recovered by law.—Washington Star.

CLEAN UP WEEK.

According to the plans of the public works department to continue its co-operation in the matter of cleaning up there is provided an opportunity for the people of this city to avail themselves of this proffered assistance.

There can be no such hope that the public works department of the city will undertake to go into the backyards and do the needed work of cleaning up the eyesores, but it stands ready to cart away whatever rubbish is made ready for it. That is no small task if the people of Norwich set to work with a will to make their property look spick and span.

The early spring has made it possible for many to tackle such a job weeks ago. Many betterments are to be discerned in various directions as the result of such a manifestation of pride, but there's enough that remains to be done to keep the department busy if its offer is accepted as it should be.

House cleaning always produces quantities of material for the rubbish heap. Debris of various kinds which has accumulated at points where it has been easy to throw it needs to be disposed of and with each householder vieing with the other in an effort to make his place attractive, with neighbors aroused to the value attached to such a thorough community cleanup, it might astonish the city department if it is called upon to carry away all that ought to be disposed of, but in view of its offer it should be eager to do its part even though it is confronted with a task that cannot be accomplished within the limits of a week.

Any cleanup that is worth undertaking is worth doing well. Those who have done their part can watch or aid others, but it is worth doing well. Those who have done their part can watch or aid others, but it is worth while to let the results speak for themselves by actually cleaning up, and leaving the rubbish carted away, rather than pointing to attractive grounds when what was removed from them was simply thrown over a fence to be a neighborhood eyesore for the rest of the year.

With the public works department ready to do its part, let's keep it busy.

OUR FOREIGN INVESTMENTS

Much has been said concerning the wealth of this country since the world war. We have been referred to as the country with the money and the one to which other countries must look when seeking to borrow. As for the borrowing it is quite evident that our dollars have been much sought, and it is also true that much American money has been invested in other countries. We have made large loans and it is likely that we shall continue to put large sums in foreign countries for investment. We have not, however, yet to the point where the rest of the world is working for us, or where there is any great possibility of it in the immediate future. What may develop in time is of course a matter of speculation.

During the year 1924 there was invested in other countries the total of a billion dollars, making a total of nine billion dollars which American investors have placed in foreign countries, a total which has grown from two billion dollars just before the opening of the war. Thus in the past dozen years we have increased our foreign investments four and a half times. We have thus taken the lead as a foreign investor. We have jumped to the top as an investor but we have not as yet reached the point where it can be said that we hold the largest foreign investments totalling 20 billion while France had similar investments in 1914 which equalled what we have today. We have however been gaining while they have been standing still.

American dollars have not gone mostly across the water. Only about 35 per cent. of them is to be found in the old world while the total of six and a half billion has been placed in Canada and Latin America. We have been meeting the western hemisphere's demands in recent years. We have increased our position as a creditor nation but the British still stand at the top when it comes to collecting interest from other countries.

ANOTHER ADVANCEMENT.

Science has something new to reveal almost every day. We are astonished at the revelations and yet if we knew what was just in the offing our surprise might be even greater.

Not so long ago there was disclosed the benefits attached to fingerprinting. In view of the fact that the fingerprints of no two persons are alike it was apparent that it was a most valuable means of identification and it has since been brought into rather general use for such a purpose. Financial institutions, hospitals and other institutions require them. Persons arrested for serious offenses, and in some instances others are fingerprinted and such proves to be of even more value than a photograph for the identification of such an individual in the future. With both pictures and fingerprints available criminals have much difficulty in covering up their identity.

The possession of pictures and fingerprints at certain points render them easily available when wanted at those particular places, but hitherto much delay has been necessary to have copies forwarded to other cities where identification of certain persons was desired. Quite in the same way as this difficulty has been overcome in the matter of communication it has now been eliminated for photographs and fingerprints. Science has been at work upon methods of transmitting them over the wire, even as it is possible to telephone or telegraph, and not only can it be successfully done but it requires but a very brief time.

This means that no great time will probably elapse before the large centers will be equipped with the facilities for despatching such things and thus bringing such centers much closer together. All that will be necessary for the identification of individuals, whether in the transaction of business or in dealing with criminals will be to have their photos or their finger prints transmitted by wire. That being done it will require but a brief time to determine whether the representations are correct or whether photos and fingerprints of persons whose identity is questioned corresponds to those in the rogues gallery.

HIGHWAY TREES

The legislature has turned down the proposition to spend $30,000 for providing trees for the highways of the state. Such action, in view of the policy of economy and the need for utilizing funds in other ways, may cause disappointment but no surprise.

The idea of setting out trees along the highways of the state is an excellent one, but this is a matter which may well be taken up by the respective towns instead of leaving such a job to the state. There are towns where few if any trees would be required to increase the attractiveness of the improved highways, but there are others where they are greatly needed. This would thus appear to be a matter which the towns might well tackle for themselves at no very great expense.

There are towns and cities which make a practice of setting out a certain number of new trees each year. These are not restricted to replacing those which had to go for various reasons, but are part of the scheme for beautification with a recognition of the fact that trees are certainly necessary in successfully accomplishing any such undertaking.

Highways are being used more than they ever were before. That use is certain to increase. The governor of Rhode Island recently appealed to the civic pride of the respective towns of that state to meet this very situation. It was a logical and well directed request, and one that ought to get a generous response. Connecticut towns might well join in an effort through some public spirited organization, if the town authorities themselves are unable to act. Making a locality attractive to those passing through has in many instances paid large dividends.

FIGHTING WASTE

Speaking before the annual convention of the store managers division of the National Retail Dry Goods association at Atlantic City, W. A. Gately of the department of commerce went quite extensively into the question of waste and the possibilities of elimination. He made the rather breath-taking statement that industry is losing $30,000,000,000 a year through waste and because of it there is threatened another advance in the cost of living.

It was his contention that an excessive variety of products made a huge contribution to this waste, pointed out that at least a third of it can be eliminated through simplification and standardization and sought support in all efforts that are undertaken to correct the condition.

There has been waste, waste and more waste. We have been trying to get away from the effects of a period of extravagance which has raised great problems. Some progress has been made but there is a disposition to slip back, and only a constant influence against it is going to accomplish the desired results.

It only requires a little study along many lines to disclose the tremendous amount of waste that exists, and whether it is realized or not that waste all figures in the present day costs. The wastes are for the most part needless. They are the result of habit. They are the outcome of that disposition to do things the easiest way no matter what it costs or who is affected. Endeavors to overcome them are faced with much opposition because it is easier to go down hill than it is to turn and go up, but due credit must be given to every sincere effort that is made to check and remedy the habit of waste. Lopping off $10,000,000,000 a year by the suggested changes seems worthy of more than passing consideration.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

America gained the admiration of the entire world by her active and generous relief work in the near east. The near east may be more or less of an indefinite term in the average mind. It may be helpful to a clear understanding of the near east problem if we keep in mind the three geographical centers: Greece, Syria and Armenia. Now that the pressure of relief work has largely abated, this nation is resuming her intelligent activity by teaching old and young in her principal cities of Athens, Beirut and Erivan, and especially throughout the cities and villages of the Caucasus, how to make the land self-supporting. Relieved of the tragic misrule of the Turks this will not be so difficult. The land is naturally rich, and much of it will yield to cultivation. More than this efforts are being made to stamp out indigenous diseases like trachoma. The larger children are being taught how to take care of the smaller ones. American push and science bid fair to transform the near east.

The value of anniversary days is not to be overlooked. Such occasions bring something tangible to the mind for consideration. For instance if we want to put stress upon patriotism, instead of devoting our energies to the output of pious platitudes about patriotism, the observance of April 19 with its historic Lexington and Concord, when that first shot for American freedom rang around the world, will give us some tangible illustration of patriotism that even a child can understand. Patriotism in the abstract means very little to anybody, but patriotism as shown in some great sacrificial act means much. The mere refinition of heroism would not arouse anybody's enthusiasm, but let somebody risk his life to save a child from a burning building, or from a watery grave, would be printed in any newspaper in the United States whereas an essay on heroism would be thrown into the waste basket. Anniversary days reminds us of great deeds.

All animal life has instinct to provide for itself some form of shelter. If your eyes are open you will see at this season of the year little birds with their beaks full of bits of string, straw, feathers and all other material that can be used in the building of nests. With your eyes almost closed you can see workmen digging cellars and putting in cement foundations. When the lower animal does this we call it instinct; but when man does it we call it intelligence, but the line that separates instinct from intelligence is so fine that nobody can see it. And after all it accomplishes the same purpose, and that is, it urges one to provide for himself some form of shelter. If it is permissible for one to reason from effect back to cause, can he escape the logical conclusion that back of both bird and man is a Supreme intelligence and its name is Love?

The following squib appeared in print the other day: "The movies took the family away from home; radio has brought it back. What next?" The last is not very easy to say beforehand, because no one can forecast just the nature of the coming fad. Of one thing, however, we may be reasonably well assured, and that is, the average American family is too much of an established fact to have anything take it away from its home permanently, and also altogether too independent never to leave its home if any outside attraction is sufficiently strong as to make it worth while. It is true that we take to fads more easily than some nationalities that are more hidebound. We are not afraid of doing things that our grandfathers never thought of doing, if they strike our fancy. The motion picture is here to stay and the people will see them, but education will make them more discriminative. The radio is the beginning of a great new world, and as a people we will investigate it.

May is the month largely fixed upon for the annual conventions of our various activities, and especially those pertaining to the social, moral and religious order. It is a great month for the reformer to set forth his views of things that he thinks ought to be. We may not be particularly interested in all of these conventions, and yet we cannot dodge the fact that these earnest men and women keep the balance of this old world of ours. Without these earnest men and women who are active in the temperance cause, in social reform, in better education, in larger and deeper interest in religious work—without them, I say, civilization would soon decay. Are you not interested in some of these uplifting agencies? Is it not possible for you to represent your church, your school, your society in some of these conventions? It will tend to get the cobwebs out of your brain.

How time does fly! Is it possible that it was 65 years ago today that May 16 was made forever memorable by the nomination of Abraham Lincoln at the first republican convention in Chicago? Whether time moves fast or not, it is historically true that the date of this great man's nomination was on May 16, 1860. As the record has it, on the first ballot Seward, his leading opponent, received 173 1-2 votes and Lincoln 102, with a number of other candidates trailing in the distance. On the second ballot Seward received 184 1-4 votes and Lincoln 181. This gaves a decided trend in Lincoln's direction, and when the result of the third ballot was announced Lincoln was found to have been triumphantly nominated. One has a right to conjecture what would have been the trend of our national history if the result of the Chicago convention had been otherwise. Suppose it had chosen Seward, Chase, Cameron, Collamer or any other of his antagonists? What then?

It is not so very long ago that a distinguished layman of Lincoln, Nebraska, suggested that the second Sunday in May be set apart as Mothers' day. That on this day every man wear a white flower in honor of his mother. That he call upon her if she is living close at hand, if at a distance write to her. If she has been called to her reward, put flowers on her grave if feasible; if not send them to the sick or to those who will appreciate them. It is needless to say that the idea spread like wildfire, greatly advanced by the powerful editorial which Mr. Bryan wrote in The Commoner in its support. Today there is not a church of any denomination in which some reference is not made to the blessed name of "mother."

SKETCH OF THE ADVENTUROUS CAREER OF LIEUTENANT-GENERAL NELSON A. MILES

Following is a sketch of the career of General Nelson A. Miles, who dropped dead yesterday while attending a circus in Washington:

Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, brilliant Indian fighter and one of the most picturesque and distinguished leaders in American military history, was one of the "boy generals" of the Civil War. At the age of 25 he had risen from the rank of first lieutenant of volunteers to that of major general, and was commanding an entire army division of 25,000 men.

General Miles, who at the peak of his military career was commanding general of the army, was one of the few high ranking officers of the regular establishment to attain his position without West Point training, and also enjoyed the distinction of being among the still smaller group to be honored with the rank of lieutenant general.

From a clerical position in a Boston business house, he entered the army at the age of 22; participated in more than 30 of the severest engagements of the Civil War; was four times at the point of death from wounds, and emerged from the great struggle the possessor of many enviable citations for bravery and distinguished service. Continuing in the army, he fought and pursued Indians on the Great Plains for more than 20 dom rang around the world, will give us some tangible illustration of patriotism that even a child can understand. Patriotism in the abstract means very little to anybody, but patriotism as shown in some great sacrificial act means much. The mere refinition of heroism would not arouse anybody's enthusiasm, but let somebody risk his life to save a child from a burning building, or from a watery grave, would be printed in any newspaper in the United States whereas an essay on heroism would be thrown into the waste basket. Anniversary days reminds us of great deeds.

years; led the army of occupation in Porto Rico during the Spanish-American War; and although long retired when the United States entered the World War, he was ready and eager to participate once again in the service to which his life had been devoted.

It was the saddest disappointment of a long and adventurous career when, despite his best efforts, General Miles was not recalled to active service in 1916. He had been retired in 1903 upon reaching the age limit, but when the United States entered the European War, he asked to be sent to Siberia with the American troops. It was decided, however, that an exception could not be made in his case, hence his last military service was in 1916, when he presided over the Medal of Honor board which reviewed the list of officers and men who had been honored by the nation with that decoration.

General Miles received his first military training at the hands of a former officer of the French army who eked out a livelihood in Boston by teaching a number of young men the tactics employed by the French army. It was quite natural that his ambitions should enter on the army, for he sprang from a long line of fighting colonists on the paternal side. The family traced its ancestry back to the Rev. John Miles of "King Philip's War" in 1675, girdled on his sword and led the Colonists against the Indians. Captain Miles' home was fortified by the pioneers, and from there he led many subsequent forays against red men.

Daniel Miles and John Miles, great-grandfather and grandfather respectively of General Nelson A. Miles fought in the Revolutionary War and were present at the death of Yorktown fell. His father, Daniel, also was a fighter.

General Miles was born in Westminster, Mass., April 8, 1839, and received an academic education there and in Boston. In later years he was awarded the honorary degree of LL. D., by Harvard, Brown and Colgate.

When the Civil War broke out, many civilians organized units with their own funds, and later took command of their townsmen in the army. When the Roxbury Gundis were recruited, the enthusiastic citizens of that town provided a bounty of $60 for each man who enlisted. The money was disbursed, however, and when the company was mustered in the funds still failed to materialize. Miles took the only thousand dollars he had in the world and by borrowing $2,500 more, paid the men their bonus. He was never reimbursed by the forgetful town council.

Miles passed through the bloody battle of Antietam unscathed and won further commendation. At Chancellorsville, he again distinguished himself at Hancock and was marked for promotion. Some years later he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest distinction, "for distinguished gallantry at Chancellorsville." It was at this battle that he received his most serious wound, a shot in the abdomen. It just missed the aorta of the heart. Sufficiently recovered in time to take part in Grant's campaign against Richmond.

By some queer coincidence many years after the war Miles met the Confederate soldier who fired the bullet. The man was only 150 yards from his target, and only the fact that the bullet struck Miles' hair buckle saved the officer from death.

"I aimed at your heart," the man terse carried the ball a little low," said, "don't think the motion of your After what has occurred during these thirty-six years I am glad I missed that shot."

Although only 24 years old, Miles has become famous in army circles, and Grant, Meade, Burnside, McClellan, Hooker, Hancock and every other field officer under whom he served urged his promotion. He continued his record at the Wilderness, and at Spottsylvania he led his men with such bravery that he soon received his commission as brigadier general. He was later honored with the brevet of major general, with the citation, "for gallant and meritorious service at Spottsylvania."

In the campaign around Petersburg the young general participated in nearly every important action. Here he received his fourth wound and won another brevet as major general, bestowed in the fall of 1865, for "highly meritorious and distinguished conduct throughout the campaign and particularly for bravery and valuable services at Reams Station."

His Indian service began in 1870. He then embarked on campaigns which were to bring to a close the Indian wars which had lasted through all the history of the country. He won the thanks of the legislatures of four western states, and the ranks in succession of brigadier and major general in the regular army.

The name of Miles is woven into the romance of the west.

He met, fought and defeated the Cheyennes, Comaches and Kiowas, in the southwest. He chastised and subjugated the Sioux in the northwest, driving Sitting Bull out of his country. He made a forced march of 160 miles in the winter of 1877, when the temperature at times dropped to 40 degrees below zero, and captured Chief Joseph and his Nez Perces who had long caused the government trouble.

Crazy Horse, Lame Deer, Spotted Eagle, Elk Horn, Bread Road, Natches and other Indian chiefs qualled before his advances. Geronimo and his bloody Apaches, when chased and cornered by Miles, refused to capitulate unless they could do so to Miles personally. He conquered the last great Indian uprising, in 1890, during which Sitting Bull, was shot, and the other rebellious Indians mostly surrendered when they heard that it was the "Big Chief Bear Coat" who was on their trail.

In 1894 Miles was called to subdue the historic Chicago railroad strike. He handled the crisis with such tact and executive ability that he won further renown.

President Cleveland rewarded the generals distinguished services by appointing him commanding general of the United States army. He was then 56 years old. During his tenure in office he represented the army as observer in the Turko-Grecian war, and at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in 1897.

When the war with Spain broke out, Miles found he had several influential foes in the administration, and it is said they prevented his taking active command in the field in Cuba. However, he was sent to close the campaign at Santiago, and then went to Porto Rico.

At the age of 60 he was raised to the rank of lieutenant general, the sixth army officer to bear that rank.

General Miles married Miss Mary Hoyt Sherman, niece of the famous Civil War leader, in 1868, while serving with western troops. Two children, a son and a daughter, were born to them. The son, Colonel Sherman Miles, established an enviable record in the World War, and was later sent to Constantinople as an observer for the United States when the Turkish army defeated the Greeks in 1922 and reentered Europe. The daughter, Cecelie Sherman Miles, married Colonel Samuel Reber, U. S. A.

General Miles survived his wife many years, preserving his great virility through his advancing years. His carriage was erect, his eyes remained clear and ever sparkling with humor, and his memory retained the clearness of his youthful days.

In recent years much of his time was devoted to golf and walking. Almost every day the weather was fair he could be found on the public links along the Potomac, or at one of the country clubs in the vicinity of Washington.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Another Aguinaldo View

Mr. Editor: In the issue of your paper of May 6, 1925, there appeared an editorial, on a cable dispatch from Manila, over the effect that General Aguinaldo, in a speech delivered in Baguio, urged the veterans of the Philippine revolution to rally to the support of Governor General Wood, and that he was reported as having made the statement that the time has not yet arrived for the granting of Philippine independence. Your editorial expresses approval of this alleged attitude of General Aguinaldo.

We desire to inform you that the editorial is based upon misinformation. We have just received a portion of General Aguinaldo's speech referring to the points mentioned in he dispach and in your editorial. Perusual of our dispatch shows that you have been misinformed as already stated. Following is a portion of General Aguinaldo's speech as cabled to us by our head office in Manila:

"I wish to remind the members of our association of the necessity for unity in facing our national problems and in showing proper respect to those our elders and the functionaries of our government. It is needless for me to say that I am in favor of the immediate independence of the Philippines; everybody knows my history before the country."

You will notice, therefore, that General Aguinaldo simply made the general statement that proper respect should be shown to those in authority in our government and that he reiterated the declaration many times made by him in the past, since he took the oath of allegience to the United States, that he favors the immediate independence of the Philippines.

With regard to the difficulties with which the Filipino people are experiencing with Governor Wood, we wish to make clear the fact that Governor Wood has received the unqualified support of the Filipino people and their representatives in the government in every constructive policy that he has adopted. When, however, he wanted to realize any policy which meant reduction of the autonomy already enjoyed by the Filipino people in the form of political rights and privileges granted to them by both the republican and democratic administrations, the Filipinos, as naturally any liberty-loving people would, registered firm but respectful opposition. Not to have done so now would be to permit the American governor to encroach upon the rights and privileges granted to the Filipinos by the two administrations, slip away and they would not by any means see this done if they desire full realization of this policy which is their ardent wish.

Every living Filipino agrees with General Aguinaldo that "the American flag is the greatest symbol of liberty in the world" and because it is a symbol of liberty we expect that the liberty it represents shall be granted to us by the great American people.

Very truly yours,

V. G. BUNIAN,
Director Philippine Press Bureau
Washington, D. C., May 12, 1925.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

BEAUTY OF EARTH AND SKY

God has laid the foundations of the earth in beauty, man often ornaments the outside and leaves all rough and crude within, but the work of God is perfect, and the most secret places display the taste of the supreme artist. All manner of precious stones are sprinkled in great handfuls over the earth. Emeralds, rubies, sapphires, amethyst, vying in beauty and variety with the flowers of the field, deck the secret chambers of the hills.

Gradually the black coal in being sublimated into the glowing diamond and even the tiny rills of water fashioned into showy candelabra. On cornerstones of porphyry and marble the mountains have been raised and from base to crest they glow with marvelous coloring.

Agates seem to have been soaked with the gorgeous hues of a million sunrises and sunsets, and quarts as white as the snow stretches in glistening sweeps beneath valley and mountains. He hath laid its stones in beauty, and fashioned it in glory.

We move from nature up to God, wherever we look, we are reminded of Him; the lessons that nature teaches are all of God, and no reverent mind can ever lose sight of Him for a moment. To all who will listen the earth is eloquent of God's praises. The winds and waters, the birds and whispering grasses, hymn His glory perpetually.

How thoroughly the inhabitants of this palace of marvels are fitted for their surroundings. the polar bear with his thick shaggy hair, the seal with his closely knit fur, the beaver with his building, and the bee for his hive, the bird for its nest, the fish for the water, all can live here perfect lives.

Man only cannot be content. He alone is not of the earth, earthy. God him, clothe him, surround him with beauty, and his soul cries out, "I'm but a stranger here; this world is not my home." So he looks for a city which hath founda tion whose builder and maker is God.

From Small Beginnings

Dan Taylor, the Coal Miner, the Great Preacher

Black with grime and sweat, so that the natural whiteness of his face was hardly to be seen at all, a strong, vigorous man of over twenty was working away with his miner's pick in the depths of a York shire mine. His clothing, like his face, were black, and they were torn and frayed. Other workmen near by carried on the same work, or wheeled away the coal Dan Taylor dug out. No one who might have looked upon the dirty and rugged company of workmen would have found much difference between Dan Taylor and his fellows—and yet there was a difference, even if it could not be seen, in a few short years Dan Taylor, coal miner, was to emerge from his mines like a shining figure of light, to speak to great audiences of men and women, and to institute movements that should make themselves felt across the seas, and to should advance civilization.

Dan Taylor one day attended a meeting and became conscious that every man should do his best to live a thoroughly good life. He began to read the Bible, to talk about religious subjects and to attend religious meetings. As he worked in the mine he thought of what he had heard or read. At 24 he became a preacher. Because he was so tremendously in earnest he preached as hard as he had worked, and he made his hearers realize his own earnestness. He became noted far and wide and rose in many years to a place of greater regard. He was one of the men who led to the organizing of the great missionary movements that sent out foreign missionaries all over the world and carried the Bible to one-third the inhabitants of the earth.

Dan Taylor did more than preach. He had a restless energy that made him work hard all the time. He wrote three books on religious subjects and put into them all the thoughts that drove him on. In fact, he lived a supreme's good and useful life and died, full of honors, at the age of 78. Dan Taylor, the blackened coal miner, obscure and unknown and ignorant, had dug his way out into the light because he was so supremely earnest in everything he did. In the hardest and grimiest of work he found the most golden opportunities.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Shailer Mathews, who has received an honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Glasgow University, is dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago and has long been prominent in educational and religious enterprises far beyond the borders of his position as a teacher. Professor Mathews is a Colby college graduate, who, after studying at Newton Theological Seminary and the University of Berlin, entered the Baptist ministry, but soon changed to the teaching profession and joined the faculty of Colby college. In 1894 he went to Chicago to teach the history of the New Testament interpretation in the divinity school of the university, and there he has remained, rising meantime from the post of associate professor to full professor and—since 1908—dean of the divinity school. In 1912 he filled the important post of president of the Federal Council of Churches, the largest unit of evangelicals in America.

DELAYED POLICE REPORT HANDED TO CITY MANAGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 15—The long anticipated report of the special committee of the city council, appointed by City Manager William A. Holt to determine the efficiency of the police department, the committee comprising Councilors Lucius E. Whiton, Edward L. Streeter Jr., and John F. Murray, was handed to the city manager this noon by Councilor Streeter, secretary of the committee. The report was signed by the full committee, but in handing in the report, Councilor Streeter also submitted his personal report, the report of the councilor being in the form of a minority report and makes expressions, it is understood, to which the other two members of the committee, would not affix their signatures. The report of the councilor, it is understood, severely criticises the work of several members of the department and recommends severe action by the city manager.

City Manager Holt when queried as to the report of the committee and the individual report of Councilor Streeter, stated that the committee report was a very lengthy one, that he would have to give the matter careful reading before he made any recommendation to the city council and he was not sure that a recommendation would be forthcoming.

The committee began hearings last October and concluded them in February.

Estimate figures are that between $7,000 and $7,500 will be the annual cost of operating a live chamber with a paid secretary as leader. The secretary would receive a salary of $3,000 or $3,500. Five hundred dollars would be necessary for clerical assistance and about $1,000 for traveling expenses and civic advertising. The aggregate yearly expenditure of maintaining the chamber is $2,500.

RURAL ASSOCIATION ELECTS WALTER T. CAMP PRESIDENT

The 56th annual meeting of the Norwich Rural association was held Friday evening in the First Congregational chapel with a good attendance. The president, Francis Gilman, presided. A most interesting report of the year just closed itemizing activities and showing an encouraging balance in the treasury, which was submitted by the secretary and treasurer, Charles B. Gilbert, was approved. Other reports were given by the following: Roads, Leonard A. Hough; sidewalks, Walter T. Camp; trees, Philip A. Johnson; community picnic, President Gilman reported for Miss Adelaide Butts; community Christmas tree, President Gilman. Robert Boisson, as treasurer of this project, rendered his report on finances. There was no report on health and sanitation as that committee was not present. The date of the annual community picnic to be held in Lowthorpe meadows was set for Friday, June 5. This is one of the special features of the meeting as it is anticipated that the picnic this year will be a notable affair with several new attractions. A substantial sum was appropriated at the meeting to carry out the plans of this committee. Another item of interest was the mention of the permanent community Christmas tree which has been set out on the Norwich Town green under direction of the tree committee. This will in future years lessen expenses at this time of rejoicing, when people from all parts of Norwich assemble to sing Christmas carols around a brilliantly illuminated tree.

The following members of Troop No. 26, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town, were guests during the meeting: Reginald Avery, Crosby Peck, Irving Manning, Harold Smith, John Dodge and Walter Hahn, accompanied by the scout master, Frederick H. Wyant. President Gilman turned over the flag of meeting house rock to Scout Master Wyant, who, with his scouts, in the future will act as custodians. Mr. Wyant accepted the flag with commendation for the boys of whom he said the people of Norwich Town will be proud for their efforts in this new charge. Mention was made that a new flag pole had been erected on the rocks during the past year. The nominating committee, Ozias Dodge, chairman, and Mrs. Philip A. Johnson, presented the names of officers to serve the coming year: President, Walter T. Camp; secretary and treasurer, Leonard A. Hough and the following chairmen on committees: Custodian of Meeting House Rocks, Frederick H. Wyant; health and sanitation, Dr. Leone F. LaPierre. For community Christmas tree, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey was made general chairman, treasurer, Robert Boisson; wiring, Herbert L. Yerrington. For sidewalks, Bartholomew Sullivan; trees, Miss Charlotte Gulliver; community picnic, Mrs. Ozias Dodge; roads, Clyde M. Beebe; publicity, Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. All were unanimously elected. The new president, Mr. Camp, was escorted to the front by the nominating committee where congratulations were exchanged between past and future presidents. The retiring president, Mr. Gilman, was given a rising vote of thanks for his valuable services during the past year. After President Camp had addressed the association in a pleasing vein, thanking the members for the honor bestowed upon him, giving every assurance that he would do his best the meeting adjourned.

SHOWING PARKING FACILITIES ADJACENT TO NORWICH BUSINESS CENTER

NORWICH CAN PARK ABOUT 1,000 CARS ADJACENT TO FRANKLIN SQ.

In making a study of the parking situation in Norwich by the Chamber of Commerce through its parking committee, and in order to show the buying public at home and abroad that Norwich has good parking facilities, a map has been prepared of the business section taking Franklin Square as the center and indicating the streets within half a mile of the square showing the parking regulations.

The accompanying map shows the parking time limits on the various streets. Wherever the figure 40 appears, the parking limit is 40 minutes, "No" means that parking is prohibited and "5 hrs." indicates that time as the parking limit. It is figured that there are parking accommodations for close to 1,000 cars within half a mile of Franklin Square, this including the battle ground on the East Side which has been offered by Postmaster C. K. Bailey.

The map plainly indicates that Norwich has far better parking facilities than the average city. It is commonly known that no city today can give parking accommodations to any considerable number of cars in the business section, and what is true of other cities, is true of Norwich, but the fact remains that there are a number of streets within a half mile of Franklin Square where five hour parking is permissible, in fact but a comparatively small area has 40 minute parking and a still smaller area for no parking.

One has but to stand on Main street on a Saturday evening to realize the thousands of cars that come and go in the course of a few hours, often causing a line of waiting automobiles which are held up for several minutes. One can further realize that it is an impossible thing to accommodate so many cars in a given restricted area and so it has occurred to the Chamber of Commerce that a map shall be prepared that would indicate the streets surrounding the business section where five hour parking is permissible.

In addition to this, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, has offered the free use of the battle-grounds for parking purposes for one year which will be a tremendous asset in taking care of from 300 to 500 cars. This action on the part of the postmaster is most commendable and will provide a large parking space within a half mile of Franklin Square.

The committee has also given consideration to the question of the development of Hollyhock Island, otherwise known as the city dump, near the Central Vermont Railroad station and which contains approximately eight acres. It is suggested that this area be fitted up for a large athletic field for the young men who work in the factories and stores for having baseball, football and other sports. Around the outskirts of this athletic field, it is estimated that between 400 and 500 cars could be parked. Some expense would be attached to the development of Hollyhock Island for this purpose, and also for rebuilding Falls avenue and the installation of electric lights. There is also every reason to hope that the New Haven railroad will soon take action again at opening the space at the station for parking purposes. The railroad will either have charge of this space through some employees, or lease it to some private individual and a nominal charge for parking, the same as exists in Hartford and other cities, will be made for the privilege. The map clearly indicates that there is a great deal of available parking space adjacent to the business center and the car owners will gradually have to accustom themselves, the same as in other cities, to parking their cars at some distance from the business center. This distance in Norwich is comparatively short compared with that in other cities.

The chamber is indebted to its parking committee for the preparation of this map and the study made of the parking situation. The chairman of the committee is Roy D. Judd, who was ably assisted by Lewis M. Young in the preparation of the map. The other members are: A. Agranovitch, William A. Anderson, George Brenn, F. S. Crowell, J. A. Desmond, L. Hawkins, R. Henschel, H. Robinson, J. H. Shannon, N. E. Smith, W. L. Stearns, P. F. Sweeney, W. S. Williams. It is clearly evident that Norwich, the banking and business center of eastern Connecticut, has good ample parking areas convenient to its business center. In addition to this there are commercial garages in the central part of the city which are capable of taking care of several hundred cars at a nominal cost.

Object Most Remote.

Determination that the object in the universe most remote from the earth among those visible through the highest powered telescopes is the faint star cloud known to astronomers as NGC 6822 is one of the latest contributions of the Harvard College Observatory to astronomical lore. Through studies made under the supervision of Prof Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, it has been estimated that this star cloud is about a million light years distant. In the language of the layman, this means a distance of approximately sixteen quadrillion, seventy trillion, four hundred billion miles.

NGC 6822 was thought by the astronomers Perrine, Duncan and Hobbs to be analagous to the Magellanic clouds. Studies made at the Harvard Observatory, however, seem to indicate that it lies well outside the Milky Way system. It has been estimated that a dirigible making a non-stop flight and traveling night and day at a speed of 60 miles an hour would require 33,315,000,000 years to reach this distant spot.

Vandals to Play Orioles

Sunday afternoon on the Fairgrounds the Bose City Vandels will play the Orioles. The Vandels have won one, lost one and tied two games so far this season, and hope to take the Orioles' scalp into camp.

For the Vandels, Burdick or MacLaren will be on the receiving end with either Ed. Heady or "Rosie" Ryan, who allowed only six well scattered hits in the Independents game, in the box. On first, Gil Kampf will show his wares; De Rusha will cover the keystone sack and Joe Gillis will shine forth on third. Swanton, will cover short. In the outfield will be Welsh, MacLaren, Armstrong and Brown.

The Orioles absolutely refused to give out their lineup for Sunday but it is understood that it has been strengthened considerably since their last game and that many new and well known faces will be seen.

French Leader In North Africa

Marshal Lyautey, famous French wartime general, now Governor of the French Zone of Morocco, who has rushed to Fez to assume direct charge of the French troops opposing the Riffian Moors under Abd-El Krim. The Rifians have already captured one French outpost and defeated a detachment trying to throw pontoon bridge over the Overghe River.

ACADEMY AND BULKELEY BASEBALL CLASSIC AT ACADEMY CAMPUS TODAY

Everything is rosy in the Academy camp today and it is with a feeling of confidence of victory that the wearers of the Red and White take the field today against their ancient rivals from New London—Bulkeley. For years past Bulkeley has reigned supreme on the baseball field but all good things must come to an end sooner or later. The crucial test of the Academy team comes today and the largest crowd of the season will be on hand to see the local team take a fall out of the Bulkeley crew.

Bulkeley had a close call yesterday afternoon against Hillhouse High of New Haven and it was a lucky break that prevented the New London boys from tasting the bitter pill of defeat. Daniels pitched a hard game yesterday and will be in no condition to take the mound against the Academy today so Parisi or Montalli will start the game today. These two pitchers mean little to the Academy team which has found its batting eye and will wade into their offerings with a vengeance.

Jarvis will get the assignment and if he is going right it is an even bet that he will outpitch either of the Bulkeley hurlers and that the Bulkeley hits will be few and far between. Another thing that gives the Academy team more confidence is the return of Pheno Tombari to his position at short. There is no better short fielder than Tombari in any high school. Cimikoski will probably be shifted to second and McGowan will be relegated to the outfield.

As Misch will be unable to get into the game Jack Hinrichs will do the catching, the remainder of the lineup will be, Burke 1b; Cimikoski 2b; Carroll 3b; Tombari ss; McGowan lf; Greene cf; Brewer rf; Jarvis p; Hinrichs c.

During the past two days the Academy team has been hard at work and has put in many hours of hard work perfecting their defense and in getting their eyes on the curved balls. When the Academy takes the field today it will be in the best possible shape. Go get 'em Academy!

SUB BASE WINS ITS FIRST GAME IN LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 15—Outside of the first inning, Lefty Harrell easily kept the Tabs hitless and the Submarine Base making its bow in twilight games took tonight's game from Jim McDonald's Temperance men by a 7 to 2 score.

The game should have terminated with a 3 to 2 score in favor of the Gobs. A questionable put out by Doutson for the Tabs which was decided against the losers with two outs was followed by additional hitting and run making, the Gobs scoring four times.

The Tabs did oil of their scoring in the first inning on an error and hits by Havens and Hanley followed by a bit of loose playing. The score:

ASHLAND TO PLAY COAST GUARD TEAM SUNDAY

The Ashland club of Jewett City will clash with the Coast Guard team of New London at Ashland park on Sunday afternoon. The Ashland club is composed of youngsters who made a nice showing against the fast J. B. Martin team last week holding this veteran organization to a 2 to 1 score. Spike Liberty, who looks to be in the best condition in several years will do the pitching. The rest of the lineup will be practically the same as that used against the Velvetmen. The Coast Guard team comes to Jewett City highly recommended and is conceded to be one of the best teams in New London.

KAMM'S WILD HEAVE GIVES YANKS VICTORY

Chicago, May 15—(A. P.)—Kamm's wild throw of Ward's bunt sent two runs across the plate in the ninth inning for New York which gave the visitors a 6 to 5 victory over Chicago in the final game of the series. Pipp's double and Meusel's homer were responsible for the Yankees first four runs. Chicago bunched two hits with three bases on balls and two errors for their first three runs and Sheely's home run in the eighth gave the locals their fourth run. Jones weakened in the ninth and Hoyt took up the burden and checked the rally which fell one run short of again tying the count. Score:

INDIANS MAKE IT FOUR IN A ROW FROM RED SOX

Cleveland, May 15—Cleveland made it four straight from Boston, winning 10 to 7, in a game marked by ineffective pitching by Quinn, Ehmke and Shaute. Quinn, who had won four straight games with no defeats this year, was driven from the mound in the fifth, but Ehmke who gave four passes and allowed a double in the eighth, was the losing pitcher.

McNulty and Myatt each drove in three runs for the Indians. Score:

DODGERS BEAT CARDS IN DRAWN OUT GAME

Brooklyn, May 15—Brooklyn made it two out of three with St. Louis today after a long drawn out game, due to arguments and protests. The score was 8 to 7. ## MOOSUP TEAM CANCELS ALL HOME ENGAGEMENTS

The Moosup ball club will become a road club until the fall season according to an announcement made by Henry Loughran, manager of the club. The fact of interest and patronage coupled with the business conditions in some of the mills in the surrounding towns has caused Mgr. Loughran to cancel all home games and to take his team on the road. The Moosup club had scheduled the Wauskuck club for this Sunday.

No more home games are expected until next fall. In the meantime the team will propably play at such places as Webster, Southbridge, Taxonville, South Manchester, Torrington and Bristol with whom Loughran is negotiating.

SACHEMS PLAY TAFTVILLE ALL STARS ON SUNDAY

On Sunday the Sachems of Norwich cross bats with the Taftville All Stars at the Falls diamond. The Taftville team has finally decided to let the public know what their probable battery will be and it is no other than the famous Eccleston and "Dugas" or the famous spitball king, Gaudette. The fans of Norwich will no doubt be pleased to learn that D. Murphy's brothers another boy like himself will be knocking them down at short, and the old boy himself "Zoon" Germain will take care of the left garden and the rest of the team will be from the pick of Taftville and vicinity. The Sachems have not been idle all week for they know that Taftville is coming down strong, and they intend if possible to send many a sad face back, for they have changed their lineup considerably and among the new players will be seen Hammil who needs no introduction to any good fan in Norwich and L. Smith who batted .475 for the Fitchville team last year and Grillone, a fast and heady worker who will twirl them over and try to send them back without a waste of energy by needless running around. Joe Burns a local boy will do the back stop work for the Sachems.

VELVETMEN TO CLASH WITH PLAINFIELD CLUB SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin team will take on the Plainfield town team Sunday afternoon at Martin field in Taftville. The Plainfield club is a strong aggregation of local talent and included in the lineup are several athletes who have played college and semi-pro ball around here for several years. The Velvetmen will use either Lemieux or Pepin in the box, while Plainfield has three pitchers to choose from, Lee, Rainey and Bromley.

QUATRAIN IS FAVORITE TO KENTUCKY DERBY TODAY

Louisville, Ky., May 15.— (A. P.)— With Quatrain running as the ranking favorite, the $50,000 Kentucky derby, the outstanding race classic of the nation, will be decided over the Churchill Downs course tomorrow afternoon with the prospects of an attendance of 80,000 to 100,000, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America.

Twenty-five of the country's best three year olds were named tonight to go to the post with the possibility that the field will be narrowed down to perhaps 20 starters or less, depending upon track conditions. If tomorrow afternoon brings a golden May day and a fast track, as many as 20 colts may face the flag. If showers develop, as the weather forecast indicates, resulting in a muddy track, it is likely that not more than 15 will engage in the struggle.

If more than 21 start, it will be the largest field that ever went to the post for the classic. Last year, when the little colt, Black Gold, came thundering down the stretch to racing glory he was followed by 13 others; in 1923 the great Zey had 19 other contestants.

Tomorrow's race, the fifty first running of the derby, will be over the mile and a quarter routs with each colt carrying an impost of 126 pounds. The race will have a value to the winner of $53,475 providing 20 go to the post. The starting fee is $500 and the purse will be larger or smaller proportionately to the number of horses other than 20 that start. The horse finishing second will win $6,000, third, $3,000, and fourth $1,000. In addition to first money, the winner will receive a gold trophy.

Quatrain, a son of Omar Khayyam, winner of the 1917 derby, rules the favorite because of his impressive victories in the Louisiana derby and the New Orleans handicap last winter.

Although tremendously popular, he is not the outstanding favorite that Black Gold was last year. Black Gold, after winning the 1924 Louisiana derby came to Kentucky and won the derby trial, whereas the southern Quatrain has not engaged in a race since the close of the southern season. The horse is owned by Frederick Johnson, a New York sportsman, but is a product of Kentucky.

For the first time in history, the Kentucky derby will go "on the air" by radio, three stations having announced their intention to broadcast the famous classic tomorrow afternoon, beginning shortly before post time, 4.45 o'clock, central standard time.

WGN, the Chicago Tribune station, will broadcast the race on a 370.2 meter wave length.

WHAS, the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal station, will broadcast on a wave length of 399.8 meters.

WHT, Chicago will pick up the signals from WHAS and rebroadcast them on a 336 meter wave length.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO CHOOSE MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

New York, May 15—(A. P.)—An entirely new committee of baseball writers will select the National League's most valuable player this year, an honor which carries a medal and a cash prize of $1,000.

Arthur C. (Dazzy) Vance, pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was voted the most valuable man to his team in 1924 and will receive the award at the Brooklyn Golden Jubilee game May 19.

Last year's rules will govern in the choice this season, a player's actual strength of defense and offense, the number of games in which he appears, his general character, disposition, loyalty and effort being considered.

The members of the 1925 committee are:

James M. Gould, St. Louis Star, chairman; Burt Whitman, Boston Herald; Len Wooster, Brooklyn Times, Tom Swope, Cincinnati Post; James Crusinberry, Chicago Tribune; Frank Graham, New York Sun; S. O. Granley, Philadelphia Inquirer; Charles Doyle, Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, and Martin J. Haley, St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SOCONY TEAM TO OPPOSE RIVERVIEW CLUB TODAY

The Socony baseball club of New London will be the opponents of the Riverview club this afternoon on the hospital grounds. These two clubs battled to a 1-1 seven inning tie two weeks ago at Morgan Park, New London, and today's game should be an exciting one. Burns and Couillard former Riverview players are with the Socony club and they will go the limit to defeat their formre teammates. Johnson who has been twirling good ball for the Socony club in the New London twi-league will draw the hurling assignment. The Riverview club is confident that it can take his measure, while the Socony batting averages will slump considerably before West's fast ball and change of pace. Tony wasn't entirely satisfied over the outcome of the tie game, and is in good shape for this afternoon's meeting. Joe Belair will do the catching, while the infield will be taken care of by Mills 1b; Hamel 2b; Normandin ss; Dugas 3b; McKiernan lf; Duffy cf; and Noel rf.

The game will start at 2:45 p. m. Morin and Curran, two of Connecticut's leading umpires will supervise the proceedings.

STING BREAKS RECORD AT JAMAICA TRACK

Jamaica, N. Y., May 15—(A. P.)—Sting, handicap colt, owned by James Butler, broke the world's record for a mile and seventy yards in the fourth race here. The time was 1:41 1-5.

Sting established a track mark for a mile and one-sixteenth of 1:42 3-5 in winning the Excelsior Handicap last Saturday. Leverne Fator rode him and it appeared that he might have bettered the mark with mild urging. He was merely galloping at the end.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

PRACTICE IN TIME BECOMES SECOND NATURE

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
A Daily Prayer Cited.

O Lord, grant that today I may be kind
To those around me; that I may be blind
To their faults and failures. Help me to praise
Each honest endeavor and through the days
Hard tasks to smile, O Lord help me to speak
A cheery word to all the faint and weak.
To speak a word of comfort to the sad
And when the day is done may hearts be glad
Because I have been serving thee.

O Lord grant that today I may be brave
Against each temptation; that thou wilt save
Me from my sin, O Lord help me to be
All that thou wouldst have me be.
Speak to me
And gently lead me back unto thy way
When from the path of right my feet would stray.
Teach me, O Lord, upon thy strength to learn
And when the day is done may I be clean
Because I have been trusting thee.

O Lord, grant that today I may disdain
No humble task, that I may not complain,
However hard my lot. Help me to do
The thing that I should do, faithful and true
To every thrust; and when the day is done
I will recount thy mercies, one by one,
When death, O Lord, shall beckon me away
Grant that I may see the light of heaven's day.
Because I have been loving thee.

The Light in Mother's Eyes

Dear season of my childhood's day,
The lodestar of my youth,
A mingled glow of tenderest love,
And firm unwavering truth.
I've wandered far o'er east and west,
'Neath many stranger skies,
But ne'er I've seen a fairer light,
Than that in Mother's eyes.

In hours when all life's sweetest buds,
Burst into dewy bloom,
In hours when cherished hopes lay dead,
In sorrow and in gloom.
In evening's hush or morning's glow,
Or in the solemn night,
Those mother eyes still shone on me,
Their calm, unchanging light.

Long since the patient hands I loved
Were folded in the clay
And long have seemed the lonely years,
But still I know she waits for me,
In fields of Paradise,
And I shall reach them yet, led by,
The light in Mother's eyes.

RHUBARB PIE AND SQUASH BISCUIT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am very glad we are to have pins and ask you to kindly put my name on the list for one. Thanks to the editor in advance for his kindness.

Rhubarb Pie: 1 cup chopped rhubarb, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, nutmeg.

Dot the top with bits of butter. Bake in two crusts. It makes one small pie.

Squash Biscuit: 1 pint sifted squash, 1 1-2 pints of milk, 1 yeast cake, 1 cup sugar, butter size of egg, little salt and a little soda.

Make the rather stiff and let them rise over night. In the morning mold into small biscuit, let rise and then bake.

WEE-WEE.

PLANNING TO ATTEND CLUB NO. 4'S SOCIAL

Dear Editor of Social Corner: I wonder if I am too late to get one of the Social Corner pins? It has been a long time since I wrote to the Corner and I did not see my name in the roll call so asked one of the sisters of she saw it and she said "yes" so I feel that I still am a member and will try to do my duty in the future.

Hope I can attend Club No. 4's next social would not go without a pin as I would be so jealous of those that had them.

I have a favorite poem I am going to send in. Hope you all will like it.

VIOLA.

SPONGE CAKE LEMON PIE.

Dear sisters: It is busy time of year now with house cleaning, and other things that have to be done. I thank all the sisters who remembered me with cards for Easter and birthday. I will be pleased with a pin.

I am sending a recipe for

Sponge Cake Lemon Pie: Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup of milk, 2 rounding tablespoons flour, 2 eggs. Put the sugar into yolks and beat, add flour and beat again, add milk fold in stiffly beaten whites being careful not to beat the mixture after the whites are added. The whites rise to the top while baking and form a sort of meringue so the pie is really as good to look at as to eat.

APPLE BLOSSOM.

Pinky: The poem you sent in was "jolly."

Paleface: Your recipes were a "dream."

Crank: Where are you? Must have changed your pen-name. I found a clipping the other day signed Crank. Must have been sent in quite a long time ago.

Maple Leaf: How are the slips progressing? Have they rooted yet? I bought a red, salmon pink and a Martha Washington geranium. Would like a white and pink one and a sweet scented leaf one. Expect to see all of you at Central Village May 20th. Lorna, Crimson Rambler, Rural Delivery, Sassy, Ma of Greene Gables, and everybody else lay off on the housecleaning and ant hunting, come join the clan, not forgetting to bring the drinkables, as we do not want to waste time singing—How Dry I am. In the meantime you might try these recipes:

How to find a lost carpet tack: Take off your shoes and walk.

How to tie a bow tie: Stand in back of yourself and put your arms around your neck. Tie a knot like you would in your bankroll. Straighten according to the compass held in your teeth.

What to do if your husband smokes. Turn the hose on him until he goes out.

How to learn to play the saxophone: Hire yourself out as assistant to a locomotive engineer and do your practicing while the whistle's blowing.

A never failing recipe for making it rain: Put on your brand new suit and go walking without an umbrella.

How to tell when a young man is going to get married: Notice when he stops smoking 25c cigars.

If you want to train for a walking or running match: spend a week in one of those houses that the real estate agent claims is only a ten-minute walk from the station.

How to get fat: Buy it from the butcher.

To make the time pass quickly and pleasantly for a guest: Say to him, "What would you do if you were me in a case like this?"

LIKES THE IDEA OF PINS

Dear Social Corner: I am glad to hear the shut ins are improving this lovely springtime. Although rather chilly, nature in all its glory is here birds singing, building nests and feeding their young. Trees and flowers are blooming as only God can paint their lovely tints and shades—colors no artist can imitate. Isn't it just glorious!

Dew Drop: Did you use to live in Malden, Mass.?

Aunt Jerushy: Am sorry you haven't had dandelions. We have had them since the last week in March, rather small for the first mess, but they are big and nice. Were you here we would pick you a good mess. I have been ill, but enjoyed Corner page and all the nice letters it contained.

Hope to be able to attend some of your gatherings this summer.

Think it will be nice if all wear pins so we can tell when we meet a member. If we don't know their names, we can guess. If there are any extra pins I would be pleased with one.

Snowflake: Is the sponge cake you sent in without baking powder right? Will wait until I hear before trying it.

Strawberry: Your sponge cake and violets are delicious. We are all very fond of sponge cake, and I like to try the different ways of making it.

Barbar: Your doughnuts sound good. Will try them soon.

Crimson Rambler: I love to read your letters, think I have passed where you live but did not see the yellow ribbon. But next time will inquire, to find you and Old Glory. Calla Lily and others, I have become interested in through their nice letters to the Corner page. Would like to meet you all at the Buckingham. I can wash dishes nearly as fast as I can dirty them. Best wishes and long life to the Social Corner and its writers.

FLEURDELIS.

SMILES AND PLEASANT WORDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If I remember rightly, it has been a long time since you have heard from me. "My trip from Coast to Coast" was my last visit with you.

I have been very busy, but you have not been forgotten. While out to Becky's home I saw the Norwich Courier, and in looking over the Social Corner I feel sad over so many of our old sisters missing.

Balsam Fir: Was very glad to see you boost Old Orchard. We have so many wonderful places here in Maine, that very few people know anything about. It would take a long time, describing our lakes, views and mountains. Our slogan here in the capital city is to boost Maine, that people of other states may come here, and see for themselves that it is just what we say. For one, who came here in poor health 16 years ago from Connecticut I can not say enough for the climate and how much benefit has come to me. The summers are cool—some days we might say it was uncomfortably hot—but not like Rhode Island or Connecticut. In the evenings you need a wrap around your shoulders if out on the lawn, and you can sleep with comfort at night. If there is any breeze here where I work we get it and it's fresh right off the water.

Becky's home is on high ground and she has a wonderful view of the White Mountain and towns.

What is this I see about pins? I should, if there is one to spare, be pleased and proud to wear it.

I am glad to see so many new sisters coming in and hope we can help each other, in making our Corner successful and happy for our shut-ins.

Becky is a shut-in, not able to walk, but she does take so much comfort in all the writings of the sisters. I find its the little things in life that count, and a smile and pleasant word go a good ways to make happiness.

Best wishes to you all.

FROZEN.

Maine.

KEEPING THE NAME IN THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: There are any number of other things I might be doing instead of writing, but there usually is and that is the reason I don't write more often. When one asks your pen name and after being told they say, "I don't remember ever reading any letters of yours," it makes you feel as if you were sort of behind time in being a member of the Corner.

I was very sorry to learn of the passing of Wrinkle. She was the first to welcome me at a meeting on Valley street in Willimantic and I always enjoyed visiting with her. We can not be too kind to our older members while we have them with us. Say the pleasant things and give them flowers while they can enjoy them.

Student: Many thanks for the card. It is pleasant to be remembered.

Chore Girl has just started keeping her own house. There is a saying in my family that what is worth having is worth asking for, and I am told that we may have a Social Corner pin by asking for it, so if there are still enough to go around I should like very much to have one.

It has taken me longer to write this letter than it would to make a cake, and the cake would be a good deal better, too, but that is a little more in my line of work.

With best wishes to the members and many thanks to the editor, I am as ever

THE SAME ONE.

GREETINGS FROM WHITE CLOVER

Dear Social Corner Members: I think it has been about a month that I have been going to write, but thought I would wait until I was through house cleaning. Am not through yet but I am glad to say I have only one more room to clean. Just as soon as we have another good day, and warm, I will finish.

Cal-Girl: I will be up to see you before you go to Cal. I know your mother will be glad to see you, but you will be missed here in the church and home. You will have to visit East for two months go quickly.

Katy-Did: Hope to see you soon. It must be lovely up there in the summer.

August: I am sorry you are so poorly but summer is coming and I hope you will gain. You have my sympathy in losing your brother.

Whoa Jan: You also have my sympathy in losing your husband.

Pices: I am another one that leaves my work for a while to see the Social Corner page.

Catnip: I think I was the one that sent you a card from Willimantic but thought I wrote on the card plain enough to read. I am glad you are home once more.

Red Clover: Are you home yet? I hope so for your sake.

I think the letter that was in the Social Corner last week signed Red Clover was Red Cedar. I understand it was a mistake.

I have planted some flower seeds in my garden, two kinds of asters, pansies, sweet william, nasturtium, calliopsis, and I have two more kinds to plant, dahlias and crested cosmos.

Drusilla: Will thank you again for the lettuce plants are doing fine I think they are all going to live.

Diana: Did you receive the package all right, and the letter I sent about the same time?

I hope sometime I may attend one of the Social Corner meetings in Lebanon.

Sis Hopkins: Are you thinking of having the picnic this summer? I am in hopes to attend more of the picnics this summer.

I was very much grieved to hear of the death of another, Rest a While. I went to the funeral. I thought a good deal of her. She was such a nice lady.

Well I will close now. I would very much like a pin if there is any left. With many thanks.

WHITE CLOVER.

MORE WAYS TO USE HAM

Dear Social Corner Sisters: A few recipes for your cook books:

Ham and Egg Salad: One and half cup cold boiled ham, 3 hard boiled eggs diced, three fourths cup mayonnaise. Mix together and serve on lettuce hearts. Garnish with stuffed olives and parsley. Serve very cold.

Ham Cutlets: 2 cups minced cold cooked ham, one cup thick white sauce few grains cayenne, one tablespoon minced green peppers. Add sauce to ham then add seasoning. Put on a plate to cool, shape in the form of cutlets, dip in crumbs, then egg then crumb again. Fry in deep fat and drain. Garnish with lettuce.

Ham Rissote: Have cup raw ham diced, two and half tablespoons oleomargarine, 2 tablespoons cheese 2 cups boiling water, one teaspoon onion chopped, half cup rice uncooked, quarter teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and nutmeg. Fry ham and onion in one tablespoon magarine until goldan brown, add uncooked rice, two cups boiling water and seasoning. Allow to boil about 20 minutes, uncover and set in oven 10 minutes, add two tablespoons oleomargarine and two of grated cheese, mix well and serve hot.

Ham Timbales: One and half cup minced boiled ham, one fourth cup bread crumbs, 2 hard boiled egg yolks, one cup milk, one egg well beaten, two tablespoons melted butter. Mix all together and turn into well greased timbale molds. Set the molds into pan of water and cook until the mixture is firm in the center. Serve with tomato sauce.

PAULA.

RETURNS TO THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Sisters: As I have been silent for the past six years I must get active again and hope to meet some of the old members at Central Village May 20. As my old pen-name has been taken I shall have to take a new one. As I have recently moved near Central Village will enjoy attending the meetings there.

I guess I have got some of the old members guessing. For my pen name I will take

GERALDINE.

ENJOYED CLUB NO. 2'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I had a nice time at the Social Corner meeting of Club No. 2 last week Wednesday. There was quite a number there and they had a nice dinner. All seemed to enjoy themselves.

Hope all who were sick are well again.

I would like very much to have a Social Corner pin. I will say thank you for it.

EARLY BLUE BELL.

SOUTHERN FLOWERS AND DISHES

To the Sisters of the Social Corner: To one and all who has sent me cards and letters of birthday greetings I thank you, and will answer them as well, later. Hope all the sisters who were on the sick list are better. I have to renew my subscription so as to keep up with our Corner page.

Now that I read of apple blossom time in New England I wish I could be there to see them. But then some wish they were here for orange blossom time, too. But sisters, you ought to see a magnolia tree in bloom. That is one fine sight. The blossoms are creamy white and as big as your two hands spread out. The glossy green leaves are all around that flower. But alas, if you touch the petals, the flowers turn black. They have to be handled with care to preserve their beauty. And you can imagine how beautiful a tree of about 30 to 40 feet high, full of branches of glossy, rigid leaves and these lovely creamy, sweet smelling flowers, can be.

Now I have cooked a 'possum, and I don't blame the southern people from liking sweet potatoes and 'possum, Sisters, I tell you they are fine.

A friend of ours in our neighboring county came to see us and gave it to us and showed us how to dress it and bake it. I baked it without stuffing. It was so tender after three hours cooking and baking that it went to pieces when I tried to put it on a platter to serve. It is a fact that 'possum will have a place in my cookbook. Also soft shell turtle. Last Sunday we went to a lake three miles away, Lake Beresford. And while on the dock, a man came in with one he had just caught, but didn't care to eat it. So my husband made him an offer for it and got the turtle. After it was dressed we had eight pounds of nice meat for soup and to fry.

Now here's the way I've learned to cook turtle. And it's just like fried chicken when done. Take turtle and after cleaning cut up in pieces. Parboil until tender, with one small onion, salt and pepper to taste. Also one fresh celery stalk or 1-4 or 1-2 teaspoon of celery salt. This flavoring takes the fish taste away. Then dredge either with flour, cornmeal or cracker meal, fry brown on both sides and serve either with white (boiled or mashed) potatoes. I am sure anyone who will try fish will like it very much. Must now close before I make everybody hungry.

Best wishes to all the sisters from

E. M. R. C. P.

READY TO CHEER FOR CORNER

Dear Social Corner: Its quite a while since I have written to the Corner, but I am still on earth, and ready to cheer for the Social Corner any time. I certainly did enjoy my trip to Lebanon to Club No. 3. Lebanon will always find a soft spot in my heart, as it is my native town, and all my dear ones who have gone on are laid in the old cemetery there. I still feel that I have many friends there, as was fully realized in the welcome they gave me at their last meeting.

Olga: I want to thank you again for the ways and means of my getting there, and I certainly enjoyed every minute, in spite of the hard thunder showed, and do you know, that they got very little of it in w! Some shower, and we were out in the worst of it.

Have seen the new pins, and I would like one very much, and will thank the editor in advance if he will kindly send me one.

Many have told how they got their pen names. Mine is one that belonged to a much loved aunt, who, since I took it, has passed away, but who was much pleased at the time that I took her name. Hope when I get to be an old lady I may be as smart and as loveable as she was.

I am writing this on "Mothers' day" and I can truthfully say I'm glad I am a mother and a grandmother, too. How any woman can carry a poodle under her arm and call herself mother to it is more than I can fathom. Perhaps the poodle shows her more affection than her own children, but believe me, some day they will be sorry, for they will never have but one mother. Am sorry to learn of so many deaths lately. Our sister Wrinkle who was almost always with Club 4 will be greatly missed. Also Rest While, who had been such a hard working woman and finally gave out, and has gone to her long rest. My sympathy to all their families.

Most of wishes to the Corner.

ELIZA JANE.

A MEMBER FOR TWELVE YEARS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is a long time since I have written to the Corner page. I enjoy reading the letters each week, and am always glad to see any of the names I know appear.

Sister Barbar: I see you haven't forgotten the Corner. It has been quite a while since I saw your name on the page. Have you finished that good book you were reading? I suppose you were at church Sunday. I was on the sick list and so unable to go.

Anne D.: I read your beautiful poem Whistling in Heaven. And it has got destroyed by mistake. I wonder if you would send me a copy? I will return the favor somehow, and would thank you very much also.

Where are some of the old writers? Twelve years ago I sent in my first letter, and although I have not written many letters, I wonder if the editor would send me a pin. It would please me very much to have one, and should I be lucky enough to receive one, I will say thanks.

Ma of Greene Gables: You have done wonderful to have your cleaning all done so early. Last fall I enjoyed a visit from a friend whom I had never met, but still I felt acquainted, who has lived in your home town as long if not longer than you have. Plainfield has grown some, believe me, and no wonder you say it's a good old place to live in. May all those who are sick soon be able to be out again to enjoy the nice days which we all are looking for.

WAYS TO REMOVE STAINS

Dear Corner Sisters: I have found out this morning that paraffine will take out indellible ink; of course there are two kinds of indelible ink; this is what is gleaned from the typewriter ribbon. I dipped it in hot paraffine and let stand one hour, then washed it in soap and water and it all came out.

Printer's ink I had a fight with but at last conquered.

Oxalic acid potassium permanate solution will take out ink stains but it does weaken the fibers in the material.

Practically each of the writing inks on the market is of a different composition and presents a different problem.

Sweet milk may be used to soak a fresh writing ink stain as the milk becomes colored with ink it should be changed for fresh fluid. Some believe that sour milk is more efficious than fresh; but if the milk is colored it should not be allowed to sour on the spot or it may affect the color. When the milk stain is gone wash with luke warm water and soap. I should try paraffine first. Lead pencil marks you can erase with art gum usually.

Leather stains on white stockings (silk) if removed when fresh are much easier to get out unless all the stains are obliterated each time they are washed, the color will gradually deepen.

There are some kinds of ointments that can be removed with kerosene or lard.

Sometimes an evening gown is stained by lead foil wrapped around the stems of cut flowers, wash the marks off with soap and water using friction to dislodge the particles of lead. If the treatment is too harsh for the material by rubbing it between the hands, try dipping the lead mark in carbon tetrachloride and brushing very gently with a soft brush. If the gown is of a material that it will not bear friction nothing remains but to let the stain stay.

Raw potato is good for a mud stain.

Ether is good for removing paint and grease.

Resin and pitch can be removed with turpentine, carbon tetrachloride, ether or alcohol.

It is a good idea if you intend to use oxalic acid to get one ounce of oxalic acid crystals and dissolve them in one pint of water and bottle for future use.

I remember when artificial silk was first put on the market, if it was put in water it had a tendency to dissolve, but now you can wash it successfully. There are at least five distinct kinds of artificial silks. Some of them animal and some vegetable. If a bad spot defies water test your chemical on a seam where it will not show.

Here is a real military trick to clean button (brass) on the childrens suits or your own. In a sheet of thin card board cut a round hole a little larger than the button and running down from that hole cut a straight slot just wide enough to admit the shank. Slip the buttons one after the other in the hole and down the slot until they are bunched together. Then you can clean them without getting the cleaner on the garment. If there is a dark stain on the buttons wipe them off with vinegar or whiting powder with a little olive oil in it or wet your cloth with olive oil dipped in whiting powder. Black satin slippers can be cleaned with alcohol.

I make a paste of olive oil and white ing powder to clean steel. Rotten stone is good but I think it scratches the steel.

KITTY LOU.

WHO KNOWS ABOUT DAHLIAS, VERBENAS AND SWEET PEAS?

Dear Corner Folks: These sunny spring days—notice I said sunny—make one glad if the house is clean, and not too many cares, to get out and view orchards and commune with nature.

When you might all see our orchard now. Last Rose of summer did enjoy it last week. Come again and come often with L.

Ma of Greene Gables: Three cheers for you. I cleaned house in March, and I am sure we had as fine weather as is being found now for it.

Glad you spoke about ants. This time when I get a remedy I shall paste it on my cupboard door,—for ants to read—oh, no, lest we forget. Our editor does have patience to let us ask again and again each year for some advice, but that same advice may help lots of new comers.

Roberta: Do you remember me? I do you. Talked with Annie P. tonight. She's been very ill with grip.

I too have an aged father and am not away much, only Social Corner day.

Uncle Sam's Daughter: Glad to see one cooky recipe tells amount of flour, (usually flour enough to roll.) Oh horrors when I see that phrase! Was very much interested in article about asters and verbenas.

Who knows about dahlias, verbenas and sweet peas? Have planted latter.

Am much disappointed to find my gladioli spoiled, at least three fourths are. Never knew it to happen before.

Does any one dry greens? Believe Lavender did. I must find out about it.

Father is better. That was a misprint. Should have been "Now improving."

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

BACHELOR MAID OUT OF HOSPITAL

Dear Social Corner: Bachelor Maid has asked me to write and thank Club No. 2 for the beautiful plant sent to her, while she was in the hospital. It was a great comfort to know you were thinking of her.

At present she is with Sister Cypress. We hope her eye will soon be well. And her sight restored. The doctor speaks very encouragingly about it.

I am sure she would like a Social Corner pin. And so would I. And will say thank you.

OLGA.

MAKING A LIGHT WEIGHT QUILT

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: I would like a pin if I am not too late, and send thanks in advance.

Don't know whether I'll ever get a chance to wear it, for I don't go out much. House cleaning makes me terribly tired and lame. Like Free Air I began early, but didn't keep on. My old friend neuritis visits me occasionally, and then I have to take a day off. Maybe I'll get it done before summer is over.

I have found a use for sugar bags, which accumulate quite fast.

I pieced a top for a quilt for a small bed, took the bags double, sewed them together and used it in place of cotton in the quilt and quilted it on the sewing machine.

It makes a light weight quilt just right for summer.

Whirlwind: Thanks for card received some time ago.

Merry Widow: Thanks for Easter card. Why don't you write to the Corner?

N. O. T.: I think you have mistaken me for a younger sister, for I never yet have been crabbing. I lived near the water for 40 years and cooked many a crab, but I began housekeeping with four besides myself in the family, and the years have been busy ones.

Only-a-Link: Guess I know you. No time like the days of our youth.

SILENT PARTNER, (Dec. 25.)
Preston.

SNAP DOODLE CAKE

Dear Editor and Sisters: In the Bulletin of May 2, 1925 there was a letter in the Corner signed Red Clover which told about her having pneumonia and a sore hand and her flower beds of hyacinths in bloom. Red Clover is still in the hospital and she wanted me to write for her as she is unable to use her hand, and ask if the wrong name was signed or if there is another Red Clover. She can sit up in a wheel chair and expects soon to get about on crutches.

As several of the sisters have eaten some of my Snap Doodle cake and wanted the recipe here it is:

Snap Doodle Cake: 1 cup sugar, butter size of an egg (small,) 1 egg, 1 cup milk, pinch of salt, 1-2 cup of flour, 2 teaspoons of cream tartar, 1 teapsoon of saleratus or soda. Sift sugar and cinnamon over the top and bake in a hot oven.

RED ROSE.

RAISING TURKEYS, GEESE AND DUCKS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Am writing to send thanks for the pin I received so quickly and to let Aries know I received her nice card. Am very sorry you had such luck. I had 35 eggs set last year and had 34 hatch out and I finally raised 11. We killed 10 for Thanksgiving, and saved one hen turkey so have two this summer. I set two hens on nine eggs each. They hatched out 13. We took them off last Monday night and three died Tuesday and one more died Wednesday a. m. Today (Sunday) took off another hen with nine. She hatched all her eggs. Now I have another to come off in another week and set one last Monday the 5th. Maybe I won't raise any but hope to. I used to have geese. I raised eleven goslins one year and they did look nice. I had 15 hatch but lost four. Two got too wet in a thunder shower and one got all feathered out and half grown but got hurt some how. I also had ducks. I raised about 40 one summer but you know they liked to take a swim. Well they could not go to the pond as their master's watering trough was much handier. He would went to water the old nag so he would clean out the trough nicely then pump it full of water, start to lead out the nag and by the time he got there the ducks were having a grand bath. He was provoked you bet so finally that ended my duck business. I like to see them all around. I liked my old goosies, No, Aries, I don't live very near Hoosup. I live in Scotland but am on the Baltic rural route. I should like to be at Central Village to meet you. I have a daughter living there and not far from the hall where you meet. If I had a younger horse I would try to be there sure but our old Billie is most 30 years young and so don't think I will start. But, I do hope you will have good luck with your turkeys.

S. E. L.: How glad I, or we, was to see you and the little boys and girl and hope to see you both again. Hope babies did not take cold. My how cold it grows every night. Begins about 4 p. m. and is near to a frost some nights.

Aries: Was it you that wrote of losing most of your plants this winter. I lost several, two nice fuchias but have just got so I can get some slips. I have a calla that is 30 years old and have had 10 blooms on it some winters but that got about half of its leaves frosen, so only had two blooms. Do you like geraniums? I have quite a number of different colors. Some are in blossom now. I do like flowers. My begonias have not done much this winter. Have got to get busy and get out my dahlias and gladioli. They are still in the cellar and no garden ploughed yet.

Now I guess I've said enough for this time so will close. Hoping the sick ones are better and all sorrowing ones have my sympathy. I did not get my Bulletin Saturday so have not seen the Social Corner. I don't like to miss one but it seems most always it is the Saturdays Bulletin that doesn't come and I miss it as I like to read it Sundays.

AUNT JERUSHA.

REGRETS DEATH OF BILLY BROWN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I suppose I am taking more space than I should after having a letter in last Saturday but I felt that I must answer Paula who I feel sure I have injured after reading her letter last saturday.

If Paula is offended at my little joke about the salad I assure her it was unintentional. But her letter plainly showed that she is peeved at B. E. Susie. I did not notice that the letters were any larger than the rest but I can assure her it is not necessary for her to write larger for my benefit as I assure her my eyesight is perfectly O. K. and I don't have to have anyone read to me.

I knew it should have been serve instead of sew and I'm sure every one else thought so too and saw the joke.

Well never mind if Paula knew B. E. Susie better she would know that she meant no harm so we will forget it.

Mistakes happen in the best regulated households and I noticed that there were no less than three errors in my second last letter. I did not jump at the editor's throat for I knew it was a typographical error.

Free Air: How goes it?

Bug: I see someone is going to have a big birthday party soon.

Was very sorry to read of the passing of Betty Brown. She was a dear and to know her was to love her. I am glad I had the privilege of her acquaintance and I extend my sincere sympathy to her bereaved ones.

Beatrix, too, I had the pleasure of knowing and always enjoyed her company whenever I met her.

Sassy: I agree with you, real friendship is a beautiful thing.

Rosy Posy: Why so silent?

Mohawk River: Tried your lemon rice pudding and found it de—licious.

What a lovely day for the meeting in Willimantic. Wish I had been with them all.

Will say thank you Mr. Editor for my pin which I received.

True Blue: Call again, it was too short.

Long may the Social Corner live is the wish of

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

CLUB NO. 1 CLOSES SEASON

To Our Editor and Members of the Social Corner: Club No. 1, held their last meeting for this season May 13, in Franklin hall, Willimantic. Our faithful sister Neighbor Eveready was hostess assisted by Maine Lover, Wandering Jew, Rose Lee, Neighbor Eveready's Sister, Edna Marie, Honey Suckle, Wiltwyck, Wisteria, Aunt Alicia and White Clover.

The tables were prettily decorated with our Social Corner color of yellow flowers, apple blossoms and pansies.

As we gathered around the tables we stood in silent prayer in memory of the dear sisters who have past to the Great Beyond.

Then the Doxology was sung. A delicious dinner was served of meat loaf, salads, baked beans, and pork, rolls, pickles, cheese, pies and cakes of all kinds and coffee.

In the afternoon we enjoyed a fine program. Piano solo by Mayflower, piano and vocal solo by Mrs. Alguire, reading by Neighbor Eveready, piano and vocal duet by Wandering Jew and Mrs. Alguire, guessing contest, piano solo by Mayflower and we closed with all singing Auld Lang Syne.

Nema: I wish you and Irv. Lyon could have come together. How nice it would have been. Sisters we have an invitation to have a picnic near the shore of the Hudson river. Let's go.

Amy and Anna Mell: You and many others were missed today. I expected to see Huldy but hooked my dress wrong. Best wishes to all.

MARY FRANCE.

THE MONTH OF MAY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I am glad to be able to greet you all, this beautiful May day. May is a month of mirth and melody. There are many interesting days in May. We have the Cheery May day when the happy children dance merrily around the garlanded maypole and Arbor day, when trees are planted for

The Corner [illegible] future generations [illegible] is [illegible] contradictory [illegible] its smile with the [illegible] Thomas Hood says:

"'Tis like the birthday of the world,
When earth was hemmed in bloom,
The light is made of many dyes,
The air is all perfume,
There's crimson buds, and white and blue,
The very rainbow showers
Have turned to blossoms where they fell,
And sown the earth with flowers."

In May, the birds are happily flitting about with bits of straw or string intent on building a home.

So happy are they that they sing their sweetest songs even while they are so busy. All nature seems busy and happy too. The flowers are springing up, the buds are swelling on shrubs and trees, and soon nature will appear in a new and dainty spring suit of soft green which every one will enjoy. The lilacs, those dear old-fashioned flowers will soon be in their prime, giving forth their sweet perfume, and the apple blossoms will add their delicate fragrance to the atmosphere, and the busy bees will be flitting from one blossom to another collecting sweets to lay up their winter store. Poor, blind Milton greets May in these words,

"Hail bounteous May that doth inspire
Mirth, and youth and warm desire;
Woods and groves are of thy dressing,
Hill and dale boast thy blessing.
Thus we salute thee with our early song,
And welcome thee, and wish thee long."

May holds for us two of the most sacred days of the year, Mother's day, and Memorial day. Across the chasm of the years mother love has come to us. A pure and holy affection.

The very word mother, is a symbol of honor. Mother's hands seemed to be doing little tasks of love. Beyond life's boundaries, my misted eyes can see mother's hands reach out to beckon me.

Soon Memorial day will be here, God bless the dear old Grand Army men. I am sending in a sweet poem called Mother's day. Best wishes to all.

PALMLEAF.

SUPPLIES POEM WORTH REMEMBERING

Dear Editor and Sisters of Social Corner: I have visited the Social Corner several times and been asked to join by Chelsea and others, but I told them I didn't have any thing to write about.

As I read over the letters the week before last I noticed one of the sisters asked for a poem. I don't know if I have the whole of it but can supply a few more lines than she gave.

"Keep a watch on your words, my darlings,
For words are wonderful things,
They are sweet like the bees fresh honey;
Like the bees they have terrible stings,
They can bless like the warm glad sunshine,
And brighten a lonely life;
They can cut the strife or anger
Like an open, two-edged knife."

This seems to me a very true little poem and I wish we could all remember it.

I have been shut in most of the winter and spring but I am always hoping for better times, better circumstances and better health.

CLIFF.

TWO GOOD RECIPES

Dear Corner Members: Just a few hints for the cooks who are looking for new recipes to conquer.

Chop Suey: Cook four slices of bacon until brown, then add 1-2 pound of shoulder steak (all lean) after putting through food chopper. Stir until meat is browned, then add one medium sized onion chopped, and one half cup celery and one half cup of cabbage cut fine. Cover slowly and cook from 12 to 15 minutes, add one and one quarter cups of thick tomato (cooked) one half cup hot water (some times three quarters of a cup will not be too much) season with salt and pepper. Cook for ten minutes more. Stir in about one cup cooked macaroni into the meat mixture and serve piping hot.

Delicious Cookies: Cream one-half cup of butter and one-half cups of sugar, two tablespoons sour milk and add two well beaten eggs. Flavor with 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon soda, and flour enough to roll. Just before rolling out, add one half cup almonds or any favored nuts chopped fine for variety one half cup of chopped stoned raisins may be added instead of nuts. These little cakes should be rolled as thin as possible and baked in a quick oven. Made carefully they are most delicious.

MOTHER'S DAY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: God bless the man who set aside Mother's day, in memory of the ones we hold most dear; for those who from this life have passed away, to those who living fill our hearts with cheer.

Oh, what a debt of gratitude we owe to those who suffered much that we might live, the care they lavished as they watched us grow, the mothers care that they alone can give. How careful mother watched us through the day, how softly tucked us in at night, how patiently she pointed us the way that guided us to paths that led us right. 'Tis well to honor mothers that are gone and wear a flower reverently to show that we remember all that they have done and hope in heaven they can see and know. How fortunate are those who have been spared the parting with their mothers here below. So when this glorious May day dawns so bright if mother has been spared to you, that long, remember her with gift or token alight and fill her heart with gladness.

Would like one of the pins if I am not too late.

Remove from the fire and flavor with 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Pour into a pudding dish cool a little. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth; add 3 tablespoons of confectioners sugar, spread over the top of pudding sprinkle with cocoanut and brown in oven.

WESTERLY

The weekly session of third district court was held in the district court rooms in Westerly court house, Friday morning, before Judge Michael J. Turano.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following criminal docket: State, Frank H. Brown, chief of police, of Hopkinton, vs. Lawrence Maine, marked ready; State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, of Westerly, vs. Presto Bevesso, continued one week, as were also the cases against Concetta and Edyard Liotta, Antonio Fiore and Thomas Fiore. Civil docket: Continued one week, United States Rubber company vs. Nathan A. Collins; Granite Street garage vs. Concetta Liotta; Frank H. Barber vs. William T. Sherman; Abraham Aiber vs. Ben Kaplan. Placed on nisi docket: Boston Furniture company vs. Joseph Chestnuts; Cornelius H. Conway vs. Thomas Eual; Clifton D. Hall vs. Angello Pucci.

Judge Michael J. Turano called the case of State vs. Frank Cahoone. A previous plea of guilty was continued. Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that defendant had been brought before the court a number of times on an intoxication charge and had liquor in his possession. He was fined $25 and costs.

State, Frank H. Brown, chief of Hopkinton police, vs. Lawrence Maine was a charge of reckless operation of an automobile. Attorney Ferguson stated that the accident occurred some time ago in Hopkinton, near the Wellstown bridge, when the automobile of William was run into and a passenger in the Maine car named York was thrown out, receiving a fracture of the skull from which he died in the hospital. For the respondent, Attorney Gallagher said that in his mind it was an accident caused by the bright headlights. Judge Turano imposed a fine of $100 and costs. An appeal was taken. Bond $200.

Morris Farbanks, 51, who informed the court that he was a Russian and gave his honor to understand that he was walking back to his native country, appeared in court in heavy marching order with pots and pans, script and high boots, having been taken into custody in the town of Hopkinton Thursday, charged with wandering about, sleeping in the open and not giving a good account of himself. His arrest was made by Constable Frank Brown as he had built a fire by the roadside.

The judge, the solicitor and the high sheriff, each took a turn in explaining to the touring one the full significance of his position. He then learned if e pleaded guilty that he would escape a six months' term in the state workhouse. And having seen the light he came across with a five dollar tender. Judge Turano cautioned him to leave the state at once and to refrain from sleeping and building fires by the roadside.

By records filed in the office of Westerly town clerk it is voted that on May 14th, Thorp and Trainer, Inc., conveyed to Louise Schmitt Rossie of Mystic, a tract of land on the south side of Atlantic avenue at Pleasant View beach; Alma B. Sisson granted a lease to Barney A. Fain for the Pleasant View garage so called in June 1, 1925 to June 1, 1926, at Pleasant View beach; Michael Calpolbo of Bradford, deeded to Bioso Balidino, of Bradford, a lot or parcel of land located on the west side of the highway leading from Bradford to Westerly.

The death of Robert L. Currie, who was born in Westerly February 6, 1893, the son of John and the late Phoebe Livingston Currie, occurred Thursday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, where he had been under medical treatment for several weeks. He was unmarried and made his home in Bradford, R. I.

On direction of Judge Edward W. Blodgett, who has been sitting in the Washington county superior court, the jury impanelled in the case of the A. L. Castritius company vs. Earl W. Barber, a suit to collect balance due on a saxaphone and case, were to bring in a sealed verdict Friday night. The jurors were excused to report at the court house at West Kingston next Monday morning, when consideration will be given to the Carpenter will case.

Henry P. Walton, of Pawcatuck, was defendant in a $25,000 damage suit brought by Albert L. Castritius, who sought to recover on a contract to purchase the New Park hotel on High street, for the amount of $22,000 testified as to the agreed price. The decision by Judge Blodgett was announced at 1:10 Friday afternoon. The defendant took the stand Friday morning and testified that he resided at 34 Margin street, Pawcatuck, and was the owner of the hotel, unencumbered, having owned it for the past 20 years. He denied that he had ever given Joseph T. Murphy, late realty dealer in Westerly, the authority to sell the block and that he was never notified to appear at the Industrial Trust company where it had previously been testified that the deal was to be consumated. He denied a telephone conversation, as previously given in evidence.

When Judge Blodgett had listened to the arguments of Herbert W. Rathbun, for defendant and Clarence E. Goche for plaintiff, he informed them that it was unfortunate that both Mr. Murphy and Mr. Agard had died, also said that their evidence could not be obtained "unless you get a Dr. Conan Doyle," in rendering his decision he said there was a considerable amount of unsustained evidence.

At 2 o'clock, when court convened, the jury was impanelled to try the Castritius-Barber case as follows: Ernest K. Thomas, George Schaffer and Charles F. Potter, foreman, South Kingstown; Frank H. Reynolds, North Kingstown; Frank E. Saunders, Raymond A. Spargo and Robert Drysdale, Jr., Westerly; Frank E. Burdick and Claude Hopkins, Hopkinton; Joseph M. Foster, Richmond; George P. ## SOCIAL CORNER

ner member, in fact I presume I have forfeited all claim to membership as it is about three years, I think, since I wrote my first and only letter. My intentions were good when I joined but you have probably all heard the old saying about the road to destruction being paved with good intentions so I suppose they don't count for much.

However, M. I have not forgotten as a writer when it comes to reading the Corner letters I am certainly right there, and they are all the more enjoyable to me as I know "who is who" in quite a number of instances.

The letters about children and the problems in connection with their upbringing always appeal to me, and I was interested in that of Don't Worry a few weeks ago. I happen to know "who is who" in her case also and while I am not personally acquainted with her I have gained by her home many times.

I wonder how many mothers realize the value of suggestion in dealing with children. Perhaps the task is to pick up and put away some books. Instead of merely telling or asking them to do so, try saying with perhaps a spectulative look, I wonder how these books would look if they were all picked up and packed away nicely" or again with a glance at the clock, "Do you suppose all those playthings could be picked up in three minutes?" You can nearly always depend on their going to work with a will if you put it in this way while if the plain unvarnished command were given the task would be performed under protest. It is only right that children should help in small ways but on the other hand they are human and dislike being constantly told to do this and that.

By getting children to perform these various little tasks by the use of suggestion we are accomplishing four things:

We are developing the child's sense of responsibility by giving him a share in the necessary tasks of the home.

He is performing his work cheerfully.

Mother is saved many needless steps.

The habit of obedience is being inculcated in the child's mind almost subconsciously.

My letter is longer than I expected and I am afraid you will not want to hear from me for another three years so will close with best wishes for the Corner.

JANICE.

GREETINGS FROM PAPA'S BOY

Dear Editor and All Social Corner Writers: Have kept silent longer than I intended but I want to thank the editor for Cherriette's and my pin.

Necia: Thanks for birthday card.

Chub: Have thought of you many times and how pleased I was to have you and family call. Bonny is growing and his rattle is laid away in his drawer for him.

Don't Worry: Why shouldn't I be some proud? He is one grand boy, too, so you can see him some time.

Elizabeth: Am so glad you are feeling better.

Dorinda: Thanks for my card received in March. Hope to see you some time.

Maple Leaf: Thanks for your card of congratulations.

Diamond: How you must look all so shiny in your new car. Drive over and let me see you. Am here most of the time. I bet you shine some!

Rural Delivery: You are the guilty one, now.

Keziah Doolittle: When are you coming up? A nice walk these pleasant days.

Chelsea: Have looked for you since I returned home. Come up and let the youngsters come after school.

Merry Farmer's Boy: Your lively letter at hand and will reply soon. How is your—? (Martha Washington.)

Some sister wrote me some time ago about her boy who was growing and was fine. I have forgotten her name but wish she would write again.

Gadabout: Mr. Papa's Boy runs on the C. V. now. You might run across him sometime. Don't you attend any gatherings at the Buckingham?

What sister lives on the end of the West side car line that told my hubby for me to write her?

With best greetings to all.

PAPA'S BOY.

REMINDER OF PLEASANT TIME

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Many thanks for the pin which my mother received during her last sickness, but she was then going into a comatose state and hardly realized what it was. However, I shall prize it highly and whenever I see it, it will remind me of the many pleasant times she had with the sisters at the Buckingham and on picnics.

The beautiful spray of lilies from Club No. 2 came as a surprise and I wish also to thank the club for them.

BETTY BROWN'S DAUGHTER.

HOT TEAKETTLE COVERS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: There were some questions asked and answered, and some surmises, on Tuesday morning when our Bulletin did not come on time. It seems that paper plays an important part in our daily programme.

I received my Social Corner pin and thank the sender. I wanted to be in the family even if I am worn and threadbare.

N. O. T.: You just bother me trying to guess. Come and see me and end my curiosity.

T[illegible] afraid to think or say evil [illegible]ards, but when one takes [illegible]kettle cover to fill it with [illegible] burns one's hands I would [illegible]round unseen. I have found

Buy a small funnel, stick in the teakettle spout, hold under the faucet and let the mean old cover stay on.

A smile for all.

BROKEN ARM PREVENTS WRITING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am going to try to write my first letter in over three months, having had a broken arm. During the time I attended two meetings at the Buckingham.

I received several post cards from the sisters for which I want to say, "Thank you." I hope to answer them all some day.

I would like very much to have one of the pins the editor is giving out.

U. C. B. and Bumble Bee: Don't forget that promised visit.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

CORNER GROWS BETTER AND BETTER

Dear Members and Editor: How I do enjoy "our page" in the Bulletin every Saturday. It seems as if it grows better and better. Like Pices, the Bulletin is my favorite newspaper and I even read the sport news as I am a baseball fan. Wonder if any of the sisters care for this sport.

Black Eyed Susie: I want to tell you how very much I enjoyed your letter "Some Thoughts for Mothers' Day." It was very beautiful and so true.

Aries: Your card received. Though you may be old as we count time, yet your spirit is very youthful.

Historian: I once had a copy of that book Memories of the Rev. Anni Rogers in my possession, it having belonged to my grandfather. He had

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The week in Norwich a half century ago was an unusually quiet one. Little of note outside of regular lodge meetings and one or two entertainments at Breed hall occurred during the week. The fire department was making plans for its annual spring parade and a number of visiting hose companies and bands were expected to be seen in the parade. Interesting extracts from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of May 1875 are as follows:

Monday, May 10, 1875—A rehearsal of the reception and of the other tableaux of the Tea Party will be had at Breed Hall at 8 o'clock this evening. All those who take part are particularly requested to be present.

The police on Washington street were excited about 11 o'clock last night by two pistol shots fired in the vicinity of the wharf bridge. A search revealed no dead men, however, and the firing was concluded to be only an incident in a family discussion on the West side.

A toy balloon was found near the Ponemah Mills at Taftville, last week, which was sent up from Brooklyn, N. Y., by a gentleman in October last. His card was attached and it was forwarded to him. It probably made the trip in about six hours, as the gas which it contains would hardly support it longer, and laid under the snow all winter.

Tuesday, May 11, 1875—George D. Ellis, recently of the firm of Leavitt and Ellis, leaves tonight for Pennsylvania with the intention of entering the drug business near Wilkesbarre. Mr. Ellis has been engaged in the same place for over 12 years and his departure from Norwich will be sincerely regretted.

The entertainment at the Universalist church was postponed from last evening until Friday evening of this week on account of the weather. A great many came to the church and were given a free exhibition by the exhibiter while he was adjusting his apparatus. All were delighted and look forward to an interesting evening next Friday.

The spelling match at Tantic last week was a decided success. About 150 persons filled the hall connected with the fire engine company. The Rev. Mr. Hoffman was called upon to preside. Charles H. Carpenter gave out the words and William Green with Louis Rogers acted as referees. After a spirited contest, the prize was carried off by Miss Julia C. Hoffman. Another match will take place Thursday evening of this week.

Wednesday, May 12, 1875—The great success of the season in the way of social entertainments was the Martha Washington Tea Party in Breed Hall last night. The hall was profusely and elaborately decorated and let it be said here, with admirable taste. The gallery front was draped and displayed at intervals on it were bayonets and muskets stacked. On account of the great crowd the price of admission this evening will be that of reserved seats, one dollar. The typical hatchet of G. W., and choice cups and saucers, procured for the occasion will be for sale.

Washburn's Last Sensation, an old favorite, will appear in Breed Hall next Wednesday evening. The Springfield Republican says that this entertainment is certainly the best.

People who complain that the water pipes here were greatly used up the last winter, may be interested to know that in Providence over 4,300 feet were lost by freezing.

Thursday, May 13, 1875—A lot on Sachem street has been secured for a practice ground by the Falls Croquet Club, who will soon challenge the down town club.

The cane carried by Stephen Hopkins, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence is in the possession of the Hopkins family of this city, who are his direct descendants.

The N. E. Dixon, Jr., F. F. Company of Westerly, have accepted the invitation of the Blackstone Hose to the Spring parade, and will come by special train, accompanied by the Westerly band.

Residents on Franklin street complain that the Ripley lot, so called, is an intolerable nuisance. It is made a place of deposit for every kind of refuse matter, and the people in the vicinity fear a pestilence.

Friday, May 14, 1875—A gentleman in this city has a stocking said to have been worn by one of his ancesters at the battle of Lexington. It is toed and heeled with buckskin, which explains how our forefathers were able to sock it too 'em.

A board of civil engineers in the navy is ordered to convene at Thames River Naval Station on Monday next. The board consists of Civil Engineers Chandler of Portsmouth, Yard, Stratton of Washington Yard and End of New London Station. It is understood to be the purpose of the department to increase the facilities of the station and this board will submit plans for future operations.

The selectmen of Preston have advertised for proposals for the new town loan of $50,000 coupon bonds, in part or in whole.

The parade of the fire department next week promises to be the most brilliant one ever made here. A number of companies and bands from out of town will be present.

The governors of three different states took dinner on the Thames ferry boat Monday and showed very capable appetites.

Saturday, May 15, 1875—Thursday evening St. James Lodge No. 23, F. and A. M., entertained at their lodge room, members of Somerset lodge of this city, Mount Vernon lodge of Jewett City, and Oxoboxo lodge of Montville. Early in the evening the exemplification of the work in the third degree was given by W. M. Alpheus S. Gilberts after which a social hour was passed in the banquet rooms. About 150 members were present.

A new automatic telegraph instrument is being put into the offices of the Franklin line in the larger cities of the country, which transmits far more rapidly than those now in use. It will not be introduced immediately in this city.

St. James Lodge No. 23, F. and A. M., have hung upon the walls of their lodge room a fine painting in oil, by the artist, Leighton, of old Dr. Downer, who was for 50 years master of St. James lodge before it surrendered its charter to the Grand lodge.

Recipes

QUICK MARMALADE

Dear Social Corner Editor: I would like very much to join the Social Corner. I have been reading it for some time and have enjoyed it immensely.

Hoping I will be accepted, I am sending a recipe for the Cornerites.

When you are in a hurry to get out in the afternoon and have made a cake to frost you can make this frosting quickly.

Seven Minute Frosting: One unbeaten egg white, seven eighths of a cup of granulated sugar, one teaspoon of baking powder, three tablespoons cold water. Put all ingredients in top of a double boiler and heat with beater for seven minutes. Add one half teaspoon flavoring and baking powder. Beat and spread on cake.

ANDY.

A Correction

Dear Sisters: I did not intend to write again so soon but I see I made a mistake in the recipe I sent last Saturday. It should be three tablespoons of cold water instead of three teaspoons in the sponge cake.

Hope none of the sisters have tried it as yet.

I want to thank the histers who sent me birthday cards, and also the editor for my pin.

Whirlwind: You made a mistake. I was there last meeting. I was a helper and was talking with you at the sink about the salad. It was good too. Do you remember me now?

Honey B: I'll send the recipe for the pie when I get time to write it.

"Strawberry" May 10.

Tobacco in Austria

The use of tobacco is increasing enormously in Austria. Although the population today is 6,750,000 the state factories now turn out more cigars than they did before the war when the country had a population of 52,000,000. One cause of the increase is found in the fact that women are smoking, not only after meals, but at all times of the day and everywhere. Also, there is no age restriction on the sale of tobacco to juveniles. A recent local exhibition arranged by the Anti-Narcotic Union, designed to portray the alleged harmful effects of tobacco, failed to interest the public.

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, May 16—Strength and activity of the high priced specialties, several of which soared 3 to 5 points, shadowed all other developments in anticipation of the Tennessee Electric today's rights offering. Trading started off at a rapid pace and quickened after midday under the impetus of extensive short covering, the day's sales running above one and one-quarter million shares.

Mack Trucks was the sensational feature, reaching a new high for all time at 165 3-8 or nearly 60 points above the year's low, and then easing to 165 1-2, where it was up 7 1-8 points on the day. Wall street was generally inclined to attribute the buying of this issue to expectations of an early announcement of reanstallation plan, involving an increased dividend. Kennecott also touched the highest price in its history at 109 3-4, closing just below the top for a net gain of 4 1-2 points. General Electric, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Bush Terminal (old stock), Continental Insurance and Allied Packing "A" showed net gains of 3 to 4 points.

The weekly mercantile reviews emphasized the fact that net advances exceeded net declines in the commodity markets. The credit situation continued easy with indications that large sums were still available for investment and speculative purposes.

Standard industrials received better support than they have on most any day this week. United States Steel common advanced 1 3-8 to 116 1-8; Baldwin closed 3 1-8 points higher at 114 and American Locomotive, American Smelting, Allied Chemical, American Woolen and several others showed net gains of 1 to 2 points.

Interest in the rails centered largely in the Pitts and Wheeling and Lake Erie issues, all of which attained new peaks priced for the year. Buying of Wheeling and Lake Erie was based on reports that the road will be incorporated in the proposed "Fifth Trunk Line" system in the east. Erie common touched a new 1925 low at 26 2-4 and then rallied 1 point.

Shares of food and merchandising companies, which recently have been reporting higher current earnings, were under steady accumulation. Cushman's Bakery showed a net gain of nearly 3 points at 70, while General Baking, Kresge's Department stores, May Department store, McCrory stores, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Woolworth advanced 1 to 3 points.

Pierce Arrow issues all attained new maximum prices on net gains ranging from 3 to 7 1-2 points. Among the many other strong spots were American Car and Foundry, American Radiator, Art Loom corporation, Certainteed Products, Eaton Axle, Mathieson Alkali, Niagara Power, Pullman and Underwood Typewriter, all up 2 to 4 points.

Call money opened slightly higher at 4 per cent., in reflection of the relatively heavy overnight demand for funds for mid-month payments and payroll purposes, but eased to 3 3-4 later. The time money market was quiet, with brokers bidding 3 3-4 and the bankers asking 4 per cent., and some business done at 3 7-8 for three and four month maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchange market was irregularly lower. Demand sterling held firm just about $4.85, but French francs eased about 2 points to 5.19 3-8 cents and further sharp recessions took place in the Norwegian and Danish currencies.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 15—Bond prices broke into new high ground again today as railroad issues resumed the leadership of the market. The press of funds seeking employment in investment channels also was reflected in moderate improvement in certain United States and foreign government bonds.

A revival of buying interest in New Haven securities was one of the features of trading in railroad liens. The company's 6s of 1925 climbed two points to 91 and the collateral 6s gained more than a point. Wheeling & Lake Erie issues were under accumulation in the belief that the road's stock was being bought for merger purposes by other railroad interests.

Prospects that an early reorganization of the St. Paul railway will begin to take shape contributed to the strength of these bonds, which extended their recent advance. Gains of one to two points were registered by the road's active issues. The improvement also was ascribed to reports of better conditions in the northwest, which were reflected in an upturn in Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Chicago & Northwestern liens.

Price movements in the industrial group were mixed, but the main trend was upward, with average gains of a point registered by Magna Copper 7s, Pierce Arrow Motor 8s, Consolidated Coal 5s and Illinois Steel 4 1-2s. Standard Gas 6 1-2s and Brooklyn Edison 5s "A" were among the strong spots in the public utility section.

Preparations were understood to be in progress for a $27,000,000 offering of Federal Farm Loan bonds, which probably will be placed on the market next week. The issue is expected to bear a 4 1-2 per cent. coupon.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 15—Indications that notwithstanding recent assertions to the contrary a good deal of wheat is likely to come here from Minneapolis and Omaha eased down the Chicago wheat market today after the price of the May delivery here had risen as nigh as $1.71 a bushel, the topmost level touched in many weeks. Chicago closed quotations on wheat were unsettled, ranging from 1c net decline to 3-4c advance, May 1.68 1-2 and July 1.51 3-4 to 1.52. Corn closed at 3-4c to 1 7-8c off oats 1-4 to 5-8c down, and provisions unchanged to 37c higher.

Scarcity of wheat available for filling May contracts here have such a sharp new upturn to Chicago prices early that buying of wheat to be forwarded to this city was soon reported from Omaha and later from Minneapolis. The advance here had been accompanied by talk that supplies in Europe were also becoming very light, and that import requirements there would be heavy within the next few months. Aside, however, from the purchase of a little spring wheat, fresh export business in this country failed to develop, and during the last half of the session the market was a Warmer weather and slowness of cash demand brought about lower prices on part of the list, further breaks having been taken to effect lower basis over July.

Commission house buying favored life to provisions.

CURB MARKET

New York, May 15—Stock prices continued to forge ahead in today's curb market trading, which was featured by steady accumulation of public utility issues, based on consolidation prospects and the favorable outlook for increased earnings.

Heavy buying of Electric Bond and Share, which mounted almost five points to 72 1-4, reflected the appreciation in the prices of the wide assortment of utility stocks owned by that company. This stock led all others in activity. Belief that the Commonwealth Power company would derive considerable benefit from its proposed acquisition of the Tennessee Electric Power company lifted that stock about six points to 146, although it fell back to 146 at the close.

Other strong spots in the public utility group included Adirondack Power & Light, which responded to merger rumors, American Superpower "B", Lehigh Power securities and National Power and Light, which scored gains ranging from one to three points. American Light and Traction moved counter to the general trend.

Several industrial specialties developed conspicuous strength. Buckeye company stock moved up more than 4 points to 154 1-2. Canadian Dry Ginger Ale "B" jumped five points and White Rock established a new 1925 high price at 34 1-2. Pathe Exchange "A" sold more than six points higher.

Price movements of the motor, oil, coal and baking stocks were limited, most of these displaying a steady tone.

VOLUNTOWN

Plans are under way for the annual observance of Memorial Day, in the village. The exercises will be as usual in the forenoon and will consist of a parade of all local organizations. The school children, Boy Scouts, Companions of the Forest, Foresters of America, members of the Grange. Following the parade there will be a short programme in Union Hall, arranged by Mrs. John O. Peckham and Mrs. William H. Kaufmann.

The newly organized Voluntown Brass Band has volunteered its services. The annual collection is being taken up by the Companions of the Forests to defray the expenses of the day. If there is any balance after defraying the expenses that balance the committee has decided should be given to the band for its services. Contributions to the fund are being received by the chairman of the general committee, Thomas McDonald.

Owing to cases of scarlet fever in town, the Health officer, Dr. H. T. Thurber has closed the Center school, also Union Hall where several entertainments were planned. There are several mild cases of the malady and the precautions are being taken to check it. The quarantine is for about two weeks.

It is considered very fortunate that Dr. Thurber who recently purchased the Bliven property, had arrived here as the town has been without a physician since the death of Dr. Hoover, and as in situations like the present a resident physician is almost a necessity.

The new band is rehearsing twice a week and is making rapid progress. Large numbers of the villagers are often interested listeners near the band room.

NEW LONDON'S DIRECTOR OF LAW, TIRED OF SQUABBLING, RESIGNS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 15—Director of Law Frank L. McGuire today tendered his resignation and in doing so relinquishes the duties of his office without delay, for the resignation became operative with its reception by City Clerk Julian D. Moran.

The resignation was brief and as follows:

New London, Conn., May 15, 1925
To the Honorable City Council:

I hereby tender my resignation as director of law, the same to take effect immediately."

FRANK L. McGUIRE
Director of Law

The reason assigned for Director of Law McGuire's act and an act that is not considered hasty by the attorney's acquaintances is the result of the constant attack upon his work by Councilor Edward L. Streeter, Jr., and the frequent criticizing of the opinions of the city's legal adviser. For several weeks Councilor Streeter has centered an attack upon nearly every opinion that the director of law has rendered. He severely attacked Mr. McGuire at a meeting of the city council in which the councilor accused the director of law in favoring Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, when that officer was tried on charges of being intoxicated while on duty last May, of which charges Streeter was the instigator. The officer was adjudged not guilty of the charges by City Manager Holt and at a subsequent meeting of the council and in the absence of the director of law, Councilor Streeter accused Mr. McGuire of having favored the accused by the methods the attorney used in the interrogating of witnesses.

It is also known that Mayor Waldo E. Clarke and Councilors Streeter and Whiton desired the director of law replaced by the appointment of former director of law, Philip Z. Hankey. It is but about three weeks ago that Councilor Streeter visited the residence of Councilor Albert C. Woodruff following a meeting of the city council and requested that Councilor Woodruff join the forces of Mayor Clarke and Councilors Streeter and Whiton and vote to declare the office of director of law vacant, so that Mr. Hankey could receive the appointment. Councilor Woodruff refused to be a party to the scheme to oust Mr. McGuire from office and there the attempt to secure the appointment to Mr. Hankey as law director ended. With the resignation today of Mr. McGuire the avenue for the appointment of Mr. Hankey is open.

Mr. McGuire, who is considered as one of the most able attorneys in the state, was one of the foremost sponsors of the present city manager form of government. He served as director of law two years, during which time he brought about the adjustment of several actions pending against the city in a manner that indicated his ability for the city was practically returned a winner in each instance.

J. Frank Rollins bought a Templar automobile from Hollis Kerwin and Louis Fletcher of Providence, but he didn't pay for it so he gave a bill of sale, conditionally, to the parties with whom he made the deal. The price of the car was such that Rollins owed $50 on it. Then Rollins sold the car to Morgan Noyes of Groton, the Poquonoc section of the town. He bought it and paid Rollins $200 for it. Running Rollins did not get the money for the Providence men, so they came here and representing that they sought to buy a car, got possession of their machine and produced the bill of sale. Rollins did not deny the claim that he had not paid. He was arrested and gave a bond of $1000 for appearance in the police court today. There the attorneys in the case held a conference, when a settlement was arranged, Rollins agreeing to pay the balance he owed on the car, to settle with Messrs. Kerwin and Fletcher for the expense they were put to in order to recover their car and to pay the costs of court. That made the experience costly for Rollins, but he arranged to settle.

Louis Ramistella was fined $25 for reckless operation of a taxi at the entrance to the highway bridge over the Thames last April. He set up the defense that he was forced upon the side walk there by a jam in traffic, but Judge Prince held that he should have stopped his car instead of running it upon the walk, as he did. Ramistella has been operating a car some five years and this is his first time in court for any other offense under the motor vehicle laws. The state offered the testimony of State Policeman Bernard Kennerson and Sergeant Gorgas to prove the offense alleged and they made out their case. They were coming to New London at the time Ramistella committed his offense and were witnesses of all that occurred. It was Sergeant Gorgas who ordered Ramistella to appear in court.

Robert Malloy, Leo Kelly and Joe Parnella, all under 20 and residing in the Jefferson avenue section where the Mohegan dairy is located, were charged, in the police court today with having taken the truck of the dairy company without permission and for a joy ride. There is conflicting evidence to get at the facts, the case went over for a week. The boys are understood to claim that the son of the proprietor has habitually given them permission to drive the truck and that it was under such an arrangement that the truck was made use of.

Never in the history of the New London police force have officers found as many entrances to stores and office buildings unfastened at night and open to intruders as is the case at present. For the past three nights the entrance to the Mercer building, corner of State and Meridian streets, has been discovered unlocked and resulted in the officer on the beat keeping a close watch of the place because of the inability of the police to locate the janitor of the building.

Frederick Follette, employed on the the barge Liberty, of the Red Ball line and which yesterday concluded discharging a cargo of coal at Allyn's Point, was taken into custody this afternoon by State Police Officers Budnick and Kulowski of Groton barracks, charged with non-support. Follette was brought to the New London police station, where he is being held a prisoner pending the arrival of an officer from Braintree, Mass., where he is being held a prisoner pending the arrival of an officer from Braintree, Mass., where the accused's wife resides. Follette has signified a willingness to return to Braintree without extradition papers.

The authorities were unable today to obtain any clues that might lead to the identity of the seaman, who died suddenly aboard the fishing schooner M. J. Fitzsimmons, Capt. J. M. Monsell, Fourth street, Greenport, N. Y. The stranger's death occurred in port yesterday a few minutes after the craft was moored here in an attempt by Capt. Monsell to obtain medical relief for the man. The seaman shipped on the schooner at Bell Dock, New Haven, for it is known that Monsell obtained the new member of the crew at New Haven. It was also revealed by an examination of the man's shoes this forenoon that the name "W. Ramsay," written in ink on the lining of one of the shoes, is plainly visible. Whether that is the name of the dead man is not known.

The funeral of Martin J. Ganley, former employe of the city's highway department, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were Thomas Elwood, Thomas Kelley, James Kennedy and John Elwood. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Frances A. Beebe, widow of Henry N. Beebe, formerly of Waterford, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Rev. Joseph Elder, pastor of Huntington Street Baptist church, officiated. Relatives of Mrs. Beebe acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

William Durkin of Waterford; Mrs. Wells Hale and infant daughter, 90 Meridian street, Groton, and Master Harry Daghlian, 35 Willetta avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Martha Brown, administratrix of the estate of William Hill, has sold to Charles R. Brown a house and lot on Mahan street.

Herman F. Staab, administrator of the estate of Jesse B. Dutton, today sold a house and lot on West Colt street to Attorney Russell H. Corcoran. The purchaser immediately disposed of the realty to Grogis and Orazio Muratoga.

The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles today caused the operators' licenses of Clifford Smith, 238 Bank street, and Sebastino Muscarella, 110 Shaw street, to be suspended. Smith and Muscarella were recently disciplined for violation of the automobile laws.

One of the crew of the steam yacht Narada was taken into custody this evening charged with breach of the peace and intoxication, the charge being preferred by Captain Lawrence Gross, master of the yacht. The sailor went to where the yacht was moored in Shaw's cove and became involved in an argument with Capt. Gross. To avoid trouble, Capt. Gross requested the police to take charge of the fellow. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Clarence Martin were sent to the yacht and placed the trouble-maker under arrest.

An automobile owned and operated by A. C. McNulty, residing rear 89 Howard street, struck and injured John DiMarco, 7, of 264 Bank street, late this afternoon. The child sustaining a laceration of the scalp, which resulted in several stitches being taken at Lawrence-Memorial hospital to close the wound. The boy, with companions, was engaged in play beside the curb, in the highway near his home and when the machine was about to pass, the DiMarco child ran to the middle of the road and against the rear fender of the machine, being thrown. McNulty placed the boy in the machine and went to the hospital that the child could receive proper treatment for the injury.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane E. Vallett, wife of Jeremiah Vallett, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 263 Crystal avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe. Relatives and intimate acquaintances of Mrs. Vallett acted as bearers. Burial was in Comstock cemetery, Montville.

Mrs. Alice M. Barber, 77, New York, died suddenly of apoplexy this morning while visiting at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Elderkin, on Sherman street. She is survived by a son, Samuel K. Barber, Providence and by a daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Kennedy, of New York.

James Crawford, foreman of the water department of the Groton Municipal Water Light company, was given his notice of dismissal from the company this morning, by Superintendent William R. Jacobus and with announcement of the dismissal of Crawford, six other employes, eight men and two women, one a bookkeeper and the other an assistant bookkeeper engaged in a walkout. The walkout will be of but short duration, it is believed for the women have agreed to return to work, as have several of the men. The reason for the dismissal of Crawford is given as a lack of co-operation by Crawford with Superintendent Jacobus.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

The press accident to the Bulletin this week caused it to be known just how much the paper is thought of and how it is missed when it does not arrive. People were telephoning the news office and post office to inquire if the Bulletin had come and why it was not delivered. The Norwich paper in the morning is as much looked for by many as their breakfast.

Central Village is having a little building boom. At least eight houses are under construction or in contemplation of building, bungalows and small cottages mostly.

Raymond Tyler playing ball at the High school Tuesday had his collar bone broken, when another senior student fell on his shoulder. Dr. Gardner cared for the injury at his office.

The town hall is in much demand for shows and dances this year. It would seem the rental money would almost pay the upkeep without drawing on the town appropriation.

Little Betty Potvin fell with a bottle in her hand Wednesday. The bottle broke and cut her hand severely, so that the doctor was obliged to close the wound with a suture.

Many minor accidents have occurred lately from motor car collisions, mostly at corners on the highway, and almost always from carelessness on the part of the driver.

Mrs. Rob Loring has lately sold three building lots, it is said, to parties who wish to erect cottages.

All hope the Farnsworth mill which closed down Wednesday, will get order so the plant can start again full speed. The mill has been a little slack for some weeks, but the management is expectant of orders soon.

GALES FERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Albertus Dean motored to New Bedford, Mass., recently to visit the latter's mother there. Mrs. Herman Peckham and were also the guests of Mrs. Dean's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Chase, in Portsmouth, R. I.

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright of Sterling, visited Monday and Tuesday at the new house which their son, William K. Wright, is completing on the military highway at Gales Ferry.

Among those who attended the Y. M. C. A. in Norwich and heard The Lotus Quartet and reader, Wednesday evening were Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, Misses Jennie G. Perkins and Gertrude Allen, who motored there in Miss Allen's car.

Andrew P. Miller, who has been spending a few days with his family in the place, returned Tuesday to Boston.

New Master Of The Oil Industry

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Colonel Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, which has recently purchased the E. L. Doheny oil interests in Mexico. The purchase price for the controlling shares of the interests are about $40,000,000. This purchase marks only the beginning of big things to be done by the Indiana concern, headed by Stewart. Originally affiliated with the parent, The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, it is now almost a free agent, and is at the present competing abroad for business, and even making a go of it at home. The success of the Indiana firm is due only to the vigorous work of Colonel Stewart, whose far-seeing eyes in the Mexican oil wells have gained his concern a powerful control.

POLISH PEASANTS SOON TO GET FEDERAL LAND

Poland is still discussing agrarian reform and it is probable that there will be a distribution of land this year. Several hundred thousand acres have been marked for government purchase and resale—purchase at low prices and resale on easy terms. The big estate owners are not opposed to releasing part of their holdings if that would bring content to the small farmers. It seems, however, that covetous peasants are more in evidence than peasants who really desire land. They want the choice bits of estates adjoining their small patches and are not rushing to accept government offers to clear forest land and break new soil. According to the concordat recently arrived at with the Vatican, Poland may buy from the church such land as the church wishes to sell. In the case of sale, the clergy will be allowed to retain a certain number of acres or accept the equivalent in cash. The land so purchased by Poland from the church estates will be placed with the other parcels and be distributed—some day—according to the general agrarian reform.

Dry and Rather Hot

Parkins never was tired of prophesying calamities, and his friends were getting a bit fed up. Parkins had already predicted famine, and one day he remarked dolefully to a friend: "What would you say, my boy, if I were to tell you that in a short space of time the rivers of our country would all dry up?" "H'm. I should say," replied the friend, "go thou and do likewise."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

POETRY

A sea of flaming rose and yellow gold and white,
O Poet, can you color your words with such delight?
The tulips intermingled with purple pansies bright,
O Poet, saw you ever a more entrancing sight?

The Spring is here in glory, the chill of yesternight
Is but a dream, and flowers the soft south winds requite;
My soul is like the springtime, for, after Winter's blight,
It blossoms into color; I view it as I write.

Ye proud and gorgeous tulips, in you all things unite,
The earth, the sun, the waters, each gave to you their mite;
The rainbow kissed your petals, the moon, pale satellite,
Has lost some golden radiance, you stole it as your right.

Enjoy your day, O Tulips, for Time too soon will smite
With unkind sword your beauty; I know full well your plight.
For I like you, am wanton, as ancient Sybarite;
In luxury I revel but sense Time with affright.

A sea of flaming rose and yellow gold and white,
O Poet, can you color your words with such delight?
The tulips intermingled with purple pansies bright,
O Poet, saw you ever a more entrancing sight?

—Charles L. H. Wagner in Boston Transcript.

The Silence of Unlaboured Fields

The silence of unlaboured fields
Lies like a judgment on the air;
A human voice is never heard;
The sighing grass is everywhere—
The sighing grass, the shadowed sky,
The cattle crying wearily!
Where are the lowland people gone?
Where are the sun-dark faces now?
The love that kept the quiet hearth,
The strength that held the speeding plough?
Grassland and lowing herds are good,
But better human flesh and blood.
—Seasamh MacCathmhaoil in McClure's

Aggressor—"God bless you, sir—exactly the word I want to complete my cross word puzzle!"—Passing Show London.

"Do you think early rising is good for your health?" asked the languid city visitor.

"I don't know about my health," replied Ezra Cobbles, "but, next to sun rain and fertilizer, it's the best thing there is for crops."—Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

A locomotive has been built in Italy, that uses compressed air for power, so it can run safely over flooded tracks.

Yale university professors are perfecting an inhalator which is expected to reduce the death rate from carbon monoxide, electric shock and drowning.

Airplanes flying high above the city will soon take 1,000 photographs for the purpose of making a big air map of greater London. The pictures will be fitted together to form a vast mosaic, giving a birdseye view of an area of 100 square miles.

Gloucester, Mass., is still supreme in the fishing industry. During 1924, the "Gloucester fleet" caught approximately 150,000,000 pounds, cod predominating. It is estimated a freight train of 5,000 cars, stretching forty miles, would be required to haul the Gloucester's yearly haul.

Emmigration to America is emptying many an Alpine village and district in the canton of Tienio, Switzerland. In some places only the young and the aged are left, all the work people having gone to the United States, especially California. Out of sixty-six young men called to the colors to perform their military service in this canton, only five could be found; all the others had emigrated.

Melilla, Morocco, which has been in the hands of the Spaniards more than 400 years, is about to be provided for the first time in its history with a public water supply. Gangs of workers are now engaged in laying cement pipes to bring the water from Yasinen, and it is hoped that within a short time the municipal authorities will be able to furnish the inhabitants with sufficient water for drinking and hygienic purposes.

Customs and health officials in the Philippines are puzzled over what disposition should be made of the coffins containing the bodies of two German subjects who died at Manila at the time of the world war. The bodies, as well as other German property confiscated during the war, have been in the customs warehouse for nearly nine years, but can not be moved in view of a court decision several years ago to the effect that no German property can be sold or in any manner disposed of by the insular government.

GREENEVILLE

A delightful entertainment was given in St. Andrew's Guild room recently by Te Colonials, a constellation of local stars consisting of Mrs. Mable C. Buckingham, soprano, Miss Hazel L. Banfield, contralto, Miss Mary Gray, accompanist, and William J. Banfield, magician. By the use of a golden curtain a simple but artistic background was produced which blended harmoniously with the costumes of the young ladies of the cast. For the first part of the programme the stately costumes of colonial days graced the scene. These were later changed for the garb of ancient China and Japan for the Kate Greenaway costumes. Both singers and accompanist were all that could be desired from a musical point of view. As for the magician little need be said. Mr. Banfield is known throughout eastern Connecticut as the great patron of Black Art, the black artist if you like, and his work was of its usual excellent quality.

The programme follows::

Duet, A Moment That I Bless, Demei, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield; contralto solo, To a Miniature, Pierson, Miss Banfield; Gavotte, Dancere, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield; piano solo, Laces and Graces, Salner Brutton, Miss Gray; soprano solo, An His Garden, Teachenocher, Miss Banfield; duet, Pretty Little Chinee, Chinese Dance, Miss Buckingham and Miss Banfield. Feats of Magic, Mr. Banfield, Dr. Bills or the Sick Dolly, solo and pantomine, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield; group of soprano solos by Mrs. Buckingham, Grandma, Sachs, The Crow's Egg, Barnes Wells; The Lightning Bug, Barnes Wells, The Singing School, recitation, Church, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield.

A Little More Rain

The raintall of early Friday morning gave .09 of an inch, making 1.57 inches so far this month.

If you start on a journey and forget to take an umbrella with you it's a sure sign of rain.

COMMANDANT AND MRS. E. W. WILBUR

COMMANDANT WILBUR RETIRING FROM ACTIVE SALVATION ARMY SERVICE

After 35 years of service in the ranks of the Salvation Army, Commandant Elezar W. Wilbur will retire from active service and will devote his time to special voluntary field work. The retirement of the commandant will take place after the consummation of a drive for a Home Service fund for $5,000 needed by the Salvation Army to carry on its work in Norwich during 1925. The drive is expected to take place the last week in this month.

To that end Commandant Wilbur has enlisted the help of many of the public spirited citizens who are always ready to answer to the call of a good cause and to do a good turn for the welfare of Norwich.

The commandant is in the hope that the 35 years of his service in the Salvation Army will enable him to make his usefulness of greater value to the service as a special field worker instead of continuing in a fixed post. Of course his heart and interest will always be in Norwich where he has spent seven years and where he has made a host of friends, endearing himself to many of our citizens.

The story of Commandant Wilbur's life is as interesting as it is inspiring. At the age of 16 he found himself in the pugilistic ring with a determination to fight his way to a career in the manly art. However, one day walking on the streets of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., he was disposed to have a little fun at the expense of a group of Salvation Army workers, engaged in an open air service. But before the service terminated the beat of the drum and tambourene and the earnest words of the captain found lodgment in his heart and from that moment his fighting career continued, but in another manner. It was a spiritual fight. It was a fight to help many unfortunates and misguided human derelicts to learn again to walk the straight path of life.

In speaking of his work Commandant Wilbur paid a great tribute to Mrs. Wilbur, saying: "Mrs. Wilbur has been a true and consistent friend and companion during these long years of service. Many times when the battle of righteousness seemed to be overwhelming and the forces for evil were so trying that they could break the nerve and perseverance of a stronger man, then it was Mrs. Wilbur's kindness, patient devotion and self-sacrifice that was an inspiration making us continue in face of adversity. Thank God for giving me such a true companion and helpmate in this great work of salvation."

Many people are unaware of the demands made on the Salvation Army in this city. Many times the commandant had to go for weeks without his personal salary in order to take care of some of the unfortunates whose needy cases were very desperate.

If the public were to know the needs of some unfortunates, right amidst us, who are ashamed to humble themselves in asking for charity, there is no doubt the $5000 quota for 1925 would be over subscribed in one day.

The Salvation Army is always in contact with the unfortunate poor residing in this city and last year the Army's finances were strained to the utmost in helping needy families and individual who came to the city on the report that there was plenty of employment in Norwich factories. The commandant helped many of these newcomers in securing employment and in a great number of cases they were compelled to tide these families over a critical period of unemployment or until they could go to some other city. In a good many instances the Army paid transportation charges for the stranded unfortunates.

The commandant has very high regard for the people of Norwich and is very grateful for their noble charitable response which they have made and are making every day in helping the Salvation Army in carrying out its charitable work.

Referring to the character of the citizenry Commandant Wilbur said: "During the 35 years of my continuous service in the Salvation Army in various parts of the country I have never found a people with a better heart and more humane intentions than the people of Norwich."

MAN AND WOMAN HELD FOR HIGH COURT

Probable cause being found by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Friday morning, Owen Wood, 49, Uxbridge, Mass., was bound over to the criminal superior court on a charge of adultery with Mrs. Doris Marsille, 47, also of Uxbridge, and harboring a female for immoral purposes. Mrs. Marsille was also bound over to the superior court on the charge of being an immoral woman and to adultery. Bonds were set at $1,000 in each case. Neither of the accused could furnish the bond.

The man and woman were arrested at 213 Forest street late Thursday night by the local police after they had secured evidence of wrong doing at the house. It is understood that Wood and Mrs. Marsille have been in this city since last June and that she has a husband in Uxbridge, and has been to Detroit and other places in the west with Wood before coming to this city.

DENIES DIVORCE THAT SCHOOL TEACHER SOUGHT

Judge Isaac Wolfe who heard the divorce suit of Mrs. Lucy A. Neff, a New London school teacher, against her husband Raymond A. Neff in the superior court in this city Thursday has denied the divorce and dismissed the petition. Divorce was sought on the ground of desertion and the evidence showed that the husband is now in the veterans hospital at West Roxbury, Mass.

Judge Wolfe gives the following memorandum of decision.

"The evidence discloses that there was no wilful desertion of the plaintiff by the defendant but that his separation from her was involuntary upon his part. The issues are found for the defendant and the petition is dismissed."

NEXT WEEK TO BE NORWICH CLEAN-UP WEEK

Next week has been designated as Clean-up Week in Norwich. Street Commissioner John C. Donovan has instructed the employes of the street department to cooperate with the fire department in the cleaning up of the city. The street department will cart away for the convenience of the public any rubbish that they may wish to have removed to the dump. This is a semi-annual event and takes place in May and November of each year. This is an excellent opportunity to get rid of rubbish that may have accumulated in attics and cellars.

SUMMER BIRDS ARRIVE IN SPITE OF COLD DAYS

The summer songbirds are here on time in spite of the cold days: rose-breasted grosbeak, tanager, bobolink, Baltimore oriole and wood thrush. Everyone with an ear for bird notes has heard before this the catbird, wren, oven bird, song and field sparrows, yellow throated and red-eyed vireo. Of the warbler family nesting in this vicinity, the arrivals are: black and white, yellow, prairie, blue wing, red start, chestnut sided, Maryland yellow throat. The Nashville and plain warbler and the solitary or blue-headed vireo were noted this week, on their way to nesting sites farther north.

MAY BASKET SURPRISE FOR MISS MARION FOWLER

A number of employes of the Woolworth Company store tendered Miss Marion Fowler a May basket surprise party Friday evening at her home at 433 Main street. Miss Fowler is employed as cashier at the store. During the evening piano selections were given by Miss Agnes Gormandi and instrumental selections were heard. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Grace Fowler assisted by the Misses Charlotte Fowler and Agnes Ladd. The pleasant affair was arranged by the Misses Rose Tassell and Agnes Ladd.

May Basket From Mercier Council

As Father Keefe entered his study with the reception committee a pleasant surprise awaited him in the form of a handsome May basket filled with yellow and white roses, the council's colors, with green foliage, and the basket was carded "Welcome Home Our Chaplain, Mercier Assembly No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus." The basket stood three feet high with green and gold material.

Father Keefe has taken a deep interest in the society's welfare and prized their remembrance most highly. He retired for the evening shortly after 11 o'clock a happy priest at his safe arrival home and being with his parishioners once again.

He will celebrate one of the Sunday masses and no doubt will address his congregations at each service for the day. His legion of friends in both the city and town will gladly take the opportunity to welcome him home.

Tests at the United States bureau of standards show that pebbles placed on a street car rail more than double the strain on the rail when cars run over it.

SHOWER FOR MEMBER OF GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was held Thursday evening in the parish house, the branch president, Mrs. Ellis Bentley presiding. Following the business period a social hour was enjoyed, when, in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Olive Bishop, the society gave her a miscellaneous shower.

Miss Bishop was requested to leave the room and when called to return, was presented a clothes-basket prettily decorated as a May basket, with blue and gold crepe paper, the society's colors. It was filled with a variety of gifts including several pyrex pieces, linen, china, aluminum ware and cut glass. This is the second shower that has been tendered Miss Bishop, who is to become the bride of Wallace Bennett. There were nineteen present.

During the evening, salad rolls, cake and cocoa were served, under the direction of the committee; Miss Dorothy Harvey, chairman, Miss Marjorie Harvey, Miss Phylis Irvine, Miss Lois Manning and Miss Lila Smith.

An interesting feature was the prize loaf of cake from which, when passed around, each member cut a piece, some receiving a favor. The cake was made by Mrs. Bentley.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION ON "BUDDY" POPPIES

Whereas, the President of the United States has placed his endorsement and approval upon the annual sale of poppies made by disabled men throughout the country under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and

Whereas, the Veterans of Foreign Wars will cause to be sold on May 23 to 30 "Buddy" Poppies, to be worn to perpetuate the fine sentiments which have made the poppy so peculiarly symbolical of the services and sacrifices of the men who gave so much that freedom might survive in the world, and

Whereas, the proceeds from this sale are to be used to alleviate the conditions of other war disabled, now therefore, I Milo R. Waters, mayor of the city of Norwich, Conn., earnestly urge that the citizens of this city give their sincere co-operation to this cause which has for its purpose the commemoration of the sacrifices of those who gave their lives and health in the defense of their country.

(Signed) Milo R. Waters, Mayor.

Dated, May 1, 1925.

CALF GOT MIXED UP WITH STEERING APPARATUS

While driving along Upper Washington street, Friday afternoon, shortly before 3 o'clock, going toward home, Albert Lillibridge of Scotland road, had a peculiar experience which resulted in serious damage to the automobile he was driving. In the car with Mr. Lillibridge was a calf which, although properly protected in a bag, in some way got mixed up with the steering apparatus, so that the car crashed into a pole at the side of the road, overturning, and throwing Mr. Lillibridge and the calf to the ground. They were not injured.

The machine was so badly damaged that it was towed to a garage for repairs.

Friends came to Mr. Lillibridge's assistance and he and the calf were carried to their destination. The accident held up the 2:30 trolley car, which was headed toward Yantic, in charge of Conductor Charles Ladd.

PULLED 2 1-4 lb. TROUT FROM BALTIC STREAM

Last week G. A. Cote and Fred Gillespie fished the streams adjoining the Cote bungalow on the Baltic and Norwich road and caught the allowed number of trouts. Mr. Cote landed a prize fish which measured 15 inches, and weighed 2 1-4 pounds, certified weight. This trout was on exhibition in a Baltic store and is the largest that has been caught in this vicinity in a number of years.

SPEAKERS FOR BAPTIST MISSIONARY MEETING

An address by Miss Pauline Senn of China and an address by Mrs. J. H. Morsebead upon Our Golden Opportunity will be two features of the annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist mission society of the New London association, which will be held next Tuesday at the Montauk avenue Baptist church in New London. They will both speak at the afternoon session of the meeting.

Some men are like phonographs—they talk a great deal but never say anything original.

FATHER KEEFE HOME FROM 10,000 MI. EUROPEAN TRIP

When Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church, alighted from the New York train at New London Friday evening at 8.15 and was greeted there first by his curate, Rev. F. M. Coholan and then by the reception committee he was in a happy frame of mind at the thoughts of nearing his parish church and home after a three month's trip abroad which covered a distance of 10,000 miles without a single mishap to mar the journey. His traveling companion was Rev. Francis A. Jordan, pastor of St. Francis Church Middletown who had left the train at New Haven. The steamship "America," on which both priests returned docked at Hoboken, N. J., about noon and Father Keefe wired the rectory that he would reach New London on the 8.15 train. Father Keefe looked the picture of health as he left the train to enter his automobile after a greeting from the committee in waiting. The rectory on Central avenue was reached shortly after 9 o'clock and here Father Keefe entertained the committee and spoke for over an hour on the scenes and incidents of the trip. This being the Holy Year at Rome, countless thousands are journeying there weekly to visit the Vatican and receive the blessings from His Holiness Pius XI. An idea of the magnitude of the crowds may be gained from the fact that 75,000 pilgrims were in attendance at mass in St. Peter's on Easter Sunday morning, at which Father Keefe was present. He spent three weeks in Rome, the week previous to Easter and two weeks following the first week of which he and Father Jordan were received in private audience by His Holiness.

Father Keefe also had the pleasure of seeing the Pope at a church ceremony as he was borne into the edifice by the papal attendants, bestowing his blessings on all present. People from all parts of the world are assembling in Rome to procure the special blessings of the Holy Year, headed by their church dignitaries and their dress and costume gives the occasion a festive appearance. Father Keefe had the pleasure of an interview with Cardinal Gaspari, papal secretary of state at the Vatican. One of the privileges most appreciated on the trip was the offering of the holy sacrifice of the mass on Mount Calvary for the living and dead members of St. Mary's parish. Strange to say while in Rome he met Traver Briscoe, a former Norwich boy, who made his stay most pleasant, also Dr. John G. Coyle of New York, who lectured here at the K. of C. anniversary held in this city at the Wauregan last February. Dr. Coyle was leading a New York city delegation of pilgrims into the Holy City. Father Keefe also made a call on Edward L. Hearn, K. of C. director in Rome who is doing remarkable work for that organization as well as arranging for the pilgrims.

Both priests encountered a few rough days going over on the water, but returning the sea was calm every day. While in Rome, Fr. Keefe met pilgrims from California that claimed Norwich for their birthplace. Sergeant McIntyre a Norwich boy, on duty at the New York docks rendered Father Keefe and his companion due attention while the inspector in charge of the baggage gave him all due courtesy. While his trip abroad gave Father Keefe a much needed rest, along with carrying the Pope's blessing to his people he remains loud in his praise of America and the many blessings and advantages which American's enjoy.

The following comprised the reception committee who went by automobile to meet Father Keefe at New London.

Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, Trustee John T. Sullivan, James E. Murphy, Dr. Edward J. Brophy, Ex-Mayor Timothy C. Murphy, Francis T. Diggins, John M. Lee, Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, Henry J. LaFontaine, Walter L. LaFontaine, Nicholas J. Spellman, Horace F. Corning, Patrick J. McMahon, Mrs. Edward J. Brophy, Miss Helen Brophy, Mrs. James McGrory and Joseph A. Donnelly, Francis J. Murtha, the other church trustee was ill and could not attend. Rev. Richard P. Morrison of Plainfield, was at the rectory when Father Keefe and the reception committee arrived.

FINGER PRINT EVIDENCE FAILS IN CITY COURT

For lack of evidence the cases against LeRoy Jackson, 24, of this city, formerly of Texas, and Thomas DeVoe, 24, of this city, were nolled in the city court Friday morning by Judge Henry H. Pettis. The accused had been charged with theft in connection with the burglary of the home of Mrs. John D. Nolan, Jr., off Merchants avenue, Taftville, a wek ago. They were arrested immediately following the report of the burglary to the local and state police and were held in bonds of $500 each which they were unable to raise.

The men were locked up pending the decision of an expert on finger prints found on a pane of glass at the Nolan home. The finger prints could not be read. State police had been working on the case.

JOBER MIDGETS WILL APPEAR IN THIS CITY

BLOCKADE OF RUM RUNNERS AT SEA IS A GIGANTIC TASK

Coast Guard With $30,000,000 Equipment Must Cope With A Billion Dollar Rum-Running Combine—Commander Yeandle Reports That There Are 385 Foreign Boats Engaged in Rum-Running on the Atlantic Coast—A Virtual State of War Exists on the Seas Off New Yorks, New Jersey, Rhode Island and a Portion of Massachusetts..

New York, May 17—(A. P.)—A billion-dollar rum running combine is being combatted by the United States coast guard with $30,000,000 equipment, government officials announced at the completion of a four-day official and newspaper inspection cruise of the mid-Atlantic smuggling area.

There are 385 foreign rum boats of all descriptions, according to Lieutenant-Commander Stephen S. Yeandle, aide to the coast guard commandant, Rear Admiral Billard. These craft have been pouring contraband liquor into the United States with the assistance of a large and far-reaching shore organization with intricate ramifications.

Against this array, the Coast Guard's entire force consists of sixteen cutters, whose primary duty is the safe-guarding of ships and lives at sea; an authorized fleet of twenty converted destroyers, not yet completed; 203 patrol boats each 75 feet long, and 103 twenty-six-foot picket boats.

It is under these conditions, Commander Yeandle said, that the coast guard has entered its first great drive. The mid-Atlantic rum blockade, which in less than two weeks has sent more than seventy smuggling craft scuttling to sea and has so tightly ringed the remaining smugglers with small, heavily-armed boats as to put a virtually complete stop to the once copious flow of liquor that has flowed through Long Island, New Jersey, New York and New England seacoast channels.

It is to be a war of patient attention on the part of the government forces, Commander Yeandle said. His officers Commander W. H. Hunter, who, from his post on the destroyer Downs, was command of the destroyer fleet, and Captain W. J. Wheeler, in charge of all the rum chasers in the New York-New Jersey area,—agree with him.

The plan itself is simple enough. It calls for the continued picketing of every rum boat that comes within striking distance of shore and the continued patrolling of all waterways leading from the sea to the shore bootlegger bases. After the foreign liquor carriers have been held off-shore weeks, or months, as the case may be, the coast guardsmen believe that the shore liquor organization will rust with disuse.

Commander Yeandle pointed out that the largest of these shore rum running organizations were at New York and in New England. Others exist in Florida cities, to handle the contraband smuggled by way of the countless sand spits, bays and islands between Florida and Cuba and the Bahamas; on the Gulf of Mexico, to attend to the shore off the mouth of the Mississippi river; end of the business for the rum fleet in Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina; San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco in California and on Puget Sound.

The principal centers he said, are New York, New Jersey and New England, and these organizations now are virtually idle because of the great success of the existing blokade.

A virtual state of war exists on the seas off New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and a portion of Massachusetts. All movements against the beleaguered "rummies" are transmitted in code by wireless from coast guard headquarters in Washington. The coast guardsmen are getting little shore liberty. Crews and members of crews are being shifted constantly to offset attempts of the "enemy" to frustrate the blockade by bribery, intimidation and sabotage. Captain Wheeler, on the cutter Mojave, and Commander Mouteer aboard the destroyer Downs, have elaborate maps and charts on which pins denote the lines of friend and enemy forces.

Commander Yeandle said the coast guard, for the purposes of the rum war, had been welded into a mobile organization. Twenty movable bases have been established at various places along the 4,000 miles of sea coast which the guardsmen are responsible for, including bases of Atlantic City, N. J.; State Island, Greenport, Long Island; New London, Conn.; Boston, Gloucester, Woods Hole, Mass.; Cape May, N. J.; Miami, Fla.; Norfolk, Va.; Block Island, Lewes, Del.; Port Townsend, Port Angeles and Anacostes, Wash.; and Goat Island, in San Francisco Bay.

"Our only hope," Commander Yeandle said, "is to break up the shore organizations, and I think we can and will do it. It will take a long time, and we're in the fight to stay."

The commander said the billion-dollar estimate as to the rum organization's worth had been arrived at after comprehensive and careful consideration of all available details. It was a conservative estimate, he said, and admitted reliable by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the anti-saloon league. Some government officials at Washington, he said, had doubled this figure as more truly representing the value of the vast shore-and-sea organization that represents the rum-running "industry" in the United States.

FAILED IN SEARCH FOR RUM SCHOONER IN EAST RIVER

New York, May 17.—(A. P.)—New York city police boats joined coast guard craft for five hours this afternoon in an unsuccessful search of the East and Hudson rivers for a schooner reported to have run the buockade at Rum Row and to be on its way to an East river pier.

Edward Barnes, assistant solicitor of the legal division of the New York police department, said the report concerned a schooner recently sold at public auction, after being captured two months ago with 2,000 cases of liquor on board. This vessel will be boarded and searched on sight, he said.

Seven police speed boats, the coast guard cutter Hudson and several other patrol boats and pleasure craft took part in the search. Every pier on both river was visited.

Information concerning the schooner was volunteered, it was said, by a tipster seeking the 25 per cent. bounty offered to informants whose revelations lyed to a seizure.

DISSENT AMONG FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSIONERS

Washington, May 17.—(A. P.)—Differences between federal trade commissioners over recent changes in the commission's rules of procedure were brought into the open tonight with the publication of the dissenting opinion of Commissioners Nugent and Thompson and an answer to their dissent by Commissioner Humphrey, a member of the majority in the dispute.

The rules revisions which caused the dispute, sharply restrict the publicity given the commision's proceedings, and provide that a respondent, by agreeing to discontinue a trade practice complained of by the commission, may escape formal proceedings by that body, with the attending publicity. When complaints are issued, they are made public only after the respondent's answer to the charges has been filed. The commission's previous practice of issuing a press statement with each complaint was discontinued.

Asserting that the new rules are grossly unfair, Commissioner Nugent, author of the dissenting opinion, declared manufacturers and merchants who conduct their business on a basis of fair dealing are entitled to the protection which the law gives them as against unscrupulous competitors.

BREAKS MADE BY SAFE CRACKERS IN WATERBURY

Waterbury, May 17.—Safe crackers were active in this city last night, entering four stores, all of them within a stone's throw of the police station and carrying out their work with daring thoroughness. A safe in the Post & Lester company's store on Grand street, within the shadow of the city hall, yielded the burglars between $150 and $200. On Meadow street, a trio of stores were made objects of attention by safe-crackers. At the Exide Battery company, 462 Meadow street, an entrance was effected and a drill taken and carried to the W. T. Connor company next door. There the cracksmen get to work on a safe, but evidently were frightened away before finishing their job.

To swell the city's total of a night's law breaking, a loss of $150 was reported stolen from the Fulton market at 369 Grand View avenue. This was not a safe cracking job, but the money was taken from a hiding place evidently well known to the burglar who entered through a rear window.

The job at the Post and Lester company is one of the most daring in the history of local robberies, police say. Entrance was gained to the store through the transom of the front door, probably at a late hour when Grand street was deserted save for an occasional police officer going to or from headquarters or some early hour toiler on his way to work.

Once inside, the crackmen carried an electric drill in the front of the store to a rear room and dragged the store safe there and set to work. They drilled around the combination extracted the money inside and made their getaway. The "break" was discovered by George E. Towle, of 31 Windsore street, manager of the store, when he paid a Sunday visit to the premises. The police were notified and Lieutenants Timothy Hickey and Milton MacMullen and Sergeant Henry Johnson of the detective bureau set to work on the case. Finger prints were taken and furnished what is the only clue to the burglars' identity, save for the fact that they were undoubtedly professional workers.

MISS MACRI MAY TAKE STAND ON WEDNESDAY

New Haven, May 17.—(A. P.)—The present week, it is believed by counsel, will see the final chapter written on the trial of Olympia Macri, charged with the murder here in February of John Bagnano, alleged father of her child.

Miss Macri, according to an announcement made by her counsel, Joseph Koletsky, will take the stand in her own defense Wednesday. Examination of preliminary witnesses will be completed Tuesday, according to the defense attorney and Miss Macri will be the last witness presented by the defense.

Her direct examination, it is expected, will take all of Wednesday and State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling is expected to start his cross examination Thursday. It is expected that the fate girl-defendant will be placed in the hands of the jury late Thursday or Friday morning. The trial already has occupied four weeks.

Miss Macri passed a quiet day at the county jail today in preparation for the ordeal she faces when court reopens this week.

TREASURY PREPARING FOR JUNE FINANCING

Washington, May 17—First steps toward the programme of financing that must be carried out in June have been taken by the treasury, which announced today that the federal reserve banks had been authorized to redeem immediately the series of certificates of indebtedness which mature June 15. The securities aggregate $406,031,000.

No other information was made available at the treasury relative to the June financial operation, but the fact that the reserve banks have been authorized to redeem the maturing paper almost a month in advance of its due date was taken to mean that the programme is progressing most satisfactorily. With sufficient funds available for retirement of the maturing notes, it was suggested that the June issue of certificates probably would be small.

Interest in Notice To Foreign Debtors

Official Washington Awaits Proposals For Dept Refunding.

Washington, May 17—(A. P.)—With the diplomatic ice broken, official Washington apparently had settled down to await the results of the American government's notice to its European debtors that the time has come for arrangement of funding settlements.

The action of this government, disclosed yesterday, in advising nine debtor powers that it desired funding proposals from them, was expected generally to develop into more than a question of settlements between the United States and the nations to which it made war and post-war loans. Belief prevailed that, with the American government making a positive stand after three years of waiting, there would be a stir among all of the inter-allied debtors and creditors looking to a general disentanglement of debts.

Immediate proposals from all of its debtors are not expected by the American government, its views as expressed in responsible quarters, being that some of them will respond instead, with proffers on which preliminary conversations can be initiated. Confidence is felt, however, that an important start will be made when any one of the allied powers submits a proposition for conversion of the demand notes held by this government into bonds with fixed rates and dates of payments.

Officials were as reticent today as yesterday concerning the means by which France, Italy, Belgium, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Latvia, Greece, Esthonia and Jugo Slavia had been informed of the change in policy on debts. Private conversations of officials here, however, gave rise to the belief that direct word had gone to some of them. In the case of others, it was indicated, officials who have visited Europe in the last few months have pointed out the benefits accruing to England, Finland, Poland, Lithuania and Hungary from the funding arrangements they have made with the United States.

These officials have argued, specially with reference to England, that the economic progress they have made recently could not have been accomplished with such celerity if the troublesome question of their debts to the United States had not been definitely solved.

Chief among nations to which these views and arguments have gone is France. Under-secretary Winston of the treasury, while in Paris only a few weeks ago, is understood to have stated these views with emphasis and to have told high French officials that much good in the way of strengthened credit would react to France if a commission should come to the United States for funding negotiations. Ambassador Herrick also has laid suggestion along the same line before M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, and the other members of the cabinet.

Congressional leaders have had a part both in imparting American public and official opinion to the foreign powers and in question on the administration here for action. Many of them have visited Europe, and practically all are said to have talked informally with European statesmen on the question of debts. Official disclosure of the government's determination not to tolerate indefinite delay, herefore, is regarded as likely to have caused no surprise to most of the debtor governments.

$25,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN JEWETT CITY GARAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Jewett City, May 17.—Fire was discovered in the Mathewson street garage operated by Anderson & Dilworth a few minutes before midnight. The blaze was first seen by Mr. LaBarre and Hap Blake, who turned in the alarm. The building which is owned by the Eichelberg estate, was a roaring furnace when Chief Wakeley and his men arrived. Plenty of water from two streams and prompt work by the firefighters confined the blaze to the building where it started. A Packard touring car, three Chevrolets, two coupes and a truck were destroyed. The building was entirely gutted and the roof was partly burned off. Young Eichelberg had just put his car in the building, locked the door and had not been out ten minutes.

Chief Wakeley is at a loss to determine the origin of the fire. The loss on the building and cars is estimated at $25,000. As far as can be learned it is covered by insurance.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY RESULTS FROM BOOTLEGGERS' FEUD

Knives Were Found on the Bodies of Two Brothers Shot to Death at Stamford—The Assailant Was Found Dying From Stab Wounds About 100 Feet From the Bodies of The Slain Brothers—Stamford Police Are Looking For a Fourth Man.

Stamford, May 17—Frank and Guiseppe Vartuli, brothers, were shot to death here today and Paul Di Angelo was found in a dying condition from several stab wounds about 100 feet from the bodies of the Vartuli brothers. A revolver was found beside Di Angelo who had evidently collapsed from loss of blood while trying to reach his automobile parked nearby. Knives were found on the bodies of each of the Vartuli brothers.

Di Angelo died before reaching a hospital. The authorities believe the triple tragedy may have been the culmination of a bootleggers' feud. The police are looking for a fourth man, whose name is not disclosed.

One theory the police are working under is that Di Angelo shot the two Vartuli brothers during a desperate battle in which the Vartuli men both used knives on Di Angelo.

The tragedy occurred on Spruce street, this place on the Boston Post road, the bodies being discovered by Alphonse Moavero, a milk dealer.

Frank Vartuli came to Stamford recently from Bayonne, N. J., while his brother Guiseppe joined him from Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The police tonight centered their efforts to locate a fourth participant in the battle by a canvass of all hospitals within a radius of thirty miles. A trail of blood leading from the spot where the Vartuli brothers' bodies were found was traced for a distance of about four city blocks, where it ended abruptly at a fence. It is believed by the police that the man, badly wounded, was packed up by friends and carried away, but that he will eventually seek treatment at some hospital. Relatives of the slain man were unable to throw any light on the identity or whereabouts of the man whom police believe to have been involved in the battle, and escaped as the only survivor.

The police tonight were working on theories only as nothing had been unearthed to show what caused the encounter that resulted in three deaths or any details of the fight itself.

IMPRESSIVE RELIGIOUS CEREMONY AT ST. PETER'S

Rome, May 17—All the great wealth of religious solemnity and aesthetic splendor at the command of the Roman Catholic church was displayed this morning at St. Peter's on the occasion of the celebration by Pope Pius in the presence of more than sixty thousand people of the ceremony of sanctification of Blessed Sister Therese of the infant Jesus, Carmelite nun of Lisieux, France. Sister Therese was beatified in 1923.

The fact that the sanctification was the first of 1925; holy year, and that the new saint was a child of the present generation, having died in 1897 at the age of twenty-four years, heightened the religious fervor of the multitude filling every corner of the huge edifice, the decoration of which in beauty has seldom been surpassed in the annals of the church. The entire edifice was hung with rich red brocades and satin damasks, hundreds of delecate glass candelbaras, comprising approximately 25,000 electric lights, being suspended from the lofty ceilings. Several large pictures portraying incidents in the life of Saint Therese adorned the walls, surrounded by mony rows of lights; the altar was completely transformed and specially decorated.

All the hangings, ornaments and lighting effects were arranged to preserve the original lines of the imuressive basilica, which, moreover, is filled with a profusion of natural and artifical roses, recalling the promise by the saint a few days before her death—"After my death I will send down from heaven a rain of flowers."

An idea of the international character of the assembly is given by Vatican statistics, which showed that the sanctification was attended by approximately 30,000 French men and lish, while smaller delegations represented 12,000 Americans, 10,000 Encwomen, practically every country in the world where Catholics are resident.

STATEMENT BY CHAIRMAN OF THE SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, May 17—Belief that Henry Ford will offer to buy government vessels for scrapping "and for operation in numbers not yet determined by him," was expressed in a statement tonight by Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board.

Referring to newspaper accounts of Mr. Ford's readiness to buy several hundred ships for scrapping and possibly twenty or thirty for operation on trade routes, M. O'Connor said he was led to believe this from recent talks with Mr. Ford, and from his public statements made after such talks."

The chairman is expected to report tomorrow to his associates on the board concerning the Ford proposition. None of them was appraised in advance of the chairman's intention of going to Detroit and talking ship sales with the manufacturer, and their information on the question has been limited to press dispatches.

PROTEST "DEFENSE DAY" AS AN ANNUAL EVENT

New York, May 17—Urging that Armistice day, November 11, "be dedicated to peace and the outlawry of war and not to ringing the fire bells of national defense," Dr. William P. Merrill, chairman of the world alliance for international friendship through the churches, today made public a letter in which he wrote to President Coolidge commending him for his disapproval of the general staff's plans to make the observance of "Defense day" an annual event.

"It has been with no little concern," wrote Mr. Merrill on behalf of his organizatin, "that we have taken note of the proposition of the general staff to turn this into a duty of general military demonstration. Certainly it seems incongruous to turn a day that was the signal of rejoicing around the world, on the return of peace, into an occasion for an exhibition of military force.

"We question seriously the propriety of observing any one day as one of defense. The mind of the world is yet too sensitive to make it safe even to 'ring the fire bells,' and there seems little, if any, necessity for doing it."

VETERANS 21ST C. V. DISPOSE OF LIEUT. A. H. DUTTON'S SWORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, May 17—Fourteen veterans were present and thirteen others responded by letter, for the fifty-sixth reunion of the 21st C. V. Veterans' Association held in G. A. R. Hall, Willimantic, May 16. The reunion is held yearly in commemoration of the anniversary of the Battle of Drury's Bluff, in which the regiment played a distinguished part. The business was opened by the president, Charles W. Burpee, of Hartford.

A welcome on behalf of the city was extended by Mayor George W. Hickey. The minutes of the fifty-fifth re-union were read by the secretary, Charles W. Roberts, of Hartford, and were accepted. Treasurer Robert H. Fenton reported a balance of $8.82. The committee on nominations, to act also as a committee on resolutions, comprising Philo F. Talcott, Fred A. Rich and Hiram S. Johnson, moved that the present staff continue in office: president, Charles W. Burpee, Hartford; vice-president, William H. Brewer, Hockanum; secretary, Charles W. Roberts, Hartford; treasurer, Robert H. Fenton, Willimantic. The name of Leon Soper of Hartford, son of Sergeant Soper was added to the list of honorary members. As the 16th of May falls on Sunday next year, it was voted that the meeting be held Saturday May 15, in Willimantic.

The matter of the disposition of an old sword, formerly the property of Col. Arthur H. Dutton, of the 21st Regiment, was brought before the meeting by George F. Meech, of Middletown. Most of the veterans remembered vividly he death of Col. Dutton, as nearly all of those present had been about him when he received the wound which resulted in his death. After that, his sword was not to be found, altho his son, now dead, made a search for it. At the national cabinet at Boston las Augus, Newell Thompson called at the Connecticut headquarters, saying that among the effects of a friend whose estate he was settling, was a sword bearing the inscription "Col. A. H. Dutton, from the officers of the 121st Connecticut Volunteers." Mr. Thompson said that the last owner, Captain Charles Brooke Appleton had come into possession of it as collateral for a loan. After investigation, it was sent to Mr. Meech at Middletown by whom it was transferred to the G. A. R. for safe keeping. After some discussion, and the reading of a number of letters from interested societies and connections of Col. Dutton, who had been since located and were interested in the disposal of the sword, it was voted that a committee of three, Comrades Meech, (chairman,) Johnson and Nettek, take care of its presentation to the Middletown Historical Society, on behalf of Joseph K. F. Mansfield Post, No. 52, G. A. R. inasmuch as Col. Dutton was made Lieutenant of the Engineers by Maj. Gen. Mansfield just after his graduation from West Point.

Dinner was served at noon by the executive board of the W. R. C., Mrs. James H. Bentley, president. Mrs. Caroline Woodward, Mrs. A. P. Benner, Mrs. Charles Holbrook, and Mrs. Harriet Barstow. The menu included: baked beans, roast beef, mashed potato, pickles, rolls, coffee, and squash pie. The decorations included a box of flowers sent by Mrs. Benjamin Smith in memory of her husband, a former member of the 21st regiment, and from the Misses Flaherty, in memory of their father.

Vocal selections were given by the Imperial quartette.

At the afternoon meeting, Mrs. Maude Deming spoke on the matter of a Civil War flag, turned over to the state department; other speakers included Hiram S. Johnson, Leon Soper and Secretary Roberts.

The veterans attending the re-union were: Co. A: Capt. Philo F. Talcott, Rochester, N. Y.; Lieut. Fred A. Rich, Westfield, Mass.; William H. Brewer, Hockanum, Ct.; Timothy H. Hodge, Glastonbury; Jared Pearl, North Manchester. Co. C: George F. Meech, Middletown; Co. F: Wallace A. Beckwith, New London; John C. Ladd, Portland; Co. H: John G. Lewis, Mansfield Depot; Gilbert Wart, and Henry Selew, East Hampton; Co. I: Hiram S. Johnson, Pawtucket, R. I.; Elisha Matheson, Greene, R. I.; T. Dwight Pond, Brooklyn, Conn.; Willis D. Rouse, Central Village.

At the Chamber of Commerce meeting, Friday evening, there was an expression of appreciation to Rev. Mr. Norris, who has been devoting his time and services to the interests of the chamber for several years without compensation.

It was pointed out by the various speakers that a reorganized chamber, would pay dividends, not only in money but in civic satisfaction. Mr. Lincoln and Capt. Fenton, in speaking of the work of chamber of commerce bodies in Florida, expressed the opinion that Willimantic, which has much to boast of regarding railroads, highways, schools, climate and high grade residences has not improved the opportunity to advertise these facts through New England.

Other business consisted of the approval of the petition of the Willimantic-Hartford Jitney association to operate a bus line from Willimantic through Windham Center to Lebanon Center, over the Jonathan Trumbull Highway to Norwich and return. On motion of W. C. Norriss, the president will appoint a committee of three to present resolutions favoring the completion of the state highway between Hebron and Marlborough to the Portland and Middletown chambers of commerce. The application of Frank T. Lynch for membership was read and accepted. A committee of five will be chosen to act as a nominating committee for the annual election at the June meeting. Adjournment was taken at 10 o'clock.

PICTURES AND ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

A good sized audience attended the meeting at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m. The opening exercises included hymns, scripture and prayer, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder.

The first half of the feature moving picture, "Judith of Bethulia" was shown with good affect; the picture takes its name from an illustrious woman by whose fortitude and prayers the Children of Israel were preserved from destruction: character and scenes were taken from the Apocrypha and a poem written by Thomas Bailey Aldrich. The pictures yesterday included beautiful scenes of the Holy Land which were splendidly portrayed, also touching episodes of Naomi, etc.

Between the reels, Secretary Hill gave a brief talk, "Lessons from the Springtime," and in part the speaker said: "I want to speak briefly with the thought of this passage in mind: 'The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork.' There are some lessons we can learn from the springtime; how refreshing to emerge from the winter into the beautiful springtime, when the apparently dead trees are becoming filled with life, the dead flower bearing bushes taking on new beauty, and the fruit trees put out their buds and flowers prophetic of their fruitage in due time. The birds begin to sing so sweetly. Spring is rightly named; everything springs into life, and all nature springs into harmony with God; the odor of the flowers contributes to the harmony; the birds chirp their sweet notes in unison with their God. What about man; he too often breaks the harmony that God would have in this world; every unkind word, every wrong act, every evil thought and even a look of the wrong sort creates discord and breaks the harmony. Many ways have been tried to create and maintain harmony, but there is only one way to have harmony between individuals, and nations, and to drive discord out of this old world, and that is for each individual to swing into line with the great center of harmony Jesus Christ, who is the "Rose of Sharon," "The Lily of the Valley" and the "Chiefest among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely."

Emery Davis operated the moving picture machine. The second half of the story will be shown next Sunday.

MOTORIST MUST DECIDE ABOUT BLUE BULBS

The state motor vehicle department announced Friday that it has received many inquiries within the past few weeks relative to the legality of use in Connecticut of a blue-tinted headlight bulb recently put on the market. While informing all inquiries that the eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators, of which the Connecticut department is a member, has expressed the opinion that the blue bulbs are, under all operating conditions, less efficient in road lighting than ordinary clear glass incandescent," the department itself has not officially approved or disapproved the bulbs.

They may be used on the responsibility of the motorist, who must determine in each instance that "these blue bulbs are actually not in excess of 21 candle power and when in operation throw a clear white light of sufficient intensity upon the roadway." The state law requires motor vehicles to be equipped with lights sufficient to make clearly visible "all vehicles, persons or objects. . . within a distance of at least two hundred feet" ahead and prohibits the "display upon any motor vehicle any light visible from the front thereof other than white or amber-tinted, or any light other than red or white visible from the rear thereof when backing such motor vehicle, except a light used on a signalling device, without a written permit from the commissioner of motor vehicles."

SAYS ECLIPSE DISCLOSES A NEW SOLAR GAS

That a new form of gas may be discovered due to the recent eclipse of the sun was predicted by Professor Frederick Slocum of Wesleyan university, who spoke at the noon luncheon of the City club of Middletown last week. He stated that scientists are now studying the different forms of gas which they believe exist around the sun and which are only visible at the time of a total eclipse.

Professor Slocum illustrated his talk with pictures taken at the Wesleyan observatory and also pictures taken during other recent eclipses. Several excellent pictures were taken at Wesleyan of the shadow bands which usually precede the total eclipse.

He said the next total eclipse of the sun will occur in January, 1925, the path being the southern part of the country. A total eclipse of the sun will also occur in May 1927 in Great Britain.

If one is that fortunate to possess a ream, more or less of $10 bills let him look them over! He may have a lot of counterfeits. Chief John McFarland, of the local police has received a communication from Thomas J. Callaghan, Providence, agent in charge of the division of secret, treasury department, in that city telling him that spurious federal reserve bank notes of the $10 denomination are being circulated in towns and cities in this section of southern New England and asking him to warn business men to be on the lookout for the fake money.

The counterfeits are on the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, check letter G, series of 1914, face plate number G-228, portrait of Jackson, and to date all notes of this kind picked up bear the serial number 44356777-A. The face of the note is very deceptive, while the reverse side of the note is very pale green. There are no silk fibres nor imitations of them on the specimens in hand.

The best decription of the passers of this bad money that the secret service possesses is that both are young Americans. No. 1 is 22-25 years of age, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, light complexion, smooth face, garbadine top coat and grey cap. No. 2 is 21-23 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, dark complexion, round face, grey suit and wears cap.

Chief McFarland asks the cooperation of all business men and individuals who may come into possession of such a $10 bill as is herein described in checking where they receive such a bill and immediately reporting the matter to the local police department. In case anyone passes or attempts to pass such a bill, detention is desired, that the secret service may bring the young men into custody. However, a spurious bill may be passed by some person other than the two whom description is given herein. All $10 bills should be looked at very carefully.

"NO PARKING" STREETS

In an address last week where highway problems were under discussion Motor Vehicle Commissioner Steckel made the statement that the time will come when no motoring will be permitted on the main thoroughfares.

Parking is today one of the big problems in most every city. Because of the increase in the number of motor vehicles, congestion in the parking privileges have had to be made. "No Parking" signs are to be found today where it had never been necessary. In the past streets and roads restricted to one direction, and yet the highways with the parking privileges that exist are narrower than ever before. Every part of the highway included for traffic is constantly occupied by standing vehicles in large numbers. There is more and more traffic, greater speed and less available highway space. And what is worse everything points to more of the most critical conditions.

There will be communities where the problem of parking is the main consideration with some leaders in other communities in determining that there are reasons to fear that such a restriction will be necessary immediately for fear of a loss in business that is caused by the present restrictions can be set down that public protest will hold off the day when there can be none. And yet most people would have scouted such a proposition a few years ago that the streets would be lined with parked machines. What the next quarter of a century will produce the least successful prophet of the present would care to venture a guess.

In addition to the automobile parking and the need of provision to house it, there is the importance of keeping our main thoroughfares open and free from congestion. Roadway [illegible] is taxed by driveways [illegible] use of the results of the [illegible] vehicles [illegible] certain streets [illegible] All meet with [illegible]

SEEKING DEBT AGREEMENT

In calling the attention of European countries to the fact that the United States would be pleased to receive commissions with a view to debt settlements, it is to be understood that Uncle Sam is not pressing for an immediate payment of the debts.

There was loaned to several of the European countries, for war purposes and relief work, a total of over $5,500,000,000 since the opening of the war over eleven years ago. Since the time of the respective loans there has accumulated interest to the total of more than $1,500,000,000. So with principal and interest there is the Uncle Sam from these countries a total of nearly $7,200,000,000. This is quite a sum to be in the hands of the others without any arrangement having been made for repayment with no payments thereon having been made and with certain efforts being made to have the debts cancelled.

What this government wants is to have the countries of Europe arrange for the repayment of their respective debts and to start such payments in accord with their ability to pay. Certain countries have long since completed such negotiations and it is felt that time enough has been allowed to lapse so that the other countries should be giving consideration to these obligations.

It is expected that it will be a long period of years before the debts are finally paid, and in fact in the agreement with Great Britain, and there is no reason to expect but what the others will get the same degree of leniency, Cancellation is of course out of the question. Uncle Sam doesn't intend to give the impression that he is ready to finance European wars at any time and to go down into his pocket also to meet the after effects.

For some time, this country has been making it plain that steps for repayment have been delayed long enough. Its latest move is simply the outcome of such a desire to get the terms of settlement fixed and repayments started even though such payments are small.

RAILROAD EXTENDS SERVICE

Tests of various kinds have been underway but none will awaken much more interest than the move which the Boston & Maine railroad has announced it is about to make for the extension of the freight service of the railroad so that it will pick up the freight at the store door and also deliver it there, instead of at the freight yards. This means of course that the railroad will go into the trucking business as part of its work.

Such an experiment is to be started in Boston, Lawrence and Lowell and is of course the direct outcome of the competition to which the railroads have been subjected by the trucks. Shippers have in certain instances been required to employ the service of long distance trucks and found that they were relieved of the responsibility of handling the goods once they were loaded at the door. The same was found to be true regarding goods they were receiving. The trucks thus furnished a complete service and it is for the purpose of meeting this situation that the Boston & Maine is extending its service.

Service of this kind is already being provided in Pennsylvania and on Long Island. Freight of less than carload lots is picked up by truck and delivered to central points from which it is handled by train, but the advantages afforded have been found to be appreciated by the shipper and receiver of freight.

The Boston & Maine is however going a step further in meeting truck service between cities by using trucks instead of freight cars. It will be able to compete and give just as rapid service as the other trucks and will overcome the expense of handling the goods so many times as is done in getting goods to, on, off and away from the freight trains. It is an endeavor to retain and regain the business which has been that of the railroad. It is forced to extend its service but it is ready to do that in the protection of its legitimate transportation business.

Just what effect such a change will have upon the highways is a matter which is bound to come in for thorough study. But it is of course as legitimate for one as for another.

GENERAL MILES

The death of General Nelson A. Miles at the age of 86 brings to an end a long and honorable career, the most of which has been devoted to the service of his country. Not many men have had such experiences or developed such a career. He showed not only that it was possible for a clerk to rise to the position of a general but that within a short space of time and to the distinction of himself and his country. He was a leader, a fighter, one who knew how to handle ticklish situations and whose ability on many occasions won marked recognition.

When he volunteered for service in the civil war at the age of 22 he had not apparently picked out a military career for himself. At least there had been nothing in his training to lead up to such an outcome and had not the Civil war developed his activities for the past six decades would probably been entirely different. He was a brigadier general in the Civil war, served in 30 engagements and was wounded three times. His promotions were rapid because he demonstrated his ability. And what was true of his ability as a fighter in the Civil war was later borne out in the Indian struggles in which he was engaged. He was later made the commanding general of the army, but when the war with Spain opened he was assigned to the taking of Porto Rico, which he did, but he had suffered from West Point ostracism. He became involved in several controversies, where he proved himself the same good fighter, though not always successful and was eager to get into the World war though nearly 80.

General Miles made an excellent record during his long life and it will figure conspicuously in the military history of this country.

SYNTHETIC OPIUM

Not being able to make satisfactory progress for the checking of opium production so that humanity can be protected against the harmful effects of its indiscriminate use, the happy idea has been hit upon by Herman A. Metz of producing a synthetic opium by so cheap a process that the growing of poppies would be unprofitable. In order to get chemists to work out this solution he has offered a prize of $100,000 the prize to go to the successful producer who would surrender his method and permit production under the restrictions which human welfare calls for.

There is no getting away from the fact that there is need for opium and its derivatives for medical and scientific purposes. Efforts to get the nations to unite in bringing about such a reduced production as to provide only enough for such purposes have not succeeded. From the results of the conference there is no immediate prospect of the producing countries giving up the profitable business for the sake of serving humanity.

Whether the synthetic opium, which is not to be a substitute, but real opium produced at less expense than the growing of poppies, can be worked out by chemists remains to be answered. The prize is a substantial one. It is not only worth working for but Mr. Metz believes it offers one of the most effective means of ending the demoralizing effect from the present extensive use of the drug if it is possible to reach the goal. Mr. Metz aims at eliminating the present profit in the belief that its disappearance would put a check upon poppy growing. Mankind deserves the relief that would come from striking a fatal blow at the unrestrained opium production.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Kerosene will remove rust from scissors.

Clothes will last longer if mended before laundering.

Milk is the most perfect food. Include plenty of it in your menus.

There's no place so much like home for leftover vegetables as vegetable soup.

Pickled apples are an excellent relish for game or roast pork.

Use peroxide of hydrogen to remove perfume stains from bureau scarfs.

Damp bran scattered over the very dirty carpet will take dirt with it when swept up.

Before attempting to drive a screw into woodwork cover the end of the screw with soap.

Try chopping an apple in your meat hash and add a bit of sugar, brown or white; it is fine.

Save all cereal boxes and put jars of fruit in them. This is far preferable to wrapping them in paper to keep them dark.

Bring country sausage to a boil and then brown them on the grill. This will prevent their bursting open during the grilling process.

When cooking canned tomatoes always add a little sugar. This removes some of the acidity and gives a better flavor.

A little cornstarch added to the salt in the saltcellar, will prevent hardening. Proportions are half a teaspoon of cornstarch to two tablespoons of salt.

Should milk burn remove it from the fire, place the saucepan immediately in a bowl of cold water and throw into the milk a pinch of salt. Stir with a spoon and the burnt taste will entirely disappear.

When cooking by gas place a small pan of water in the oven. A bowl of vinegar and water placed beside the stove will prevent the smell of cooking from spreading through the house.

If the trap in your bathroom or kitchen is clogged, attach a piece of rubber hose to your cold-water faucet, then place the hose over the opening in the sink, and turn the water on full force, allowing it to run several minutes. This will flush the trap.

NO PLACE TO PUT IT

So many of us have white enameled kitchen tables and we avoid using the meat grinder merely through having no place to attach it. Put a small wad of paper between the grinder and the table and tighten the screws on the paper instead of the slippery table. You will find it secure and safe.

THE KITCHEN WASTE PAPER BASKET

A fireproof waste basket kept under the kitchen sink for wrappings empty boxes, cans, etc., will save many trips to the cellar and keep all your kitchen rubbish in one place. The white enameled ones are nice as they can be washed when necessary.

MARKING GOOD RECIPES

When you have tried a recipe in your cook book and found it a pleasure, mark a small cross alongside of it. Don't turn the pages down to mark the recipe. This soon makes the cook book look unsightly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A warm bath of half an hour's duration is good to induce deep dreamless sleep, the kind that rests and relaxes tense muscles.

The combination of a darkened airy bedroom, warm but light-weight covers warm feet and a comfortable adjustment of pillows under the head goes far toward inducing normal sleep.

If a child falls on its head it should be watched carefully for an hour or so because real trouble may have been started by the injury. A child will always cry from fear after a fall. It may cry from pain. But if it seems all right again within half an hour or so, there is no real reason for worry. When a child is struck on the head and lies white and inert, there is cause for worry.

Rest the eyes as much as possible. Wash them several times with a solution of boric acid or salt and water, using an eye-cup. Exercise them by turning them rapidly from side to side or raising and lowering them. Pluck out any stray eyebrows brush and train them. Apply a tonic to the brows and lashes.

Tired, aching feet are a detriment to comfort, happiness and beauty. The housewife, especially, needs to give special attention to proper care of the feet. Give them a witch-hazel or alcohol rub. Remove all corns, and calluses.

USING A REFRIGERATOR

Warm foods should never be placed in the refrigerator. They cause the ice to melt wastefully, the temperature of the air is raised, which increases the bacteria count and the chances of the food to sour or spoil. This is particularly true of soup, milk, and semi-liquid dishes whose watery consistency is exactly the desired medium of potential "culture" in which little bacteria love to play—and grow. That, too, is the reason why solid and dry portions of food are best laid away apart from their gravy or sauce, since the dry portion will tend to keep better and longer than a fluid. Again, one speck of mold will, like radio waves, travel to a distant article or saucer of food and invisibly but quite surely, contaminate any surrounding surface which is also moist and warm. Thus an unnoticed piece of cheese in the rear, a portion of ham bone, a bit of pimiento or other soft food will be the unseen cause of odors and spoilage. Now can one expect the best refrigerator to keep sweet milk which has stood on the back steps in the sun, on the hot shelf over the range, or been in an open pitcher on the table some hours before its return to the bottle. Frequent changes or rise in temperature in the ice-box is the most common cause for souring and spoiling of its contents.—Designer.

Oven Secrets

A too-hot oven will spoil the milk pudding.

The more sugar in a cake, the lower the temperature of the oven.

If the oven is too hot, it can be cooled quickly by placing a pan of cold water in the lowest shelf.

When the roast is first put in the oven, let the flame be high. After the roast is well browned on all sides, turn down the gas a bit so the meat will cook through without burning.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The velour hat with simple trimming of ribbon band and tailored bow is being shown by many of the shops for sportswear.

Smock, muddy, or Oliver Twist type suits for very little boys more frequently employ the cotton poplins or broadcloths than any other wash material.

A combination of materials and colors, that at the moment is much in vogue is pink satin in a delicate oyclament tone veiled with black Chantilly lace.

Linens will assume a more important place it is thought, for fall than they have this spring, for every one agrees that this has been an exceptionally big voile season.

For play and general wear the bloomer frock holds its own, and no wonder, for it is at once sightly and practical. Printed materials, especially percales are in the forefront in the fashioning of bloomer frocks.

One of the newest evening wraps is decorated with a life-sized bird of paradise, painted between the shoulders. Many of the small hats have brim or crown adorned with small hand painted figures.

The new plain and printed silks, which come in a width of 54 inches, are as practical and economical as they are smart. A yard and a half of the material is all that is necessary for a frock while little more is required for a coat.

Not only much of the favorite tea consumed by English society comes from China and India, but some of the latest tea gowns as well. These consist of a long coat of rich brocade, fastening at one side, and trousers of black satin with brocade turnups at the bottom.

OUTLINE THE STENCIL

The decoration of silks by the stenciling process is being widely followed in France in preparation of materials for evening gowns. These stenciled fabrics are specially effective when the designs are outlined by rhinestone or glass beads. For day wear they are trimmed in a similar way with wooden beads of various colors.

LONG FLARED SLEEVES

Laws of compensation are by no means being ignored in modern dress design. It seems inevitable that as legs are exposed arms should be covered. At least, late frocks, especially the light summery ones, have long sleeves in many instances. These usually are tight fitting, although they may flare below the elbows as skirts flare below the knee.

GLOVES FOR SUMMER

Fashion decrees the ornamental and frilly cuff and the silk hand coverings lend themselves excellently to provide the desired effects. The cuffs are embroidered, shirred, piped, ruffled and even scrambled. The short gloves are almost universally worn when the spring frock of the wearer is sleeveless.

DECORATIVE DRESSER

A peasant dresser of wood painted a soft olive green with gay flower motifs is a decorative as well as a useful addition to the country living-room or to the room in a small apartment which must serve as a combined dining and living room.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

Black netting makes a practical place bag. The contents can be easily seen through it.

A buttonhole in place of a loop of tape is far the best method of suspending a dishcloth or duster on a nail. If worked on both sides of the fabric a strong support will be afforded which will not tear away in course of time, as is the case when loops are employed.

When making up a cushion spread a thick sheet of wadding over it just under the outer cover, tacking it down with a stitch at the corners and in the middle of the sides. The cushion feels softer than it otherwise would. The wadding also shows up the work and makes even a plain cover look well.

When pulling threads to straighten the hems of new tablecloths or napkins save the linen ravelings and tuck them away in your embroidery cotton book. Table linen mended with these linen threads will scarcely show the darn after it is laundered and will lie much flatter, than when the tear is mended with cotton thread.

PICTURES IN THE HOME

No pictures in the home seems to be the popular thought at the present time. However, one or two carefully selected pictures will give a homelike appearance to many rooms and some rooms really require them as a finish. In the small house, attractively framed mirrors answer the purpose better as they give an appearance of size to the small room.

BUY THE BEST

If you don't want to pay the price of absolutely fresh and whole fruits for preserving purposes, don't do them up at all. You will only waste the difference in money by a few jars "going bad," and none of your fruit will be as good as it should be.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S BUGBEAR

If called to the door or telephone just as you were about to ice the cake, lay a damp cloth over the top of the bowl containing the frosting. This will prevent its hardening in the short interval.

KEEP THEM TOGETHER

When traveling with a baby or small children is well to put all of his or her clothes and accessories in one place in the trunk. Then a wild search for some small article is avoided when arriving at a destination.

PUDDING TIPS

Grease molds and baking dishes before putting in the pudding, then it will not stick. Don't turn the pudding out the minute you remove it from the oven; let it skrinq a few minutes and it will be easier.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The work of coaling ships in Japan is done entirely by women.

American women paid income tax of $1,602,535,915 in 1924.

Paris women are rapidly adopting masculine styles for mourning wear.

Women in this country spend $150,000,000 annually for permanent waves and $7,500,000 for hair dye.

More than 50,000,000 women over 21 years of age in this country spend $5,000,000 per day for cosmetics.

Jane Addams, famous settlement worker of Chicago, has started a special study of the slums of Mexico City.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the president, still does most of her shopping in person rather than by deputy.

The people in Poland are raising funds for a national gift to Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium. The gift will take the form of a radium institute in Warsaw, her native city.

NOT TOO MUCH

Be chary about the amount of water used in wiping up or mopping floors. Too much water means swelling and warping of the boards.

PREVENTS STICKING

Grease the baking pot with a piece of salt pork or bacon before putting in the beans and the pot will be much easier to clean.

RECIPES

Mocha-Raisen Dainty: The base is simply whipped cream and cake; raisins transform this into a fruity, attractive dessert. Line sherbet glasses with split lady fingers or finger length strips of cake. Whip one and one-half cups of thick cream, add one tablespoon of coffee extract or very strong coffee strained, one-third cup powdered sugar and one cup seeded raisins. Fill cake-lined glasses and serve cold. If cake or lady fingers are not available pile mixture in glasses and serve with wafers. Will serve six persons.

Raisin Apple Snow: Raisin apple snow is a dainty fruit dessert to serve as a finishing touch to a heavy, substantial dinner. The day before this dessert is wanted, make a good applesauce of rather tart apples. Press the sauce through a sieve; add one cupful of raisins and heat to the boiling point; remove from fire and add one-half cupful of sugar; stir until dissolved. In the meantime, soak two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin in one-third cupful of cold water until water is all absorbed. Add the soaked gelatin to the hot mixture and mix well. Turn into a cold bowl and set aside until cool and somewhat thickened. Then add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Turn into a mold and set aside in a cold place until required. Make a custard sauce of the two egg yolks, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring. To serve pudding unmold and pass the custard sauce.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Words of Appreciation.

Mr. Editor: I would like, through your paper, to make public a few words of appreciation for the most generous assistance given by Mr. MacAvoy in the rehearsing of the work to be offered by some of Norwich's amateur entertainers in "Opportunity Week" at the Palace theatre.

The interest shown in the sometimes rather bewildered amateur's attempts; bewildered, perhaps, because of lack of experience, ignorance of that fine technique which looks so very easy, but which comes only with years of hard work; and the generous help given in every possible way has made the experience one of real pleasure and deserves, at least, public expression from those of us who have been so generously helped by the Palace theater corps.

AN AMATEUR.

Norwich, May 16, 1925.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Elmer A. Sperry, who has been elected to membership in the National Academy of Sciences, is an electrical engineer and inventor of much renown. His technical education began at Cornell University, where he studied in 1880. The same year he settled in Chicago and organized a company to manufacture electrical devices which he had designed, patented, and used in connection with lamps and dynamos. In 1920 Mr. Sperry first began to manufacture and sell a gyroscopic device which is now used in connection with compasses on naval and aerial craft. This invention has a stabilizing effect and increases the safety of operators and vessels. It has found its way into the navies of the world and today is safely navigating ships of the leading companies of the world's mercantile marine. Mr. Sperry's 1,200,000-candle power searchlight is the standard in the army and navy. He has perfected many other forms of mechanism, so that it is said of him that he holds nearly 300 patents in all.

From Small Beginnings

Edward Taylor, the Tin Peddler, the "Preacher."

"Tin peddler, ma! Tin peddler comin' down the road!"

The little child shrieked out the words and pointed down the country road to a red wagon slowly approaching. On top of the wagon, under it, and around it were tin pails and pans and iron kettles. The driver was a young man, tanned by exposure to the sun and rain, with a twinkle in his eye. When he came up and spoke to the child's mother it was with a rare smile that brought instant favor. Ed Taylor, the tin peddler, was a favorite with all the children along his route, and because of this he did a good business. But, however much the housekeepers along the roads liked the tin peddler not one of them had the slightest thought that he was a man who was to become one of the world's great men. Nevertheless, before he died that same tin peddler had made himself widely known in the United States, and had lifted many a man into usefulness and right living.

From the very first Edward Taylor had what seemed to be hard luck. He was born in Richmond, Virginia, in 1793. His home was one where there was little or nothing. As a child he had to endure so much hardship that a kind-hearted neighbor took him to care of and to bring up. Unaccustomed to the order and the regularity of a good home, the little boy became restless and finally driven by some petty matter into a rush act, he ran away when he was only seven years old.

From Richmond it was easy to get on board a boat and get far away. From the day when he first crept on board until he was 17 years old he lived on shipboard, among rough men, living a rough life. Even then, after a short time on land, he again went to sea, and took part in sea-fighting. Now came a misfortune that turned into a blessing. He was taken prisoner and put in an English jail. Long before this the homeless lad had found comfort in the emotion of religion. Now, in the prison, he gave comfort to others. This was the beginning of all his success and of all his fame. From being a chance preacher in jail he became a wandering preacher, and at last, at 36, the head of the Seamen's "Bethel," in Boston. He was a sailor. He knew the sailor's ways and the sailor's speech. He spoke so that men could understand him, and he made them laugh and cry. He spoke from the depths of a very sympathetic heart that had always longed for love, and he turned men to religion as if by magic. At 52 he sailed on the United States ship that carried food to starving Ireland, and no man on the ship went with a more kindly heart.

"Father" Taylor died in 1871 at the age of 78, mourned by thousands.

Stories That Recall Others

Interesting Reading

An old man wandered into the library and stood for a few minutes looking around. Sometime later he approached an attendant and said rather defensively, "I reckon ye don't object to my readin' in that book there, do ye?" pointing with his cane in the direction of the dictionary.

Being assured that he was free to use the book, he seated himself comfortably and seemingly with much interest perused the pages of the book for some time, till the impression was gained that he must be a cross word puzzle fan.

GARAGE OFF MOHEGAN ROAD IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE AT NIGHT

Starting from an unknown cause fire totally destroyed a large garage owned by Joseph Longo and located off Mohegan road about 9 o'clock Saturday night. The Longo family and several friends from Willimantic left during the early evening to attend the Broadway theatre and there was no one home when the fire broke out. A telephone summons immediately followed by a bell alarm from box 327, Boswell avenue, and Seventh street, called out the fire department.

The fire had gained such headway when the box was pulled that it was impossible to save the garage. The nearest hydrant is a considerable distance from the Longo property, and had the house taken fire it would have been necessary to lay between 500 and 600 feet of hose across lots to get a stream on the blaze. Owing to the fact that the house is of brick construction with composition shingles, and as the wind was north the flames and sparks from the burning garage did not communicate to the house. There was some damage to the piazza from exposure to the heat.

There were no machines in the garage as Mr. Longo had driven his Studebaker to the theatre and had left his Reo truck in the yard, according to his usual custom. One side of the garage Mr. Longo used as a storehouse for lumber, roofing paper, salamanders and tools. The garage was valued at about $650 and the contents, including a winter top for Mr. Longo's touring car, were valued at two or three hundred dollars.

The reflection from the fire could be seen from all parts of the city, and the bell alarm, was, as usual the signal for automobile drivers to rush headlong to the scene, choking up the streets in that vicinity so that it was practically impossible for traffic to get through. It was estimated that two or three hundred machines rushed to the fire. There was a continuous line of machines from below Pratt street, through Boswell avenue almost to Seventh street. A reckless abandon of traffic laws, rules of the road and driving courtesy resulted in general confusion and in several cases nearly caused collisions. It was, in fact, a race to see which driver could beat the other to the fire.

A state policeman mounted on a motorcycle did splendid work in getting the tangled mass of machines straightened out and the road cleared. Two local police officers also aided in clearing up traffic. So bad was the congested condition of Boswell avenue that Charles Culver, driver of the chief's car, couldn't get into the street with his machine and had to leave it on Mohegan road while he walked to the box to pull in the recall.

Just what caused the fire is not known. Mr. Longo stated that there had been none of his family in the garage Saturday and that when the family left Saturday evening for the theatre everything was evidently all right with no sign of fire.

STATE BUILDING LOAN CONVENTION HELD HERE

P. E. Whalen of New Haven was elected president of the Connecticut Building & Loan League at the League's 13th annual convention held Saturday morning and afternoon in this city. Henry D. Johnson of this city was elected treasurer of the League.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the Wauregan Hotel with an attendance of about 80 delegates. The meeting was opened by John C. Barry of Portland, Ct. He called upon Mayor Milo R. Waters who extended the delegates a hearty welcome to Norwich, and was followed by E. O. Rodier, president of the Norwich Building and Loan Association with words of greeting.

Vice President P. E. Whalen of New Haven arrived at this point in the meeting and took the chair for the remainder of the session. After explaining that he had been delayed in reaching the meeting Mr. Whalen asked all to rise for a minute's silence in tribute to the late president of the League, Charles H. Bissell.

Benjamin H. Coe of Waterford, third vice president of the state league responded to the welcoming addresses. The reading of the minutes of the last convention was dispensed with, printed copies having been distributed among the delegates. Secretary William H. Skinner of Bridgeport read the minutes of the last executive committee meeting and they were accepted and ordered placed on file. Appointment of committees was announced by Mr. Barry as follows:

Resolution—J. J. Thatcher, Hartford; J. N. Standish, Bridgeport; F. F. O'Connor, New London.

Finance—J. H. Clark, Meriden; C. C. Persiani, Southington; Judge F. B. Bartram, Stamford.

Nominating — P. S. Chapman, Bridgeport; M. H. Leahy, Stonington; W. P. Schwabe, Thompsonville.

Following a report on the 1924 national convention held at Cleveland, O., given by John C. Barry, of Portland, Ct., the secretary called the roll of delegates, which showed approximately 80 delegates representing 12 associations present. Among the new associations admitted to membership in the state league is the Elm City Building and Loan Association of New Haven. They had the largest delegation at the convention.

The report of the treasurer, Theodore V. Meyer of Waterbury showed a balance of $242.13 received in 1924, and total receipts including this balance for the year of $574.13. The disbursements for the year totalled $255.44, leaving a balance as of May 4, 1925 of $318.69.

The presiding officer then called on Miss Mary Ellwood who in a statement from the bank commissioners' office, gave a talk on the building and loan situation in the state.

At noon a recess was taken for luncheon, the following menu being served:

Fruit Cup
Vegetable Soup
Small Steak
Baked Potatoes Green Peas
Hearts of Lettuce
Chocolate Ice Cream
Assorted Cakes Coffee

John J. O'Rourke acted as song leader and solos were given by Fred J. Maples of this city and Mr. Simpson of Bridgeport, and a delegate to the convention. The ladies present sang Sweet Adeline, all joining in the chorus.

When the afternoon session was opened the presiding officer called upon former Mayor Timothy C. Murphy, a director of the local building and loan association, who in a brief address spoke of the value of the building and loan associations. He spoke of the part such associations take in building up communities and in making for good citizenship.

Acting for President Arthur E. Story of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce who was unable to be present, John M. Lee welcomed the delegates to Norwich in the name of the chamber. A rising vote of thanks to the chamber was given by the delegates.

J. N. Standish, an ex president of the state league, addressed the gathering in relation to building and loan associations.

On recommendation of the nominating committee the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—P. E. Whalen, New Haven.

First Vice President—John C. Barry, Portland.

Second Vice President—B. S. Coe, Waterbury.

Third Vice President—W. J. Rawlings, New Britain.

Secretary—William H. Skinner, of Bridgeport.

Treasurer—Henry D. Johnson, Norwich.

The election completed the business of the convention which then adjourned.

REV. WILLIAM A. KEEFE CELEBRATES SUNDAY MASS

Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church, who arrived in town on Friday evening, after a three months trip abroad, which included a visit to His Holiness Pius XI, celebrated the low mass at St. Mary's church on Sunday morning, meeting his congregations for the day for the first time. It was monthly holy communion day for the men of the parish, who went to the altar in large numbers. Following the announcements for the coming week and the reading of the day's gospel, Father Keefe briefly referred to his trip and to that portion of it which brought him to the Vatican. Pilgrims are entering the Holy City daily for the Holy Year blessing and it is estimated that 5,000,000 visitors will make the pilgrimage this year.

On one day to Father Keefe's knowledge 44 nations of the world were represented at St. Peters. The characteristic work of the Catholic church —its oneness—in one faith, one communion and one head—shows itself, he said, in a splendid manner in the cosmopolitan delegations as you meet them, which bears one the traditions and command given to St. Peter to "Go Forth and Teach all Nations." Father Keefe spoke at each of the three masses for the day and at each mass granted the papal blessing, which he is now empowered to grant to his people.

FIRE BETWEEN FLOORS OF TENEMENT BUILDING

At 3.35 o'clock Sunday afternoon the fire department was called out by telephone for what might have been a serious fire in the three and a half story tenement building at No. 24 Thames street owned by Frank Ferry. The fire was between the floor of the tenement occupied by Joseph Paceoni and family, and the ceiling of the Ferry tenement on the floor below. The flames were extinguished with chemical, and the fire was confined to the place of its origin. The damage to the house is estimated of the room.

The house became filled with smoke and while opening windows to ventilate the building one of the firemen discovered a man sound asleep in a room on the third floor. He had to grope his way through the smoke after being awakened.

CHARGED WITH ISSUING FRAUD CHECK FOR $107

Benjamin Cutler of New Britain was brought back here from New Britain Saturday by Officer Charles Smith on a warrant charging the issue of a fraudulent check for $107 on Nov. 24 1924. It is alleged in the warrant that the check was issued to Joseph Friedman, payable to the Norwich Auto Parts Co.

A bond of $300 was given by Samuel Greenberg of New Britain for the appearance of Cutler here on May 25.

ST PATRICK'S PEOPLE URGED TO AID HOSPITAL DRIVE

From the pulpit of St. Patrick's church at the three masses Sunday the congregations were urged by the priests to take an active interest in the campaign for renewal of memberships being inaugurated by the Woman's Auxiliary of Backus hospital. At the 7:30 mass, the rector, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael Henry May spoke of the hospital as an institution which is doing a great work of charity and mercy, the welfare of which is a matter of personal concern not alone to the townspeople, but to those of surrounding towns. Monsignor May expressed the hope that every woman of the parish, of her means will allow, would join the auxiliary, either as an annual member, paying $1 yearly, or as a life member by payment of $25. It was noted that, before the canvass begins, subscriptions may be sent direct to Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, 262 Broadway.

It was the fifth Sunday after Easter, the epistle read in all the masses as they were offered throughout the entire world being James 1, 22-27, beginning, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only," the gospel being John 16, 23-30. From the gospel Monsignor May chose his text: "If you ask the Father anything in my name, He will give it to you." His theme was prayer to the granting of which Christ pledges Himself in this promise, since back of it is the assurance of His divinity. Weakness is a characteristic of humanity. When physically weak, men are quick to make their state known, to ask for the food which will restore their strength. So for spiritual weakness, there can be the restoration of strength only through two means—prayer and the sacraments. The Saviour impressed upon His disciples the necessity, as well as the efficacy of prayer: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you."

And to make prayer easy for men, Christ has instructed them how to pray in the beautiful petition which He Himself framed for them—the Lord's Prayer. "Our Father, who art in heaven," the words taught men by a God Himself. One of its phrases, "Give us this day our daily bread", embraces not alone the request for spiritual needs, but covers material wants. Men should pray for their physical, social, material, business needs, to a God who is willing to grant their wishes out of the inexhaustible treasury of His goodness.

Some may protest that even fervent prayer is not always granted. In such cases it is because men have prayed, as the Scripture says "amiss." Have asked for something which God sees would have proved detrimental to their salvation, hurtful to their souls. The lessen of the brief instruction was the continued necessity and reasonableness of constant, fervent, confident prayer, for gifts spiritual and temporal, which God will bestow abundantly, if, as Christ has counseled, the petition is presented "in My name."

The three priests of this parish were kept busy during Saturday afternoon and evening hearing confessions, so that there was an unusually large number to receive holy communion at the early mass, Mgr. May requiring the assistance of Rev. John J. Reilly. The parish Rosary society received communion in a body. It was estimated that many thus noted the day because of the canonization Sunday of the little French girl, Saint Therese of the Holy Child, or, as she is popularly known to those who study her good deeds and imitate her virtues, "The little Flower of Jesus." The same manifestation of practical Catholicity was the rule at the other Catholic churches of the city and town.

SERVICE AT JAIL CONDUCTED BY Y. M. C. A.

Sunday morning at 8:15 daylight, representatives of the Norwich Y. M. C. A., conducted a religious service at the county jail.

Several popular hymns were sung, and Hugh Kinder rendered with good effect two vocal solos and also accompanied the singing. Edwin Hill the general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., read the scripture from the 10th chapter of John's Gospel, and offered prayer. Edmund A. Prentice made the address, which was really a heart-to-heart talk to the men, basing his remarks on the scripture verse, "I am come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly." The speaker stressed the fact that God is good to all men, and that he expects that men will in turn live so as to please him. He spoke of the wonderful brain that God has given us, and described how the drinking of rum woked havoc with the brain and the life; he told the men that it was probably a good thing that they were confined, because they would not now do the things that had brought them to the jail; he said that if the men before him would let the Christ into their lives he would completely change them; we are all on the road of life, one end of which reaches heaven and the other end reaches hell; it all depends which way we are facing; any man here, said the speaker, can this very day start for heaven by giving Jesus Christ control of his life.

At the close of the talk fifteen or more asked to be remembered in prayer.

NEED MORE TRAFFIC POLICE SAYS STOECKEL

"Connecticut is pitiably undermanned from the traffic police standpoint," says the May bulletin of the state motor vehicle department issued under the name of Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel. Traffic is controlled by 636 men in thirty-seven cities and towns having a combined population of 1,076,104, of 75 per cent. of the whole population of the state, it is stated, but only 276 police officers are assigned to full-time traffic duty in these municipalities. 133 are part-time officers, 220 supernumeraries and six school janitors assigned and authorized as special officers.

Twenty state policemen have been assigned exclusively in the past two years to examining operators who apply for licenses, according to the bulletin. A large percentage of the department is used for highway patrol work, and in view of the increase of ten men made in the state police department at the present session of the legislature, it is expected that "a few more men can be spared for the special patrol work."

A table is printed showing that New Haven has eighty policemen regularly assigned to traffic duty; Hartford 55, Bridgeport 41, Waterbury 31, Ansonia 4, Bristol 2, Danielson 2, Naugatuck 4, New Britain 6, New Canaan 1, New London 5, Norwalk 7, Norwich 3, Shelton 1, Stamford 9, Stratford 2, Torrington 1, West Hartford 5 and Windsor Locks 1.

Meriden has seventeen part-time traffic officers, Middletown and West Hartford 11 each; Danbury 14, Beacon Falls, Bristol, Milford, New Canaan, New London, Torrington, and Winsted 2 each; Danielson 4, Derby 3, East Hartford 16; Manchester Naugatuck Shelton Willimantic and Windsor Locks 3, each New Britain 6, Putnam 5, Rockville and Stamford 4 each, Stafford, Stonington and Thompsonville 1 each, and Wallingford 8.

Hartford has sixty supernumeraries available for traffic work, New Britain 50, New Haven 48, Jewett City 4, Middletown 12, Naugatuck 14 Waterbury 14, and Rockville, Wallingford and Windsor Locks 4 each.

Sixty-four motorcycle policemen are employed in the thirty-seven municipalities named, being included in the totals of regular and part-time officers listed above.

"There is no way of telling how many lives and limbs are saved through the activities of the police in the course of a year," says the bulletin, "but if an honor were awarded each officer who saves a life by his direction of traffic, there is not one who would not be covered with medals."

More careful and systematic handling of traffic is urged, and police forces are cited as the only competent agencies to accomplish it.

ATHLETICS CONTINUE AS SENSATION OF PENNANT RACE IN MAJOR BASEBALL

New York, May 17—Puzzling curve and a dazzling fast ball carried the Major league reins from batter's box to pitching slab in the fifth week of play as boxmen of high and low degree began to warm their truant arms to the task of curbing the annual spring batting rampage.

The salvo of hits which greeted the early season subsided to scattering and intermittent fire under the return of masterful hurling to the baseball throne, with leaders in the National and American sharing generously in the conquest of clout by curve. The almost complete collapse of western opposition to the push of eastern peacemakers permitted New York in the senior league and Philadelphia in the junior to breeze through the week without a defeat.

Failure of threatening Cincinnati and St. Louis bats to batter down the defense of brilliant Polo Grounds slab exhibitions gave the McGraw cohorts elbow room of five and a half games at the top. Connie Mack's entry likewise made its seat in the American league saddle more comfortable through the fruitful pitching of Rommel, Harriss, Gray and Baumgartner.

While the one-ring performance of the Giants tended to dull interest in the National at the expense of the Reds, spurts by the Pirates, Robins and Phillies gathered six teams in a fight for second place, with Chicago and Boston, one story from the basement, only two and one-half games behind the running-up Brooklyn club. Tumbling from second to fifth berth, the Reds were jointed in their precipitate flight by the Cubs and Cardinals.

The Robins continued to lament the absence of Pitcher Doak but managed very well without him notwithstanding clinching four of their six games and stepping across the prostrate western clubs to lead the pursuit of the champions. The Pirates recovered some of the 1924 punch and dented a five game Boston winning streak, mounting from last to fourth place with four wins in five starts.

NEW LONDON SCHOOLS FARED POORLY IN YALE MEET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New Haven, May 17—Track representatives from Chapman Technical High and Bulkeley High from New London failed to place in the annual Yale Interscholastic track meet held here Saturday. Almost every event equalled a college record or came so near doing so that those athletes who did not come here to participate in the meet well coached or well trained were left far behind in the dust. The New London entries in the meet were eliminated in the trials, but the work done by them was better than in any previous attempt in any meet.

The winner for the century yard run made the distance in 10 seconds flat and that let Courbois out from Chapman Tech, a runner from Hillhouse High New Haven negotiating that distance in even time. In the 440 and mile runs in which Davey entered for Chapman Tech in the former and Vibber in the latter events, these men although succeeding to break their existing school record were outclassed by far. Prep school stars and High school performers from the principal schools in the Eastern Section of the country were too much for the Whaler's. Zuccardy of Bulkeley who easily took the mile in the dual meet with Norwich was behind Vibber, the latter clocked in at somewhat over 4 minutes.

"Flip" Gray gave a good account of himself in the 220 and 440 yard runs but was not equal to the occasion. The Bulkeley star 220 yard runner lost out in the preliminary heats early in the afternoon, but nevertheless pressed the winner until the tape was reached. The other Chapman Tech entries failed to come even close in the field and running events, the two squads returning home late last night.

HARTNETT STILL HOLDS HOME RUN HONORS

Chicago, May 17—(A. P.)—As if inspired with the hitting power of Babe Ruth, his ailing teammate, Meusel of the New York Americans, smashed out six home runs in the last seven days, bringing his total to eight for the season. Hartnett of the Chicago Nationals, however, retained his leadership in the home run marathon of major league baseball clubs by connecting for two more, running his string to ten. Williams of the St. Louis Americans, with four for the week, and Hornsby of the St. Louis Nationals, with three, brought their totals within striking distance of the lead.

The leaders:

ACADEMY STUDENTS HOLD CELEBRATION OF VICTORY

(By Weisler)

The undergraduates of the Academy ended a perfect day Saturday by having a snake-dance, a barn fire on the campus, and a dance in the school green. At 7:30 the students met in full force on Franklin Square and led by John Haslam, president of the Senior class and Perry Holander they went through the busiest sections of the city making noise enough to let the inhabitants of Norwich know that they were really rejoicing, and before they were through the city did know it.

After their noisy parade around the city, they started up Broadway toward the Academy. In the meanwhile Manager Gilman, who was to be seen rushing around the city in Nurmi fashion, had secured from some of the businessmen, some old boxes and wood for a bonfire. Right here, we want to thank those business men for their contributions. It was partly through them that the programme was able to be carried out. Gilman next needed a truck to get the stuff to the campus. He secured this from Sadinsky. Many thanks to him also, he proved to have a noble soul.

Before starting the fire a stand was erected. Perry Hollander, acting as cheerleader stood there upon and called for Principal H. A. Tirrell, members of team, the manager, the coach and other notables about to speak. They readily followed out his request and each and every one spoke of his rejoicing. Cheers followed every speech and the outbursts of rejoicing were unlimited.

Then the bonfire and the fire-works. Truly, an unusual scene at the campus, words would be unable to describe the scene. Old school songs were sung, with the old grads joining in, some who had had the good fortune to have seen Bulkeley defeated in their days. It was a grand sight. The students started a snake dance around the fire which lasted for fully fifteen minutes and added to the attractiveness of the scene.

When the embers burned low, the crowd started for the school gym and then two hours of dancing was enjoyed Yes, the members of the team all stepped out, all except "Shorty" Hamill, the boy that could sock them. He decided that as a dancer he made a better ball-player. The dance went off in fine fashion. Music was furnished by the school orchestra led by Henry Byrnan. Bryman surely did make his old bow travel. He had a touch of over-rejoicing. Thanks much Brynan for your work, including the rest of the musicians.

It was a bunch of rejoiced boys and girls that started for home that night. The hoarse throats were numerous. Why not, had not their team, the N. F. A. baseball team, beat a big, almighty combination representing Bulkeley. For the first time in four years it was N. F. A. over Bulkeley in baseball.

The gang dispersed with three Rahs followed by N. F. A.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL ATHLETIC MEET ON WEDNESDAY

Considerable interest is being manifested in the grammar school athletic meet which is to be held at the Fairgrounds Wednesday afternoon, and indications are that it will prove to be one of the best contests yet held between the schools. The Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth street team whose participation is always a signal for some real competition, have entered, as well as several other schools among which are the West Town and Wequonnoc schools, who will doubtless also contribute to the pep and excitement.

The order of events will be as follows:

Boys 75 yard dash trials.
Target throw.
Girls 50 yard dash trials.
Boys 75 yard dash finals.
Girls 50 yard dash finals.
Tug of war.
Potato race trials.
Girls relay race.
Girls basketball throw for distance
Potato race finals.
Boys 1-2 mile relay race.

Points will be awarded the schools on the basis of 5, 3 and 1, for taking first, second and third places in the events, and the school making the highest total score will be awarded the handsome trophy cup that has been contributed by the Norwich Bulletin.

The comfortable grandstand seats will be open to the general public, and a good time is no doubt in store for those who visit the Fairgrounds to see the young athletes in action. There will be no charge for admission

J. B. MARTIN TEAM WINS FARCE GAME FROM PLAINFIELD

In one of the poorest games ever witnessed on the J. B. Martin diamond the Velvetmen swamped the Plainfield team 24 to 4 Sunday afternoon. Loose and erratic fielding by Plainfield contributed largely to the huge score piled up by the local boys. Jini Murphy, J. Joubert and Lefty Dona each hit home runs, while the rest of the team with the exception of Pepin shared honors in the hitting role. The large crowd of fans that was on hand for what was expected to be a ball game, was sadly disappointed as well as the management. Next Sunday, the attraction will be the Herrups of Hartford and the management is planning to secure the Hartford Colored Giants for later in the season. The score:

YANTIC WOOLMEN LOSE LOOSELY PLAYED GAME

Sunday afternoon at the Yantic diamond the Yantic mills team lost a loosely played game to the Columbia town team by a score of 9 to 8. # ACADEMY-BULKELEY GAME REPETITION OF DAVID-GOLIATH ACT IN HISTORY

A little David went forth to war on Saturday and slew the mighty Goliath, much to the chagrin of the followers of the all-powerful Goliath. This repetition of ancient history was enacted by the Academy team, though to be little and insignificant, as David, and the confident, in fact over-confident Bulkeley baseball machine, in the role of the mighty Goliah. As David threw the stone that felled Goliath so did the Academy wield their bats that wrested an 8 to 6 victory from the mighty Bulkeley machine.

It remained for a little midget of a ball player, small it stature but stout of heart to inspire his teammates with a confidence that could not be denied. This lovable little youngster, hardly knee high to a grass-hopper threw the Bulkeley team into confusion and the name of Edward G. (Shorty) Hamil will be written in the history of the Academy's baseball history in glowing letters. Shorty was sent in to bat for Healy in the eighth inning with one gone and two on base and the score at 6 to 2 in Bulkeley's favor. It was just such a situation for which Coach Brigham had been saving the lad. Shorty shouldered his bat, apparently calm, but he admitted later he was not so calm at that, and was to say. Parisi, the opposing pitcher grinned, in derision when Shorty faced him, in fact the whole Bulkeley team smiled. They drew up close. Parisi tried to pitch to Shorty, one ball, two balls, strike, three balls, the second strike. Right here Shorty did some tall thinking. The next ball was almost sure to come over. Shorty signaled for the squeeze play. The ball came up as big as a balloon and Shorty laid down the neatest little bunt that had ever been seen on the Academy diamond.

Parisi was dumbfounded, dazed in fact. Sheflott was equally surprised. Both started for the ball, both hesitated, Sheflott going back to the plate and Parisi pouncing on the ball Shorty was streaking it for first base as fast as his little legs would carry him. Cimikowski who was on third was crossing the plate as Parisi managed to get the ball, too late it Sheflott. It was the break of the game. Bulkeley was completely routed and the Academy was inspired with the old traditional fighting spirit. Hit followed hit until six runs had pattered across the plate and the mighty Goliath was breathing his last. She had become an idol of fandom in a short space of a few minutes and h won a stronger place in the hearts of all loyal Academy followers.

Another Academy boy who won a lasting place in the hearts of followers of Academy baseball was Lloyd Jarvis, slender youth with arm of steel and heart as strong. Jarvis faced a gigantic task in subduing the Bulkeley crew of batters but he was equal to the occasion. In spite of ragged support by his teammates in the early innings of the game this lad fought on giving all he had to the glory of his school. Such a spirit could not go unrewarded, victory must be his and his it was. Jarvis fought every inch of the way giving nothing but his best, although in the last few innings, the strain was telling on him. In the fourth inning he was hit under the heart by a pitched ball which hurt him painfully but he pitched on and on till the end. The strain showed most in the eighth inning when he drove in two runs with his third hit of the game. He made second and when he scored from second on another hit he was completely exhausted. He was revived and took his place in the ninth and performed with brilliance, accounting for two of the putouts in this inning, one a high fly and then striking out the last man. To Jarvis goes words of credit and glory and he is one of the finest of ball players that ever stuck a spike in the Academy diamond. Norwich is proud of him.

Bulkeley, over confident from the start, was dumbfounded by the result. The unexpected had happened. They, the mighty Bulkeley machine of four years making had been defeated. Defeated by an opponent whom they considered almost unworthy of their attention. Boastful to the extent that they told they would beat the Academy worse than they did before, they lost through their failure to recognize that they were playing a team fighting for the glory of their school. After the game the Bulkeley team to a man looked as though they had been hit on the head by some heavy object. They could not believe they had been beaten, but beaten they were and very much so. Coach Canty could scarcely realize that his visions of an undefeated team had suddenly been shattered, yes, rudely shattered. His mistake was when he pulled Tillie Daniels out of the game in the sixth inning so that he was unable to put his star hurler in to stem the crushing tide of defeat in the eighth inning. Had he left Tillie in the game he might have averted the catastrophe.

It was a game of thrills in more ways than one. The Academy played such slack baseball in the early innings that it seemed almost impossible that they could win. Only two players kept their heads and showed any real strength, these were Jarvis and Johnny Greene, an center field. Johnny played a nice game and his outfield work was brilliant, he saving the Academy in several critical stages.

Many times the Academy would seem to have the game within its grasp only to lose through the dumb base running of its members. Eddie Busch was the chief offender and his erratic and foolish running on the bases spoiled several chances of almost sure scores. The work in the field was brilliant at times and very ragged at others, but all this is forgotten in the joy of victory.

Bulkeley started off with one run in the first inning, a run that came as the result of an error and then a hit. In the Academy half of this inning Carroll was walked but was picked off first base by Sheflott. This was the first of the bad breaks made by the Academy. Jarvis in this inning hit his first double of the game but was unable to count.

Bulkeley failed to count in the second as did the Academy. The Academy had two men on in the third inning but through poor base running by Busch were unable to score. Bulkeley was held during the fourth inning and then the Academy started what looked like a rally. Jarvis was hit, Buech being selected to run for him. Hinrichs singled as did Eddie Brewer, filling the sacks. Again Busch gummed up the works by foolishly taking chances although the coaches and crowd pleaded with him to play it safe. As a result Sheflott caught him flat-footed off the third bag. Cimikoski fanned and Burke flied out, ending a bright prospect of scoring.

The fifth inning proved disastrous for the Academy. Barry hit to center the ball falling between Brewer and McGowan. Hutchison also hit to center. Sheflott popped out to Jarvis Booth crashed out a single and Barry and Hutchinson scored. McGowan let Daniels' hit trickle through his legs, Booth going to third. Gaetano singled through the infield to Brewer who failed to stop the ball and the two runners scored. This ended the scoring but a five to 0 score looked bad for the Academy.

The Academy drew their first score when Carroll singled and was advanced by McGowan's hit. Jarvis doubled scoring Carroll from second but McGowan was held at third. This ended the Academy scoring.

Neither team scored in the sixth although the Academy and Bulkeley each had a man on. The seventh saw each team score one run. Bulkeley's run coming as a result of Booth's being hit and a double by Mansfield. The Academy run came when Johnny Greene singled and was advanced when Carroll was passed and scored on Gaetano's error. Carroll was caught at the plate in trying to score on an infield ball. This ended the Academy's chances.

Bulkeley was apparently well satisfied and then came the eventful eighth and the downfall of the Bulkeley team. Eddie Brewer, first man up, was thrown out. Cimikowski was hit by a pitched ball, Burke drew a pass and then along came Hamil. Little Shorty threw the monkey-wrench in the machinery of the well oiled Bulkeley machine. He crossed the opposition all up and Cimikowski scored on Shorty's bunt. Greene was passed and Coach Canty realized what he had done by pulling out Daniels but it was too late. Carroll came through with a crashing double to left field scoring Burke and Sullivan, who ran for Hamil. Then McGowan fanned and the Academy pleaded with Jarvis for a hit. Lloyd answered the prayers of his schoolmates with a nice single into left field that scored Greene and Carroll. Jarvis going to second on the throw to the plate. Then Hinrichs hit for two bases scoring Jarvis. Brewer went out second to first.

Bulkeley made a gallant stand in the ninth but to no avail. Booth the first man up crashed one to the fence but was held at second. Brewer caught his cousin's (Collin's) high fly for the first out. Jarvis took Gaetano's skyscrapper and then struck out Mansfield, and David had slain the mighty Goliath. The score:

SO. WINDHAM LOSES TO FAST NEW LONDON TABS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 17—Although South Windham outhit the Tabs nine, a member of the City league, the visitors were unable to bunch their safeties and they dropped this afternoon's game to the Tabs by a 6 to 3 score. Bill Smith, first man to face Matthewson in the first inning, made the first home run of his career as a baseball player, when he hit for a circuit to left field. Smith's hitting was a feature of the afternoon, the former Bulkeley star garnered a double, single and a four ply wallop in four times at bat. The game was rather even throughout, but opportune hitting in the fifth for the Tabs gave them the verdict. Score:

BROWNS BEAT RED SOX FOR THE SECOND TIME

St. Louis, Mo., May 17—(A. P.)—The Browns made it two in a row over the Boston Red Sox, winning this afternoon's contest 11 to 6. ### POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Daybreak

A wind came up out of the sea,
And said, "O mists, make room for me!"

It hailed the ships, and cried, "Sail on,
Ye mariners, the night is gone!"

And hurried landward far away,
Crying, "Awake! it is the day!"

It said unto the forest "Shout!
Hang all your leafy banners out!"

It touched the wood-bird's folded wing,
And said, "Oh bird, awake and sing!"

And o'er the farms, "O chanticleer,
Your clarion blow; the day is near!"
It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down, and hail the coming morn!"

It shouted through the belfry tower,
"Awake, O bell! proclaim the hour."

It crossed the churchyard with a sigh,
And said, "Not yet! in quiet lie."
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

To Daffodils

Fair daffodils, we weep to see
You haste away so soon;
As yet the early-rising sun
Has not attain'd his noon.
Stay, stay
Until the hasting day
Has run
But to the evensong;
And, having pray'd together, we
Will go with you along.

We have short time to stay as you,
We have as short a Spring;
As quick a growth to meet decay,
As you, or anything;
We die,
As your hours do, and dry
Away
Like to the Summer's rain;
Or as the pearls of morning's dew,
Ne'er to be found again.
—Robert Herrick.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Wild animals are always a source of interest to boys and girls of all ages. No doubt a great many of the members of the Wide Awake Circle have observed animals about their haunts and perhaps many are familiar with the habits of some of the elusive animal family.

It is interesting to know that among the wild animals, well known as goodfathers there are none so faithful as our old enemy, the fox. He is one of the most faithful of animal fathers and incidently he is an ideal husband for Mrs. Fox. He always makes it a point to supply the food for the family and will often go hungry himself that Mrs. Fox and her babies might have plenty to eat.

Sometimes Mrs. Fox and the baby foxes are sleek and fat while Mr. Fox is thin and wan. This is because he has been sacrificing that the mother and her little ones might have plenty to eat. When the young foxes are quite small about the only part Mr. Fox plays in the home life of the animal family is to hunt food and bring it to the den for the mother. This gives the mother fox plenty of time to devote to the rearing of the family, and incidently she does not have to expose herself to enemies while hunting food.

Father fox also keeps guard at the den and when an enemy of the family is seen approaching the neighborhood he warns Mother Fox in his own peculiar way so that she can hide or prepare to fight for her life and the lives of the little ones if necessary. The baby foxes, called cubs, are born in the spring. They are helpless and blind for two weeks but at the end of that time they become as active and playful as the pups of our domestic dogs.

As they continue to grow they are taught sound and scent by the wise old mother fox who makes them hunt for their food which she hides away in a corner. Then they are taught to hunt mice through the grass and also to distinguish "danger" sounds as they hear them. When they are about three months old they are taken on a hunt by the mother fox and soon become as wise and cunning as their parents.

Finally the family breaks up, generally in the fall. Father Fox refuses to provide any more food for the young foxes and they are driven away from the home den to make homes of their own and to shift for themselves.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Clothing

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a letter about clothing. We wear clothing to protect us from the sun's rays to keep us warm and to be decent. There are seven chief sources from which clothing is made.

Wool, silk, cotton, linen, rubber, leather, furs.

Wool keeps one warm so is worn in the cold weather.

Silk, unless of a heavy quality is worn mostly in summer because it is cooler. Cotton is worn more commonly because of its cheapness and it is not as warm as wool. Linen is worn mostly in summer as it is cool and absorbs moisture easily. Rubber is used for protection against rain, snow or mud. Leather is used for footwear because it is strong enough to protect our feet while walking. Furs are worn for warmth in cold weather.

A person should not wear too much clothing in doors but should protect himself when going out doors in cold weather.

Clothes should not be worn too tight around the waist. Tight unnatural shaped shoes are bad for one.

Clothing should be kept clean and fresh. Underclothes should be changed at least once a week but better twice. In hot, sweaty, summer weather it is well to change the clothes daily. Coats, furs and other wool clothes should be hung on the line to air very often in order to remove the dust and germs. Handkerchiefs should never be left laying around and should be boiled when washed.

One should never wear other clothing or wipe on a towel others have used.

One should never wear the same clothes at night that have been worn during the day.

Hot baths should be taken at night when going to bed and cold baths in the morning. I hope all the Wide Awakes enjoy reading my story.

EMMA ROODE, Age 13.

Government of Health

Dear Uncle Jed: One of the five chief purposes of government is to protect the health of its citizens.

The national government forbids people with diseases from entering this country. The nation makes experiments to know more about certain diseases to help prevent their spread and find cures for them. Ships are kept six feet from wharves to prevent rats which carry diseases from entering ports, and gang planks are put down only when necessary. Goethals made the Panama Canal possible by improving health conditions there. The prohibition amendment had health improvement as one of its aims.

The state of Connecticut has a state board of health which consists of six members and a commissioner appointed by the governor for six years. Their work is to enforce the state health laws. Under this board there are county health officers. The county health officers appoint a health officer in each town.

The town health officers can send samples of milk to be inspected at Middletown. He sees that the streets are kept clean. Sink drains must be kept covered. He quarantines sick people with contagious diseases. He can order schools closed where there has been a contagious disease. He can have water tested for its purity. He inspects public buildings for points of health.

The state laws require theaters to be fumigated, forbid spitting in public places, and require two and a half hours physical education weekly in the schools. The state maintains insane and tuberculosis hospitals. The state inspects barns of people selling milk yearly. The state requires bad tubercular cows killed.

A Successful Invention

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you and all the Wide Awakes about my successful invention. One afternoon my friend and I had nothing to do, so we thought we would make something.

We thought for just a moment and one of us suggested we make a radio. This radio was only to be a play one although it was successful. We gathered up all the things we could find that would be useful. After we had done this we had to select what to use.

At last we decided that we would have two tubes which were to be burned out electric light sockets. We also had two electric light sockets for the bulbs to set in, a piece of charcoal for I don't know what. The loud speaker we had was a funnel with a hose running to it, so one of us could talk through it.

The way we had it arranged was that we had the hose running back of a curtain to prevent anybody from seeing the person who talked through the hose. This was my first successful radio.

A Ride to Boston

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my trip to Boston. Last summer my father decided to take a trip to Boston. He took my mother, my sister and I with him. We went in our automobile. We started Sunday morning at half past seven. While we were riding we saw an accident. My father got out to help them. I was anxious to know if any one was hurt. I was very glad. As we went along we saw many interesting things. I saw some nice ducks. The ducks were in a big lot. As we neared Boston we had a punctured tire which took all the fun away. It took quite awhile to fix the tire. Finally it was fixed and we rode along. We didn't get to our destination until almost noon.

My Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: I read the stories of the Wide Awake Circle and found them very interesting. I thought I would write to you. The story I am going to tell you is about my kittens. Our kittens have names. One is Tommy and the other Tibett. The colors are yellow and white. I love them both. Tommy has double paws. When he puts his paw on a piece of meat he brings his paws up to his mouth and puts his meat into his mouth. I do hope you will like my story.

An Unexpected Prize

Dear Uncle Jed: Last October my grade entered a contest entitled, The Home Lighting Contest. When we had done all the contest told us to do, we handed our work to the teacher who sent them off to the chamber of commerce. Not expecting any prize it did not take us long to forget about the contest.

One day our teacher surprised the class by telling us that three men were to speak to us about the awarded prize of the contest. We were very glad but hope of us expected anything.

When the three men had finished talking one of the men handed a prize to one of my schoolmates and one to me. I was very surprised. I thanked them very much. The prize was a five dollar gold piece.

When my dad and mother who were very interested in the contest heard that I had won a prize they were very glad.

I hope all the Wide Awakes like my story.

A True Story

Dear Uncle Jed: I received the prize book you sent me entitled The Boy's Auto Camp and find it very very interesting. I am thanking you very much for it and am also writing you another story which is true.

One Hallowe'en Night my mother and father went to visit a sick friend in Norwich. My brothers were attending a Hallowe'en party in Baltic, this leaving my sister and I alone.

Seeing that my sister was sleepy I put her to bed. On coming down stairs, I heard a slight noise as if some one was scratching on the door. Thinking that my brothers with the rest of the party had planned to scare me I thought I would show them that I was not a coward so saying this I crept softly to the door and listened. This time the scratching seemed to be growing louder. I crept back where my flashlight laid and grasping it I crept back and turning the knob of the door I flung it open to find myself in the dark and gloomy night. I put on the flashlight to find my brothers were not there but that the noise was caused by a limb of the oak tree blown by the wind against the door. Every Hallowe'en night it seems to me that I can hear the noise yet.

My Kind Act

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as I was going downtown I saw a blind man. The blind man was tapping his cane on the sidewalk. I went over to him and asked him if he wanted to cross the street. He said that he did, but no one would help him. I took pity on him and helped him across. When I helped him to get on the sidewalk he said, "May God reward you."

My Visit to New York

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell about my first visit to New York. On my last birthday mother promised to take me for a trip to New York. As I never was there before I was anxious to see it. We took the train and as we rode along I kept looking out the window to see the different places. Finally we got to New York and I was very much excited as I never saw such a large railroad station. We took a bus ride on Fifth avenue and I shall never forget the sights we saw. We walked around in Central park and I was very interested in everything. I saw especially the animals. It was a very happy day for me.

An Automobile Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as we were finishing our day's journey we happened to stop just out side of a city named Troy, New York. We were to pitch our tent there and stay for the night. It was dark and we had to use the spotlight of our auto to see.

At this camp there were some other parties of campers, especially one party which was made up of four boys about 20 years old. These four boys were helpful to us and helped us put up our tent. They helped us carry water to drink and many other helpful things.

For supper we had ham and eggs which tasted very good after a four hundred and fifty mile ride. We slept that night on the ground but had a good time.

Making Friends With Animals

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the charm that makes it possible for man to make friendship with animals. This charm is stillness and quietness. These two make the animal think you are harmless. In the olden days when priests and monks listened to an animal coming they would sit quiet and still. Then the people used them as magicians who worked charms but this was not all true.

Many times I have sat very still for a long time and have had a woodchuck very near me. I hope the Wide Awakes will try this and see if it forms their friendship.

ARTHUR MILLIARD, Age 13.

The Schools of New York City

Dear Uncle Jed: There's a vast contrast between a city school and a country school.

I am now going to tell about a city school, which I attended. A public school of New York is not less than four stories high. That's quite a difference to our country schools.

The school which I went to had a seating capacity of two thousand children. For every subject there is a different teacher.

The school where I was enrolled gave entrance only to girls. We had two large gymnasiums, in which the girls did their gymnastics, dances and other healthy games.

Our school went up to the 8th grade. Some studious girls took up the subject of chemistry, which needed a large laboratory. In this laboratory there were many numerous things. All things that go with the subject of chemistry were there.

We had two large cooking rooms. In one rom there were 10 gas ranges; also kitchenettes. Each girl had to have a cooking outfit, which was cooking cap, apron, holder and bag. It was much joy to the girls to cook, as their elders do.

Our school took up four blocks. You can imagine our auditorium if it was just as wide and long as that. In this auditorium we had many pleasing entertainments. The principal and teachers were assembled with us.

We had many singing rooms. All musical instruments are in these rooms. There was a large orchestra to entertain the school.

Now you can see what a difference it is between a city and country school. I think a child of a city school has more advantages over a country school child.

I wish all the Wide Awakes could come to the school I went to. It would give them many interesting facts, pleasure and joy.

Hoping you will enjoy reading my letter, I remain, a Wide Awake.

His Baby Brother

Dear Uncle Jed: I read the Wide Awake Circle letters and I think they are nice. I want to tell you about my school teacher. She is very nice, and we all like her. I have two sisters and one brother goes to school with me. I am the oldest girl and I like to go to school. I have a baby brother, that I take care of. We have nice neighbors. The children come often and play with us and have a good time.

The Museum of Natural History

Dear Uncle Jed: A couple of weeks ago we had vacation so I went to New York. I visited many places of interest but I like the Metropolitan Museum of Natural History best.

The museum is located on seventy-seventh street. As you enter there are information booths on either side. Around this are many meteorites three very large ones from Alaska.

There were many wings. One was for a demonstration of the like of Eskimos. There were imitations of men and women, their canoes, utensils and clothing. In one case were many fine pieces of art from whalebone. In another was a winter igloo and one half built. One was open to show how it was furnished. From the house led a long tunnel which turned at one end where the dogs slept. The summer home was made of skins standing by a river in which were fish.

In another wing Indians were the chief subject. Clothes, wampum, beads, houses, canoes, warships, weaving of mats, cooking, and fish were shown all in different cases. Specimens of Pueblo, Eastern, Peru and other Indian lives were shown.

One wing was devoted to birds another to paintings, another for stones, another for wood and food. Some day soon I'll write again on other wings.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Teeter Tries an Old Trick

Who seeks suspicion to allay
Oft gets results the other way.
—Unc' Billy Possum.

Unc' Billy Possum chuckled to himself as he strated on out of the alders to the shore of the Smiling Pool. "If Brer Rabbit hadn't talked about aiggs

"Ah reckons ah is too ol' to be fooled by such ol' tricks as that, Sister Teeter," said he to his self, and if Ah hadn't happened to overhear him Ah wouldn't have thought of aiggs this mo'ning," said he. "But now Ah do think of aiggs it seems lak Ah caint think of anything but aiggs. Brer Rabbit done been down here and Brer Rabbit done say that those aiggs were pretty, and over yonder is Brer Teeter the Sandpiper, so Ah knows whose aiggs Brer Rabbit saw. Somewhere around here 'll Mrs. Teeter is sitting on those aiggs."

Teeter had flown off with a sharp note of warning the very instant he saw Unc' Billy Possum, and Unc' Billy knew that warning was intended for Mrs. Teeter. He only grinned more broadly and craftily than before, and continued on his way.

Suddenly right in front of Unc' Billy appeared a little fluttering bird tumbling along over the pebbles as if something was very wrong with her and she couldn't fly. She was giving little cries of distress and fright. Unc' Billy stopped for a moment to look at her and grin even more broadly than before.

"Ah reckons Ah is too ol' to be fooled by such an ol' trick as that Sister Teeter," said he. "You ought to know yo' cain't fool Unc' Billy in any such way as that. Yo' cert'nly does it nicely, but Ah knows, and yo' knows Ah knows, that there isn't a thing in the world the matter with yo'. Yo' 'pears to me to be too anxious, Sister Teeter. Ah reckons that nest yo' don' want me to find is right near here. If it wasn't yo' wouldn't be anxious to lead me away."

So Unc' Billy paid no more attention to frantic little Mrs. Teeter. She fluttered almost under his nose. She acted as if a wing was broken, and dragged it along the ground. She did everything she could think of to get Unc' Billy to try to catch her, for thus she hoped to lead him away. But, as Unc' Billy said, it was too old a trick to fool him. He knew exactly what she was doing and the more anxious she became the more sure he was that he was close to that nest and those eggs. That old trick wouldn't work. He didn't make so much as one try to catch her, although she almost brushed his nose with one wing.

Now Mrs. Teeter was smarter than Unc. Billy thought. In this case there was a trick within a trick. She knew that he knew all about the old trick of pretending to be hurt so as to lead an enemy away, and she also knew that he knew that usually the more anxious a mother became the nearer at hand are the things she is anxious about. In this case she had flown to meet Unc' Billy as soon as she had heard Teeter's warning, so that nest with those precious eggs was not so near after all. But she acted just as if it was, and as if she was worried almost to death. She acted for all the world as Unc' Billy had more than once seen a mother bird act when he was close to her nest.

So smart, clever old Unc' Billy Possum wasn't fooled in one way, and in another he was completely fooled. He hadn't a doubt, not a doubt, that those eggs were right close by.

NEW LONDON FORTUNE-TELLER LEFT WOMAN OLD PAPERS FOR BANK-NOTES

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 17—Alleging that a woman who represented herself as a fortune teller had stolen $165 from her residence, Christine, wife of Edward Evelyn, 12 Richards street, Saturday afternoon requested the police to use their efforts to apprehend the alleged thief. Mrs. Evelyn declared that the day before she was visited by the supposed fortune teller, who remained at the Evelyn house a considerable length of time. Finally the fortune teller agreed to tell the past, present and future of Mrs. Evelyn for 50 cents, but insisted that Mrs. Evelyn go to Winthrop's Cove, a short distance away, and hurl an object into the water, this act being an important part of the disclosure of the fortune. Mrs. Evelyn consented and did as she was requested. When she returned to her home and heard her fortune she paid the woman and the latter left. A short time later when Mrs. Evelyn visited the hiding place of her money, she discovered that it was gone and that in its place was a quantity of paper cut to the size of federal bank notes.

At the council meeting Monday evening, the resignation of Frank L. McGuire as director of law will be presented and acted upon without any unnecessary formality. There isn't any doubt that Mr. McGuire is mad. He is said to have regarded the criticism of his opinion rendered to the council after deep study of the matters submitted to him for judgment, feeling that he was being nagged by a man who was the tool of others far more crafty in the affairs that come before the council. The opinion prevails that Philip E. Hankey will be tendered the office now that Mr. McGuire has said he will not continue in the service of the city. It is assumed that the votes of Messrs Whiton, Clark, Streeter and Scott will be cast to accept the resignation of Mr. McGuire. Mr. Scott voted against Mr. Hankey when the latter was succeeded by Mr. McGuire, and he has since stated in open meeting that he voted against Mr. Hankey conscientiously and in absolute good faith when the latter was ousted as director of law. Now the question is whether Mr. Scott has been converted to the support of Mr. Hankey, and whether he will vote to place him in the position he helped to get him out of when Mr. McGuire was chosen for it. The resignation of Mr. McGuire was a surprise to the council. It was held that Mr. McGuire could win against his enemies if he decided to stick to his place. It is likely that there will be some lively discussion Monday night of the situation that has developed, but whatever is said and done will not be of a nature that will induce Mr. McGuire to retain his position, if the council declines to accept his resignation. His law practice is said to be of such volume that he has sacrificed private business since he has held the office he now holds and he will gladly retire from the position.

James Lillicrap, a sailor on Payne Whitney's yacht Whileaway, which is being fitted out at her winter quarters in Shaw's cove, became possessed of the idea that he was the owner of the yacht when he loaded up with red wine and white mule, so he boarded the yacht Narada and there he made trouble among the crew. He thought he could box a compass and to prove what he thought right he mixed up with Capt. Lawrence Gross. The latter called up the police and Lillicrap went to the police station where he spent the night. Saturday morning he told his story to Judge Prince, saying that he had money enough to get to New York, whence he came. Judge Prince was of the opinion that if Lillicrap got out of town he would be doing a wise thing so the man was allowed to go without further penalty.

In the finding Deputy Coroner Brown exonerates Starweski and Frank E. Smith, 188 Central avenue, Norwich, of criminal responsibility in connection with Bergen's death. Bergen was walking along the Thames river highway bridge and in the middle of the highway. Smith's car proceeding easterly struck Starweski, causing the sailor to be thrown to the opposite side of the bridge and directly in front of the truck, which was headed for New London, en route to New York. Sergeant Patrick Murphy later apprehended two young men in the vicinity of the Zepp garage, but Zepp was unable to identify them as the visitors to his premises.

Guiseppi De Nono, 16 Shaw street, was arrested shortly after last midnight charged with intoxication. He was released later when his employer, John Turello became surety on a bond of $50 for Di Nono's court appearance.

Di Nono visited some places Saturday night where liquor is sold and there became intoxicated. When he started for his home, the basement of the Turello block, Bank street, where he is employed as janitor, Di Nono either had lost or could not find the key to the rear entrance. Di Nono then started to gain access to the building by opening one of the windows. His act was observed by a neighbor, who communicated with the police, stating that a man was attempting to force entrance to the place. Patrolman Dennis Murphy was sent to the block and there he found Di Nono still endeavoring to get in. # FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

New York, May 17—Most of the financial and commodity markets pointed upward last week.

The "bull" movement in the stock market was frequently interrupted by profit-taking sales and bear selling, as speculative interest shifted from group, but some sharp gains were recorded in the public utilities, motors, foods, merchandising issues and high-priced industrial specialties, particularly American Can and Mack Trucks, which established the highest prices in their history. Coppers, oils, rails, equipments and steels showed temporary bursts of strength.

The bond market showed uniform strength, domestic liens reaching the highest average levels in eight years and the foreign issues touching the highest average in three years. The strong character of investment buying tested to the continued ease of the credit situation.

Erratic movements continued in the wheat market, but futures showed substantial gains on the week. Cotton prices drifted lower after a temporary rally based on reports of increased consumption. Net advances exceeded net declines in the other commodity markets.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone, demand sterling held above the commonly accepted "good export point," and French francs received better support on the announcement that official discussions would take place on the funding of America's debt. Argentine exchange made a sharp response to the announcement that free gold market would be restored in that country next month.

STATE SPENDS $61,000,000 IN 20 YEARS BUILDING ROADS

Successive stages of development that have marked roadbuilding in Connecticut are shown in a statement issued Friday by the state highway department to mark the thirtieth anniversary of its formation, which comes July 1st.

Three definite steps in connection with the improvement of the state's road are pointed out. When the department was organized in 1895 its principal business was to "sell" to the public the "good roads" idea. This was long before the present era of congested automobile and auto truck traffic. The next period was about ten years later. With the remarkable progress of the automobile industry the problems was to satisfy the demand for good roads. This meant principally the rapid building of roads for mileage rather than lasting quality. The third and last period seems to be at the present time when the state's great problem is to convert mileage already built into higher quality and higher types of roads to support the enormous traffic of all varieties constantly passing over them.

In the thirty years that Connecticut has been devoting concerted attention to the building of roads, an aggregate of $61,000,000 has been disbursed by its highway department. During the first decade, from 1895 to 1905, when the foundation of the "good roads" movement was laid in this state, $1,416,778.93 was expended. In the next ten years, ending in 1915, the state's highway disbursements grew fifteen times and totalled $15,026,392.13, as the demand for hard-surfaced roads began to assert itself.

From 1915 to 1924 the greatest development is indicated. During this time the state took forceful steps to bring its roadways to a point where they could endure the tremendous necessities of traffic. Expenditures in the last decade totalled $44,799,226.79, or an average of $4,000,000 a year, compared to $1,500,000 a year during the previous ten-year period and as against $100,000 a year during the first ten years.

Connecticut's first highway department in 1895 was operated under the triple headed commission plan. The commissioners were James H. MacDonald of New Haven, the late William R. McDonald and the late A. C. Sternberg. This organization was in force for two years. During the 26 years intervening, there have been but three highway commissioners in the state. In 1897 James H. MacDonald was appointed and held office until February 36th, 1918, when he was succeeded by Charles J. Bennett. John A. MacDonald, the present commiss

RESOLUTIONS IN RESPECT TO DEACON CHARLES B. BECKWITH

At a meeting of the church and congregation of the Franklin church, on Sunday, April 5th, 1925, the standing committee of the church were instructed to draw up appropriate resolutions in regard to Deacon Charles B. Beckwith, who passed away February 13th, 1925, at his home in Franklin, Connecticut.

We the Standing Committee of the church, do hereby express the deep loss sustained by the church and community, in passing to his Heavenly Home, of our brother, Deacon Charles B. Beckwith, and we hereby extend to his wife and family, our deepest sympathy and our sincere affection.

Mr. Beckwith was a man who stood four-square in every relationship in life.

As a devoted Husband and Father, he was kind, and loving, and considerate.

As a citizen he was noble and true; of sound integrity, and of stainless character. He was a true and faithful friend, cheerful and patient under all circumstances. As a Christian, he let his light so shine before men, that they seeing his good works, glorified the Father, who is in Heaven.

As a Deacon of the church, he was painstaking, thoughtful, and reverent his quiet kindly ways; his wise counsel and kindly consideration; and his unfailing good will to all, are cherished memories.

His faithful attendance upon divine worship, and the sacrifices he made in behalf of the church, are an example worthy of the emulation of us all.

It is our earnest prayer that the memory of this noble life may ever inspire and guide each one of us, until we meet together above, in the Father's House of Many Mansions.

CARD OF THANKS

We thank most sincerely everyone who has assisted in the care of our aunt during her illness and for kindnesses shown after her death, and for the flowers sent to her funeral.
MRS. JESSIE PARKHURST,
LELAND GREEN,
LESLIE GREEN.

JEWETT CITY

Miss Edna Sharkey was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Providence, Friday, for an operation for appendicitis which was performed Saturday morning. Miss Margery Leyden, R. N. for the Aspinook Co., a graduate of St. Joseph's, was her nurse until Sunday night.

Twenty-five dollars has already been promised toward a Fourth of July celebration, if it materializes.

The first annual meeting of the Jewett City Rifle club was held Thursday evening, when the following officers were elected.

President, Frederick Condie, vice president, George Gutknecht, treasurer, Dr. George H. Jennings, secretary, Paul Geist, Jr., range officer, Eugene Gutknecht. Henry Wallace was appointed to perfect necessary arrangements, for a clay pigeon shoot at an early date. Mr. Wallace is an enthusiastic scatter gun man, and holds several prizes for excellence in targets.

It is a deplorable fact, that the riflemen in the borough, have decreased to about a dozen. The healthful, out of door conditions attendant upon rifle shooting, as the season is opening should make its appeal to all lovers of the sport. The new board of officers are efficient and enthusiastic, and with Jewett City's excellent range records, it is believed that local marksmen will now rally to their support, in the proposed attempt to make the Jewett City club among the leaders of the crack teams of Connecticut.

A new star in town, with a back stop record of class, will be on the local nine. Thanks to the activity of P. W. Chase, it looks as though, after its long comatose state, local baseball was to take a new lease of life. The favorable history of baseball in Jewett City, dates back to the times, 40 years ago, when G. A. Ross sponsored the home team, and was as enthusiastic in its behalf as he was never failing, in his interest in its success.

The World Wide Guild Girl's met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Minnie Magor Shaw. After the business meeting there was a social time with refreshments. To Mrs. Shaw's surprise she was presented a picture, The Old Gate, painted by Fred Thompson. It was a gift to her on account of her recent marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Babcock, are to leave Peru the twentieth of May, arriving in New York the second of June. After a month's vacation they will go to Miami, Florida, where Mr. Babcock will be employed by the F. T. Ley Co., for whom he has worked the past three years in Peru.

At the last meeting of Pachaug Ladie's Aid Society at the parsonage the members brought a feast, instead of the usual lighter refreshments to surprise the pastor's wife. After the service of song at the table, Mrs. Forrest Needham, the president spoke of how much Mrs. J. P. Richardson, had done for the society, and of her unflagging interest in its welfare. She presented her a ten dollar gold piece in a morocco case. Mrs. Richardson expressed cordial thanks for the gift.

Old Cluey Watson was over to town Saturday and took a ride to Norwich by trolley, mainly to get needed repairs to his fish pole. Going down he reported that five words was about all he heard. "And she says no me."

Coming back the old man was a little put out by an exceedingly spooney young fellow and girl in the corner seat. Telling about it, he said, "At any rate calf love is the real thing, not bull."

Records are at hand telling of a meeting held in the local police station on the evening of the 17th of May, 25 years ago which are of interest, in connection with the first annual meeting of the local rifle team Thursday last. The account was written by the late W. H. Bennet; of Jewett City, at one time deputy game warden from New London county. On account of the date they serve as a coincidental proof of local interest in rifle and shot gun shooting, past and present. On the date mentioned, the Quinebaug Gun club was duly organized, and never in the history of this town did a more enthusiastic organization spring into being.

Of the same disease that has threatened the present team, lack of interest by the members, the Quinebaug Gun club, died a natural death, within the short space of a couple of years.

The list of members of the club organized in the spring of 1900, are of interest today. The names starred indicate those who have died.

FR. MCCABE COUNCIL NOTES ITS FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

Very Reverend Michael McCabe Council held its fourth anniversary banquet in Rioux Hall, Thursday evening with one hundred and ten present. The men met in Foresters' Hall and marched to Rioux Hall, when they found tables set in a hollow square, decorated with vases of spring flowers. Fancy caps were at each place. The stage was decorated with the American flag, the K. of C. emblem and flowers. Rev. J. J. McCabe was toastmaster. John J. Cahir was song leader, and he certainly kept things moving. The bachelors and the benedicts, those who could sing and those who could not, had to perform, and not only that, they had to sing the song they were told to sing. Gay serpentine streamers, thrown about the room during the evening added to the fun and decorations. A splendid dinner was served by the Jewett City restaurant. Their menu included:

Soups
Long Island Mock Turtle
Fruit Cocktail
Chicken Chop Suey, with pineapple
Lobster Patties
Filet Mignon Mushroom Sauce
Mashed Potato Green Peas
Pie a la Mode
Tea Coffee

Seated at table for speakers and honorary guests were: Rev. J. J. McCabe, Rev. J. J. Tyler, Jewett City; Grand Knight Richard Dudkowski, Warden Mathew Geary, Jewett City; Rev. John J. Keane and Daniel Coogan of Westerly; Rev. R. P. Morrissey, Plainfield, Rev. Ulric O. Bellerose, Taftville, Rev. Frederick R. Desautels, Bureau of Occum, State Advocate Jerome Collins of New London, District Deputies T. Frank Cunningham of Willimantic and John F. Hennon of Jewett City, Ex-senator William Fox, of New London. There was an address of welcome by toastmaster Rev. McCabe who spoke of the priest for whom the Council is named. The address of welcome was made by Warden and Ex-senator William Fox of New London gave an address on Independence of Thought. The second speaker was Rev. John J. Keane of Westerly on Practical Patriotism. There were brief addresses by District Deputies T. Frank Cunningham, Willimantic, and John F. Hennon of Jewett City; also by State Advocate Jerome Collins of New London and Daniel Coogan of Westerly.

Crandall's orchestra of Westerly furnished splendid music. The Star Spangled Banner closed the evenings entertainment. The committee in charge was: William McGovern Roger Guillet, John LeClaire and Joseph Barry.

NORWICH TOWN

The Forty Hours Devotion opened at the Sacred Heart church, at the 10 o'clock mass Sunday. Wiegand's mass was sung by the choir. At the offertory, Mrs. Morgan Cronin sang "O Salutaris" by Wiegand. The organist, Miss Elizabeth A. Malone directed the music. While the choir sang Pange Lingua, the long procession of boys and girls of the Sunday school formed, led by an altar boy carrying the cross. The altar boy with the censer and the priest bearing the Blessed Sacrament, were preceded by a company of little girls, strawing blossoms from decorative baskets. The girls wore dainty white dresses, white hair ribbons and had green wreaths. The altar decorations consisted of flowering plants, palms, ferns, carnations and roses. Rev. Charles W. Brennan, pastor of the church, emphasized in an impressive manner the many spiritual benefits to be derived at this time and urged his parishioners to take advantage of the graces and blessings attached to the devotion, also to be faithful in attendance during the forty hours. It was announced that confessions will be heard this (Monday) afternoon and evening, by visiting priests, as was the rule during Sunday afternoon and evening. The masses will take place this (Monday) morning at five and seven-thirty, and at the same time Tuesday morning, when the seven-thirty mass, a high mass, will close the devotion.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH BEGINS 125th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

REV. E. C. DUNBAR,
Pastor

With services commemorative of the occasion members of the First Baptist church began on Sunday their two days' celebration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the church in Norwich, all departments of the church holding special services.

The church was most beautifully decorated for the anniversary, the color scheme being purple, silver and green. The altar presented a most attractive appearance, the mass baskets of flowers of varied hues making a most attractive setting for the service of thanksgiving and joy. Across the front of the arch over the pulpit was a banner on which was inscribed, "In Memory of our Fathers," and at either side of the platform were banners bearing the dates of the church, "1800 and 1925". Special floral decorations included a beautiful basket from the Central Baptist church, child of the mother church of Norwich, another basket of flowers from Mrs. Georgiana Tucker and daughter, Dorothea Tucker, in memory of Mr. and Mrs. John Francis, members of the First Baptist church during the first half century of its existence and another basket in memory of Deacon Edward Breed, from his son, Andrew H. Breed, and his daughter, Mrs. H. H. Gallup.

The service Sunday morning opened with an organ prelude played by Miss Dorothea Tucker, organist of the church after which the call to worship was given by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the church. This was followed by the niaea and invocation, after which the anthem, Jubilate Deo, Marsh, was rendered by the choir, Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, soprano; Miss Bernice E. Willey, contralto; William H. Douglas, tenor, and Herbert McNeeley, bass. The responsive reading was followed by a baptismal service and the scripture reading by Rev. E. E. Gates. The anthem, Sing Ye Faithful, Ashford, sung by the choir preceded the pastoral prayer and response. For the offertory Mrs. Wheeler and Miss Willey rendered a duet, Love that cannot fail me, By Wilson.

Sermon By Rev. E. E. Gates

The message of the morning was "Unfinished," and was delivered by Rev. E. E. Gates, of Hartford, general secretary of the Baptist state convention. Previous to his address Rev. Mr. Gates brought a message of greeting to the First Baptist church from over 25,000 Baptists in Connecticut, and congratulated the church on having reached the 125th anniversary. One hundred and twenty-five years, he said, is a long time to look back to or to look forward to. As one looks back over this long period of years, the feeling is brought home of the "faith of our fathers" and the "faith of our mothers," for if they had not been closely united in this great work the church would not be here today. Your church antedates the Connecticut Baptist state convention by 23 years and we congratulate you on the 125 years of good influence you have had in your home city, in the state, nation and in the [illegible] ruled out as the Master would have it.

The text [illegible] was from Hebrews 11, 39 and 40, "And these all, having had witness borne to them through their faith, received not the promise, God having provided some better thing concerning us, that apart from us they should not be made perfect."

When one reads these verses, said Rev. Mr. Gates there is a feeling of pleasure because the verse is unfinished, it means that the Apostles need us to complete their work, that the development of religion is not finished. Apostles were missionaries and their wonderful book is not finished. The book does not close with an amen or a benediction but leads one to believe that achievement, victory and inspiration come with doing. If the story were written to date many new names would appear on the pages, not a few of whom would be well known to Baptists. The Christian church must continue to add chapters to this book, not by pen or pencil, but by carrying on, by sending the goodness out into all the world. We must play our part as did those who were associated with Christ, of whom He said, all those who shall believe in Me through them. Our Baptist programme is to add chapters to that book in our home cities, the state, nation and world. We are carrying on the work of Christ for which they gave their lives and by their sacrifices have guarded the future. The apostles were men who through their faith raised themselves above the multitude and stand out like mountain peaks above the range. These pioneers in religion and in the Kingdom of God need a following or their work has been in vain. The Norsemen discovered America long before Columbus but they had no following and their work went in vain. Columbus was followed by thousands and today our country is great among the countries of the world. God buries the workers but the work goes on. Workers for the church have laid down their tools when their work was done, but others have taken them up and carried on the work. All work is incomplete unless we carry it on. Our work is evangelistic, we gather the world into the Kingdom of God, for which Christ died. May the work of this church always go on. I pray for this church and its future. May it continue to bear the image of the eternal of our Savior, Jesus Christ our Lord.

Church School Session

The Church school session opened at noon in charge of Superintendent Walter M. Cowan, who briefly outlined the history of the school from its organization in 1804 as the First Baptist Sabbath School society, down to the present day. The first known records of the school, he said are found in 1867 when the membership was thirty. In 1882 the membership had reached 275 and the average attendance was 136 for the year.

In introducing Rev. Charles H. Ricketts as the speaker for the session, Mr. Cowan said that he felt sure that Rev Mr Ricketts had always had an interest in the first church and that he was more than pleased to remember that Rev. Mr. Ricketts was also present in 1900 when the church celebrated its 100th anniversary. In opening his address Rev. Mr. Ricketts brought the greetings from the Greeneville Congregational church, voicing the belief that the greatest thing on earth is the church of Jesus Christ and the societies dependent on it for their support. He spoke on the Religious Education of Young People, tracing the methods used by the Hebrews a thousand years before Christ. Systematic education of children has come down through the ages, he said. The Hebrews began with the child when it could only see and hear. The child saw things of reverential nature and later asked about them and was told. The father then gave instruction in the law, prophecy and history and when the child reached the fifth age he went to school for the Hebrews believed in compulsory education. In their 15th year they went to the academies, not unlike our present day academies, although they were more religious. Later came the dark ages when religious education of children went out of existence because of the power of Rome. In 1789 began the child education in England and in 1816 the first Sunday school in America was established. Now fully 15,000,000 children are receiving religious education from the Bible. America made one mistake when it let the Bible be taken from the public schools. We do not believe in secular teaching in the public school, but we doubt if any boy or girl was ever injured by the reading of the Bible.

United Young People's Service

A united young people's service was held at 6:30 in the evening with a large attendance. The leader was Lawrence Browning and the speaker was Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church, who gave an inspiring address on, Youth and The Church of the Future

Evening Service

Another congregation that filled every seat in the church was present for the evening services at 7:30 in which other churches of the city united, and the regular church quartette was assisted by the quartette of the Central Baptist church consisting of Mrs. William Crowe, Jr. soprano, Mrs. Reuben Potter, contralto; Frederick J. Maples, tenor, and Frank Steinke, bass.

After the organ prelude, the anthem God is Our Refuge (Morrison) was rendered in fine harmony by the combined quartettes, the invocation was delivered by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Dunbar, and the congregation sang the hymn, Come, Thou Almighty King. This was followed by the scripture reading by Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and the anthem, Festival Te Deum (Buck) by the quartettes. Following prayer by Dr. D. A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church, Mrs. Crowe rendered as the offertory solo, Send Out Thy Light (Adams).

The collection, which amounted to $40.58 was for the permanent fund to the Norwich Ministers' association.

Sermon, "Then and Now."

Following the hymn, Jesus, Still Lead on, the message of the evening was delivered by Rev. John Newton Lackey, pastor of the Central Baptist church, of Hartford and president of the Connecticut Baptist State convention.

He spoke in part as follows:

We are on historic ground tonight. The history of this church reaches far back into the early years of the Republic. It was established in eighteen hundred. The Declaration of Independence was only twenty-four years old. The constitution welding the thirteen independent nations into one, was only thirteen years old. John Adams, the second President of the Republic was in the White House. Norwich was a small village. The Connecticut Baptist convention was still unborn. The Congregational Church was the State church of Connecticut and remained so for the next eighteen years.

But it is not our purpose in this address to recount the history of this church or the century and a quarter history. To others who will appear on the program has been delegated this privilege, but we cannot refrain from just a little comparison of those days one hundred and twenty-five years ago with the days in which we are living today. The men and women who one hundred and twenty-five years ago came together with great earnestness to organize this church did not come to the place of meeting in automobiles. In fact they had never seen a railroad train, much less an automobile or an aeroplane. Oil-wells, submarines and skyscrapers were then things unknown. Civilization had not yet reached the machine gun, high explosive, poison gas, the dreadnaught and thirty-mile cannon. Telegraphs, telephones, ocean cables, and radios had not yet annihilated space and bound the world into a small neighborhood. There were no vaccinations and inoculations to prevent disease, no germs to destroy peace of mind, and no anesthesia to relieve pain. Society was not troubled by strikes, lock-outs, labor unions, or walking delegates. It was before the days of the locomotive, the truck, or the type-revolving printing press. There were no incubators, coal mines, Klondikes, commercial combines, or curb-stone brokers. Bolshevism, Socialism and Einstein theories had not yet caught the imagination of half the world. It was before the time of the ocean liner, summer resorts or the Republican party. Multigraphs, dictographs, addressographs and typewriters had not eliminated the needs of copy-books and ruined penmanship. Moving pictures, sunday supplements, and easy transportation had not yet come to tempt people from the House of Worship on the Lord's Day. Prize fights, football matches, and "world series" had not yet centered all interests and monopolized all conversation. It was before the days of the electric light, X-rays, trolley cars, beauty shops, bobbed hair and silk stockings.

No wonder people had time to go to Conventions! They lived the simple life. The march of progress had not caught them in its maelstrom. The church was the social and religious center of the community. The preacher had no rival. He was supposed to speak ex cathedra on all subjects; and no one presumed to doubt his opinion. How times have changed! Yet there are those who hark back to those days and expect a preacher to make the same stir in the community today as he did in those unrivalled days.

In those days the chief task of the minister was to preach. The preaching service was the principal service of the church. But today the church has multiplied its activities many fold. While the church building must never cease to be a place of worship, in this age it must be much more than that. The church must minister to the mental, social, recreational, and moral, as well as the religious life of its membership, if it is to hold the loyalty of its constituents. The old fashioned building consisting merely of an auditorium and perhaps one or two other rooms, is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. It had no place for children. The church that would succeed today must do in this twentieth century what Jesus did in the first, when, as the Word tells us "He set a child in the midst." The church of today is more carefully looking after the young life than in any other age of its history. It has begun to realize that it is better to claim people for Christ when they are young, "when the evil days come not and the years draw nigh when they shall say they have no pleasure in goodness and purity" than to spend so much time and effort in trying to "reclaim" them after sin has stamped its image and superscription upon them. So the church of today must be a regular bee-hive of activities. The minister today is much more than a preacher. He is a veritable captain of industry, of which the preaching is only a small part. The preacher of today must be a bigger man than he had to be one hundred and twenty-five years ago.

But let no one think from what I have said that I consider the pulpit an unimportant part of a minister's work. On the contrary, it is most important. The pulpit was then and is now the preacher's throne. If is there that he must establish his reign if he is to rule at all. It is there that he must win respect. It is there that he must wield his influence and power. If he fails there, he has failed in the most vital part of his work.

Brethren of the ministry, fellow workers for the Kingdom of God, let no man belittle your calling! The pulpit has not lost its power. The golden age of the Christian ministry is not in the past but in the future. Never did the Christian ministry offer greater opportunities of service, greater incentives to life investment, and greater calls for real sacrifice than it does today. One hundred and fifty years ago Voltaire declared that he was "living in the twilight of the Christian day." Poor, deluded old man! He was indeed living in the twilight of the Christian day, but it was the morning twilight, not the evening twilight. The poor old man thought that the Christian sun was setting behind clouds of doom, when it had scarcely risen above the horizon.

We hear the complaint that people do not go to church as they once did, and that they are losing their interest in the gospel, the church and religion. I do not believe the complaint is well founded. The miracle is that they go at all; that amid all the illurements of our intricate and complex society, this day of the moving picture, the symphonic concert, of distractions of every kind and fads of every sort; there is one topic which for fifty-two weeks in the year, for one hundred years in a century, can draw people out to hear it discussed by men of only ordinary ability with themselves.

There is nothing that this world needs so much as a revival of religion. The situation in which the world finds itself today is one of transition and peril. The world war brought many changes and in every phase of life we are meeting new problems. Old forms of government that have existed for fifteen hundred years have tumbled down before our very eyes. New nations are being born. People who cannot remember when they were not held in bondage are standing erect and taking their place among free peoples. Doors of wonderful evangelistic and missionary opportunity have opened up before us bringing to the church the greatest challenge of the Christian era.

But along with these opportunities have trooped a group of appalling dangers that make the careful student of world affairs stand aghast.

There are sinister forces at work that are aiming at the overthrow of society and the destruction of this marvelous civilization that it has taken the church two thousand years to build up at tremendous cost. A warweary world sees with horror the eastern sky all lighted up with the torches of red anarchy applied to almost one third the world. The grim monster is working its way westward, loudly boasting that it will soon have Christian civilization under its control. We are in fearful danger of a repetition of the dark ages of the medieval world. Bolshevism will destroy all that man has gained in a two-thousand year climb toward God. It would give us a civilization with Christ and the Church left out, a civilization that would not be worth preserving. Listen to Michael Bakunin, one of the leaders of the Red Movement in Russia, whose consuming passion is atheism and hate. "Let your own happiness be your own law," he said. "Tear out of your heart the belief in God. Until this is done, you will never know what freedom is. You must accustom yourself to destroy everything, the so-called good with the bad. For if an atom of the old world remains, the new world will never be created."

I ask you, what will this new world be if it is created in such a spirit? Is oppression any the less hateful in the hands of the mob, than in the hands of the despot, and has democracy ever done anything if it has rescued the world from the absolutism of the king only to hand it over to the absolutism of the man?

And this country is not free from this same deadly peril. The disgraceful scenes that have transpired at Herrin, Illinois should warn us that the peril is at our very doors. Lawlessness is rampant everywhere. Look at our list of murders. No other country under heaven has such a list. Look at our burglaries. No other nation can show records blacker than ours. Look at our lynchings. No other civilized nation has a record equal to ours. Look at our list of divorces. No other country has a record so shameful. Look at our strikes. In no other nations is the conflict between capital and labor so implacable and so bitter. And look at our list of scandals, commercial scandals and political scandals. One after another they come until the heart of the people is made sick. Every little while some new form of rottenness appears. I think that we are all agreed that the greatest need of the world today is a revival of religion.

It is the supreme task of the church of this twentieth century to bring religion into national and international life. The church must baptize our commerce, our industry and our politics into the name and teachings of Jesus. And when we have done this we shall have a revival.

We ministers will never see a revival in our churches until we preach a positive gospel. Too many of us like to air our views in controverted subjects, doctrines the truth or falsity of which no one as yet knows, and some of which we cannot be sure until we no longer see through this glass darkly. "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." This is our gospel, this is our message. And we are recreant to our trust when we preach any other gospel. When I carry the Bible into the realm of scientific controversy, I am taking it entirely out of the realm where it was intended to be an authority. The Bible is a textbook on religion, and it is faithful to its trust. It speaks with infallible authority there. In the relation of the soul to God the Bible is an infallible guide. It needs no defense. Christ's preacher is to be a witness rather than an advocate. Christ's ambassador is to proclaim Christ's message rather than defend it.

Paul said he was not ashamed of the gospel of Christ. But what was Paul's gospel? It was certainly not the New Testament, for the New Testament had not yet appeared. It was not even the Old Testament. It was the "Good News" of Christ—of his coming, his life, his work, his teaching, his sacrifice, his divine sonship. That was Paul's gospel and he never wearied of proclaiming it.

Again we shall have a revival when we awaken the world to a sense of sin. There has crept into our churches a sort of easy universalism in belief, and the church has failed to make men feel that they are personally responsible for their sins, and that unless sin is repented of, it will shut us away from God. What men need today is to be brought to a sense of the awfulness of sin, regardless of the progress of science, sin is the same terrible thing that it has always been.

The church must never cease to give the invitation, "Come unto me." But an invitation that does not contain more than just "the word "Come" may lead eventually to selfishness. Our evangelism must have a bigger invitation, a bigger message. It must be a call to service. Paul considered himself saved for a particular purpose,—"to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ." Christ not only saves us from, but he saves us unto. Christianity not only bestows unspeakable benefits, but it imposes inescapable obligations. The very first invitation that Jesus gave to a disciple was that to the men on the shore of Galilee when he said, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." Catching men is a duty to which Christ calls every follower. He said, "If any man would be my disciple, let him come and take up his cross daily and follow." Bearing our cross is a task to which Christ calls us. He said, "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel to every creature." Evangelism and Christian missions is an obligation of every Christian. And if a man repudiates these obligations he is not a follower of Christ. And we shall have a revival when we can make our members realize their Christian obligations.

The service concluded with the benediction by Rev. Dr. Lackey and the organ postlude.

POETRY

The Great Imperative

For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that one died for all, therefore all died; and he died for all, that they that live should no longer live unto themselves, but unto Him who for their sakes died and rose again.—2 Cor. 5:14, 15.

Man craves a master; greets the clear, strong "Must"
That o'er his heart and mind asserts its sway,
And holds its goal before him, all the way,
Compelling him all else beneath to thrust,
Come Learning, Pride, Ambition, Gain—to each,
And others like; Man yields himself to find
A granted mastery thralls where it may bind,
And taunts with goal that shrinks or nearer reach.
But when the Soul, by deep, stern lesson taught,
Is shown the Mastery of the risen Lord
And learn constraining "Must" with which is fraught
His wondrous love—'tis then commanding word
From that great Source with power supreme is brought That more and more brings all in glad accord
—Salley Neill Roach in Sunday School Times.

House-Cleaning Time

A happy, happy home was our,
Despite a little grime.
Before to some one it occurred
It was house-cleaning time.

Then everything was in its place,
And say, what was the hurt
If here and there in looking round
You found a little dirt?

Now everything is all upset;
The air is full of dust,
And many troubles we endure,
Because, forsooth, we must.

The rugs all out on the line,
The polished floors are bare,
And everything is upside down,
With chaos everywhere.

But never mind, 'Twill soon be done,
Relief is almost here,
And then for dust and dirt until
House-cleaning time next year!

A forgotten sealed shelf in a Liberty (Mo.) shoe store disclosed 20 pairs of shoes never worn, that had been there since 1850. Dainty dancing slippers for women of hoop-skirt days and sturdy shoes with copper toes for boys were among the interesting specimens that were placed on exhibition as examples of the old-time shoemaker's art.

The United States army has developed a gas mask for horses. When in the danger zone the mask is worn rolled over the forehead, so it can be quickly slipped on to the horse. A magician, who played at New Bedford, Mass., sauntered over to a fruit stand there and bought three oranges. He cut the first one in half and "extracted" a $10 bill, and from the other two he took $5 and $20 bills. When he asked for more oranges, the fruit dealer refused to sell them to him. Later the magician learned that the Italian had cut up a whole box of oranges in search of more money, says the Boston Globe.

Beds of fossil bones of hippopotamus, mammoth, aurochs, giant deer and other ice age species were found recently in London at Charing Cross in the course of excavating for the construction of a new building. A great part of the land London stands on is the bed of a prehistoric Thames, which is rich in fossil remains. Stone age implements are occasionally turned up as well as bones of animals bearing evidence of having been killed by hunters in early times.

The natives of Guiana in South Africa, have a system of enumeration of their own, of which the human hand is the basis. They count on the fingers until five is reached, when they denote the number by a hand. Six is a hand and first finger and ten is two hands, but when twenty is reached a new name is used. Twenty is denoted by a man and forty by two men. Forty-five would be two men and a hand, and forty-six two men, hand and first finger. It is not a complicated system, but it requires practice to use it freely.

The bell of the Episcopal church at Williamsburg, Va., has a legend to account for its sweet tone. The foundry in which the bell was being made in 1761 was situated outside of London. Queen Anne visited there with the duchess of Marlborough. As the composition was being heated the queen asked if it was possible to add to the sweetness of the tone. Her majesty was informed that silver in the metal in the rim of the bell would mellow the tone. She immediately gave the workmen all the silver she was wearing and commanded her attendants to do the same.

PROVIDENCE ATTORNEYS HELD IN DIVORCE SCANDAL

Two Have Been Lodged in Jail Under Bail of $40,000 and $50,000—Result of Alleged "Divorce Mill" Evidence Laid Before the County Grand Jury—Seventeen Indictments Returned Against Leonard W. Horton and Nine Against Fancis P. Dougherty, His Law Partner—Promise is Made of Sensational Developments.

Providence, R. I., May 18—Two Providence attorneys were lodged in jail here tonight under bail of $40,000 and $50,000 as the result of 26 indictments reported by the Providence county grand jury in special session late today. After evidence has been laid before it concerning an alleged elaborate "divorce mill" serving scores of persons from outside Rhode Island seventeen indictments were returned against Leonard W. Horton, master in chancery, and nine against Francis P. Dougherty, his law partner. Four of the indictments, charging conspiracy, named both men. According to Attorney General Charles P. Sisson the persons named in these reside outside the state of Rhode Island and are not lawyers.

Arraigned in superior court immediately after they were indicted, both Horton and Dougherty pleaded not guilty to all the charges. Bail was fixed at $50,000 in the case of Horton, by Judge J. Jerome Hahn, and Dougherty was required to provide $40,000. Failing to provide bail, they were remanded to jail.

Decision to summon the special grand jury, according to the attorney general, came after more than 100 recent divorce cases involving chiefly residents of New York and Connecticut, had been investigated.

Horton was indicted seven times for subornation of perjury, once for making false certification of a public officer, twice for uttering false certifications, six times for forgery, and once for forgery and false uttering. Dougherty, singly was indicted once for forgery, once for subornation of perjury, although perjury is not alleged to have been committed, twice for uttering false certifications of a public officer and once for subornation of perjury.

Sensational developments were promised tonight by Attorney General Sisson when he asserted that practically all of the cases investigated would be aired in court at the time of the trials and that witnesses would be summoned in each instance bringing the aggregate number into the hundreds.

One of the cases in which forgery of a deposition was charged was the divorce suit of Harriet M. Thirkield against Harry D. Thirkield, a New York attorney, on August 25, 1924.

Other divorce cases in which, it is alleged, irregularities occurred, and mentioned in the indictments, together with the dates, were Bessie K. Danielson, against John W. Danielson, March 27, 1924; Viola Cohn, against Cerf Cohn, Sept. 8, 1924; Genevieve F. Thomas, against Edgis T. Thomas, March 31, 1924; Anna M. Woesthoff, against William H. Woesthoff, March 24, 1923; Yetta Levine, against Charles Levine, Oct. 20, 1923; Frances O'Brien, against James O'Brien, Dec. 4, 1924; Arthur C. Nelson, against Bernice C. Nelson, Aug. 20, 1924; Sarah Kuensy, against Paul M. Kuensy, Aug. 23, 1924; and Olive M. Conklin, against William Conklin, Oct. 13, 1924.

In describing the process leading up to the summoning of the grand jury the attorney general said that at had been shown that "in many cases husbands would come with wives and collude in the matter of getting divorces" and that addresses were represented fraudulently as being in Providence. These, upon investigation proved in many instances to be gas stations, factories, vacant lots, playgrounds, and school houses, Mr. Sisson said. Many of the cases, he said, were brought to the Rhode Island lawyers by attorneys in New York who, he alleged, shared in the division of fees.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE IN "BABY HOME" CASE

New York, May 18—Additional stories of alleged mistreatment of infants and the falsification of records in the baby home conducted by Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisen-Volk in East 50th street, were told today to Assistant District Attorney Ryan, he announced tonight.

Mrs. Flore Vasallo, a midwife, told him, he said, that she had signed a birth certificate at Mrs. Geisen-Volk's request but later had cause to believe that she had been tricked. Mrs. Anaette Souldieres, a nurse, said she had been locked in a room and threatened to prevent her telling of alleged conditions in the home.

As a result of police activity in the Geisen-Volk case Mrs. Sadie Howard, a negress was arrested and held in $5,000 bail on a charge of keeping seven infants in her baby home when her permit called for but one. In holding her, Magistrate Weil said: "This new phase of crime in New York is becoming alarming."

Undertaker's records are being searched in an effort to trace Stephen Angere, a child less than a year old, who disappeared from Mrs. Geisen-Volk's home. Mr. Ryan said that he believed the investigation being conducted by the state department of health into "baby farms" outside of New York, may lead to the discovery of the Angerer child and several others believed to have been sent out of the city by Mrs. Geisen-Volk. Records of an undertaker in East 86th street, who is said to have buried most of the babies who died in the home, are among those being examined.

Mrs. Geisen-Volk is being held in $36,000 bail on charges of substituting children placed in her care and of keeping more infants than her permit allowed.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR MRS. H. B. BRAINARD

Bridgeport, May 18—A twilight memorial service for Mrs. Horace B. Brainard, a past federation president who died a few months ago, was one of the features of the first day of the twenty ninth annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, which opened this morning in the Stratfield hotel, Mrs. George H. Stoughton of Hartford presiding. About 350 delegates representing over 70 clubs were present.

During the morning reports were given by Mrs. Charles E. Beardsley, of Waterbury, recording secretary; Mrs. Lucy Byles Wilson, Hartford, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James P. Wood, of New Haven, treasurer; Mrs. James E. Todd, of New Haven, auditor; and Mrs. Frederick M. Peasley, of Cheshire, general federation director.

During the afternoon county vice presidents reported. Because of the long program arranged for the afternoon the message of the president Mrs. Stoughton, was omitted but will appear in the next issue of the federation bulletin.

A banquet this evening was followed by a musical and reception to the club presidents.

RUM ROW FLEET HAS DWINDLED TO SEVEN SHIPS

New York, May 18—Rum row, once so populous, has dwindled to seven ships in capitulation to the little vessels of the United States Coast Guard which started its famous mid-Atlantic blockade thirteen days ago.

This information was sent by wireless today from the blockading fleet to Lieut. Commander Stephen E. Yeandle, aide to Rear Admiral Billard, commandant of the coast guard.

Yeandle on Saturday completed a four-day observation and inspection cruise of the scene of the country's stand against the bootlegging "industry," on the cruise during which a group of newspapermen made an investigationof the results of the blockade, it was found that the rum fleet had dwindled to a discouraged twelve. The day the blockade started, May 6 there were about eighty foreign rum carriers at anchor in the Atlantic between Narragansett, R. I., and Atlantic City, N. J.

Five of the ships the newspapermen found weighed anchor and slipped out of the blockade zone during Saturday and Sunday, Yeandle was informed by the officers in charge of the coast guard offensive. One of the quintet sailed Bermudaward, a coast guard patrol boat bobbing along in its wake until it had gotten 100 miles out to sea. The others are believed to have joined the other floating liquor warehouses which have anchored at various points 100 to 200 miles offshore, in the apparent belief that the blockading forces will relax their vigilance as time goes on.

THIEF GOT $881 CASH FROM HARTFORD MUSIC STORE

Hartford, May 18—A thief today took $880 in cash and $305 in checks from a safe in the rear of the music store of Feinblum and Pelzer at 71 Windsor street, according to a complaint made to the police. Manager Joseph F. Feinblum said tonight that the money had been counted prior to being taken to the bank and represented Saturday's receipts. He said that at the time of the theft, two girl bookkeepers, a workman and a clerk, were in the store. The clerk about 11 o'clock went to the safe to make change for a large bill presented by a customer, Feinblum said. ## TESTIMONY INCRIMINATES SWAMPSCOTT POLICE CHIEF

Swampscott, Mass., May 18.—(A. P.) Testimony tending to connect Police Chief William L. Quinn of Swampscott with rum running operations on the North Shore was given today by George Marcia, caretaker of the Johnson estate at Little's Point, at a hearing before the board of selectmen on charges preferred against the chief in connection with liquor smuggling. The investigation had been in progress for a week and no witness previously had linked the chief directly with the Swampscott "rum ring."

Marcia testified that on Dec. 27 last Chief Quinn requested him to tell those in charge of liquor stores on the Johnson estate to get it out of the way as he wished to make a raid. He said he had heard P. A. McDonald, his employer, say that he paid Chief Quinn $2 a case for the privilege of landing liquor and that he had heard various persons engaged in liquor smuggling telephone to the Swampscott police station from the "big house" on the estate.

The witness said he had seen federal officers with badges and guns walking about while liquor was being landed, and that two members of the rum band had told him that the entire Swampscott police force as well as federal officers, were "fixed." At another point in his evidence Marcia said that two or three weeks ago the chief met him in Lynn and advised him not to "squeal" or to give any information. On one occasion, he said when the chief led a raid on the estate he asked Marcia if there was any liquor there and then winked at him.

SECRETARY WEEKS SUFFERS SET-BACK IN CONVALESCENCE

Washington, May 18.—(A. P.)—Secretary Weeks, who has been convalescing at his home here from an attack of thrombosis since early in April, has suffered an acute attack of gall bladder colic.

Mr. Weeks' general condition was described today as very good, but the complication of bladder trouble, which is a reoccurence of an old complaint, has somewhat retarded his progress and disturbed the rest he had been enjoying.

Attending physicians are hopeful that the new complication will yield to treatment, as have similar attacks in the past. If he is threatened with prolonged suffering on account of the colic, however, it is possible that an operation to afford him relief will be given serious consideration.

Mr. Weeks has been spending much of the time in his room, but is not confined to bed because of the bladder trouble. Before it developed, however, he had been out of the house twice recently for short automobile rides and on several occasions has called in a stenographer to help him with private correspondence accumulated since his illness.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Secretary Weeks, who is convalescing from an attack of thrombosis, suffered an attack of gall bladder colic.

The commercial department reported an increase of 182,000 bushels in grain exports last week over the week proceeding.

The White House announced that President Coolidge would attend the funeral tomorrow of Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles.

Accompanied by delegations of the senate and house, the body of the late Senator Spencer of Missouri, was placed on a train for St. Louis.

Combined resources of national banks April 6 were reported as showing an increase of $1,769,575,000 in twelve months, with a total of $23,832,472,000.

It was disclosed that formal conversations are under way with the Esthonian legation looking to the funding of that country's $17,000,000 debt to the United States.

TOTAL ABSTAINER WON $10,000 ABSTINENCE PLEDGE

Philadelphia, May 18.—(A. P.)—Samuel M. Vauchlain's one-year agreement to abstain from alcoholic liquors or forfeit $10,000 was a joke, he said today. The president of the Baldwin Locomotive works invited several hundred friends to his suburban home at Rosemont today to help him celebrate his 69th birthday. When asked to have a drink he said: "No, thanks; I don't drink."

"People were waiting to see what I would do when the agreement expired today," he said, "Well, I can tell them now that I don't drink, so it wasn't hard to keep my pledge and the $10,000."

150th Anniversary Governor's Guard

Celebrated in New Haven Yesterday by Re-enactment of Historical Events.

New Haven, May 18—(A. P.)—Connecticut's part in stirring revolutionary events was re-enacted here when the Governor's Foot Guard celebrated the 150th anniversary of the charter granted to the Second company of this city and its departure in 1775 for Cambridge to join the Continental army.

Historic military organizations were here to assist in the celebration, including the Fusillier Veteran battalion of Boston, accompanied by Governor E. Lee Trinkle, of Virginia and his staff.

The most brilliant ceremony of the day was the parade this afternoon when the Governor's Foot Guard, the Fusillier Battalion, the Richmond Blues, the Ancient and Honorables of Boston, the Old Guard of New York, the Putnam Phalanx, of Worcester, Mass., and the Putnam Phalanx, of Hartford, the New Haven Grays, and units of the National Guard and the United States army marched through the city's streets to the Green where appropriate exercises were held.

The center of the city was bedecked in red, white and blue in honor of the celebration by military organizations from four states and the large central Green was resplendent in gay colors as the regiments drew up in parade formation, every man wearing full dress-parade uniform.

The reception of the Richmond Blues at the railroad station was one of the most colorful events of the day. The entire command of the Second Company, Governor's Foot Guard, was drawn up in front of the station when the Blues, most of them wearing World war decorations, arrived. After Governor Trinkle and his staff had been greeted on the station platform by officers of the Governor's Foot Guard, the Richmond Blues drew up in front of the Foot Guard. Both companies saluted each other and then marched away.

The arrival of the Richmond Blues was followed by a reception at which Governor John Trumbull, of Connecticut, and Governor Trinkle, with the visiting officers of the various military organizations were the guests of the Second compan. At the same time, the ladies in the Governors' parties and a number of officers of visiting military units were the guests of the Foot Guard at another luncheon.

The first section of the parade was from the railroad station to Center church on the Green where memorial services were held, all of the paraders filing into the church. The memorial services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Oscar E. Maurer, pastor of the church and chaplain of the Second company.

Later in the afternoon, after the memorial services had been completed, the lines were reformed and the parade continued, ending in front of the Municipal building where Major Edward A. Judge, commander of the Second company, re-enacted the part of Benedict Arnold in demanding the keys to the powder house.

Back in 1775 another second company of the Governor's Foot Guard drew up in this same fashion before th ceity hall while Benedict Arnold, commander of the original company, demanded powder for his company as it was about to leave for Cambridge to aid the Continental troops. This was immediately after the battle of Lexington. Former Mayor E. Studley enacted the part of Colonel David Wooster, of the Revolutionary forces who tried to dissuade the Foot Guard from their hurried march on the ground that it was thought premature.

The day's programme was concluded with a banquet at the Yale dining hall and the ball afterward at Woolsey hall.

There were many noted guests in the assembly, including seven former governors of Connecticut. Two other governors, Phineas T. Lounsbury and Simeon E. Baldwin were unable to attend because of advanced age.

The banquet was an imposing spectacle. The guests' table was raised on a platform so as to afford the 1,200 or more present full view and opportunity to hear the speakers. At the guests' table were the visiting governors, United States Senator Hiram Bingham, Colonel Blanton Winship, provost marshal of the First corps area of the United States, the official representative of General Andre W. Brewster, commander of the First corps area; Colonel John A. Cutchins, O. R. C.; Mayor Fitzgerald, President Angell of Yale, Captain Oscar E. Maurer and Major Edward A. Judge. The latter acted as toastmaster.

Real Son Attends Congress of S. of R.

Borne Allen, Born in New London in 1836, Presented to 36th Annual Session.

Swampscott, Mass, May 18.—(A. P.)—A real son of the Revolution was presented to the 36th annual congress of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution here today when Osborne Allen, of Dexter, Maine, a member of the delegation from Maine, was introduced. He was born in 1836, the son of James Allen, Jr., of New London, Conn., who enlisted at the age of 14 and served through the war of the Revolution and also the war of 1812, dying at the age of 104.

Histories of the Revolutionary period now in use in public schools throughout the country still leave much to be desired, Judge Wallace McCamant of Portland, Oregan, told the congress in presenting the findings of the committee on patriotic education.

"The text books which were objectionable in their treatment of the Revolution were also for the most part objectionable in their attitude toward present day problems," Judge McCamant said. "In this respect there has been little or no change for the better during the three years that we have been at work on this problem. Many of the textbooks still inculcate class hatred. Many of them speak sympathetically of destructive movements engineered by those who would undermine and overthrow our form of government."

Marvin H. Lewis of Louisville, Ky., president general of the society, reported thirteen new chapters organized during the year, including a state society formed in South Carolina with a membership of 250. He added that at least half a dozen new chapters are now in the process of organization. The president general announced that the congress would be asked to consider proposals for the establishment of a national headquarters at Washington in their own building.

He asked that due consideration be given to the effect that the spirit of pacifism is likely to have one the institutions of the country.

CELEBRATE VICTORY IN SKIRMISH WITH "RUMMIES"

New London, May 18—(A. P.)—Commanders and men at the Submarine bases here were celebrating what they claimed was their victory in the first skirmish between the "rummies" as they call the rum fleet and the coast guard fleet, it being claimed here that the majority of the rum runners have been forced to pull up anchors and change their stamping ground to a point betwene 100 and 200 miles off the coast.

At the same time, it was announced here that another step in the battle against the rum runners had been launched. This is the inshore harbor patrol, of which New London will be the base and Lieutenant Commander F. H. Young, of the submarine base here, the commanding officer.

The territory between the entrance of Long Island sound and Fall River, Mass., has been assigned to this unit in the campaign and a number of patrol boats will search every river, creek, harbor and waterway along the coast in their hunt for small craft that may have visited the rum fleet and dodged their way through the cordon of destroyers now maintaining a ring of ships around the "rummies."

It also was announced here tonight that ten patrol boats had been sent to Wood's Hole, Mass., to assist the larger boats there in their watch of the rum fleet.

CHAPMAN ACCOMPLICE CHARGED WITH FORGERY

New York, May 18—Charles Dryden, of Springfield, Mass., alleged by the police to have selected for looting the New Britain, Conn., department store which Gerald Chapman was robbing when Patrolman James Skelly was shot and killed, was committed to the Tombs today in default of $25,000 bail to await hearing May 20 on a charge of forgery in the second degree.

Dryden, charged with obtaining $5,400 from the Corn Exchange bank on January 27, by forging the name of "William A. Wollman" to a check, was arrested this morning in the Pennsylvania terminal station, and taken before Judge McIntyre of special sessions, when he denied the the forgery charge. He was identified by Lindy Hill, cashier of the bank, as the man who presented the check.

Chapman is under sentence to be hanged on June 25 for the part he played in the New Britain robbery and murder.

CLERGYMAN VOICES PROTEST TO BRYAN ON LATTER'S OPPOSITION TO EVOLUTION

New York, May 18—(A. P.)—William Jennings Bryan's attack on modernism in religion and his spirited defense of the Tennessee law forbidding teaching of the theory of evolution in the public schools, in a speech in Brooklyn, drew a vigorous protest from the Rev. James S. Williamson, pastor of the King's Highway Congressional church, a member of the audience.

Mr. Bryan was alternately mildly hissed and cheered. He asserted that he had brought the fight against evolution into the open and that "we are going out to win." "We must win," he said, "if the world is to be saved."

Mr. Bryan had just said that the modernist cannot send missionaries abroad because they have no message to send, "You are unfair to us—that is not true," declared the Rev. Mr. Williamson from his seat. "I speak as a Congregationalist minister. We believe in majority rule and each church is guided as it wishes in this matter. We believe in the freedom of the human spirit."

"Then I'm not talking to you," Mr. Bryan replied. "After this I'll exclude the Congregationalists. If they have no creeds and stand for nothing, I'll leave them out. I am more familiar with the modernists in the Presbyterian church."

"Two thirds of us are modernists and we believe in evolution," said the Rev. Mr. Williamson. "But we believe also in the divinity of Christ and the immortality of the soul."

"The disgrace," said Mr. Bryan, "is not the Tennessee law, signed by the governor and passed by the legislature; the disgrace is that teachers paid in the taxes of a community which stamps its dollars 'in God we trust' should betray the trust imposed in them by the taxpayers.

"The president of the United States takes his oath of office on the bible. Are the school children of this nation to be taught that his bible is untrue? No; and they shall not be so taught, for the majority of the people of this nation believe in the bible and the hand that writes the pay checks should control the schools."

Mr. Bryan said it would be ridiculous to entrust the education of children to "an oligarchy of scientists," referring to the Society of the Advance of Science. The modernists, he asserted, "are making us brothers to the brute."

Mr. Bryan recently announced that he would assist in the prosecution of J. T. Scopes, science teacher of Dayton, Tenn., charged with violation of the Tennessee anti-evolution statute.

A FORD INVESTMENT FIRM ESTABLISHED IN NEW YORK

Branch of the Guardian Trust Company of Detroit—Has Acquired the Keane, Higbie & Co., an Investment Firm—Considered Likely That Investors Might be Given an Opportunity to Finance Some of the New Ford Enterprises.

New York, May 18.—(A. P.)—The entrance of Henry Ford into Wall street was seen by some bankers today in the announcement that the Guardian Detroit company had been established as the New York Investment branch of the Guardian Trust Company of Detroit, of which Edsel Ford is a director.

Relationship of the Ford interests to the new banking enterprise in Wall street also was given a direct contract by the naming of Ernest Kanzeler, vice president of the Ford Motor company, as a director of the Guardian Detroit company.

The Guardian Trust Company of Detroit, a recently organized institution which is believed to have the backing of the Ford millions, obtained its foothold in New York by the acquisition of Keane, Higbie & Company, Inc., an investment firm which has specialized for many years in the underwriting and distribution of municipal bonds and other high grade securities.

The New York office of the firm, it was announced today had been reorganized as the nucleus of the Guardian Detroit company, of which Jerome E. J. Keane will be made chairman and John C. Grier, Jr., president.

Directors of the new company, in addition to Mr. Kanzeler, Mr. Keane and Mr. Grier, will include William R. Wilson, president of the Guardian Trust company, and Henry E. Rodman, an attorney.

The Ford family's venture into the banking field was viewed with surprise by many bankers since Henry Ford has held aloof from Wall street and openly attacked the methods of New York banks from which he sought a large loan several years ago. Rebelling at the stringent terms laid down by the bankers at that time, Ford abruptly terminated his negotiations and succeeded single-handed in carrying the Ford Motor company over a temporary depression. Since then he has financed his various industrial nad railroad projects himself and as an individual has engaged in a variety of banking operations, making several loans to the city of Detroit.

The enormous growth of the Ford enterprises and their expansion into the railroad, steamship and commercial avation fields, Wall Street believes, have influenced the automobile manufacturers and his son to engage in banking operations. With a New York investment house under his control, Ford could make a public offering of securities in any of his companies without the intervention of outside banking interests. While Wall Street doubts that he would open the Ford Motor company to public investment, it is considered likely that investors might be given an opportunity to finance some of the new Ford enterprises.

FRANCE LOSES POINT AT ARMAMENTS CONFERENCE

Geneva, May 18—(A. P.)—France lost a bitter fight tonight to keep armaments of warships within the scope of the proposed convention which will control by publicity international trade in armaments. After a heated discussion the military commission of the arms conference by a vote of 16 to 8 decided to accept the British amendment whereby guns, ammunition and all other equipment of warships are dropped from the draft convention, and hence not subject to supervision. The United States voted with the majority.

Thus warship armaments meet the same fate as warships themselves, which were excluded last week from all official control as to their sale. They meet also the same fate as airplanes and armored trains. The military committee did, however, vote to the control list all arms which are mounted on war-designed airplanes and armored cars.

DEPEW, AGED 91, ADDRESSED THE PILGRIM'S SOCIETY

New York, May 18—Although telling them that he could "distinctly remember eighty years of life" Chauncey M. Depew spoke at a luncheon of the Pilgrims' Society of the United States in honor of the British delegates to the international police conference today with a vigor and a sparkling wit of which any man half his age might well be proud.

Throughout Mr. Depew's address which he delivered in a resonant voice giving little evidence of his 91 years and with frequent gestures which forcibly punctuated his remarks, the tenor of his thought was the increasing bond between America and Great Britain during the period of his life.

As an example of this growth of friendship Mr. Depew told the story of a Des Moines glove manufacturer who went up to King George at the Wembley exposition and said: "King, how are you? I want you to meet my son." "Now suppose," said Mr. Depew, "when we were closer officially but not so close in spirit some colonial had tried to approach George III and shake his hand. He would have gone to the tower and never got out. George V is a democrat and he said: 'Glad to see you. Is your family well? That's fine across the sea.'"

SELECTING JURORS FOR SHEPHERD MURDER TRIAL

Chicago, May 18.—(A. P.)—Three jurors were accepted tentatively in a four hour court session today which marked the opening of the trial of William Darling Shepherd for the alleged murder by administering typhoid fever germs of his wife's young millionaire ward, William Nelson McClintock.

Shepherd, Chicago lawyer and chief beneficiary under the youth's will which disposed of an estate of approximately $1,500,000, will face an effort to have him hanged on circumstantial evidence, the state indicated in its questioning of veniremen.

The defense will rely on breaking down the testimony of C. C. Faiman, ex-of a Chicago school of science, who confessed that he supplied typhoid germs to Shepherd, taught him how to propagate and administer them with an assurance of fatal results, for which he was to receive $100,000.

Faiman, indicted with Shepherd, was granted a separate trial today on motion of the state. No date for Faiman's trial was set, however.

STRESEMAN UTTERS APPROVAL OF DAWES PLAN

Berlin, May 18—Gustave Stresemann, foreign minister, in the course of an exhaustive survey of Germany's foreign relations, which he presented in the Reichstag today, made an emphatic reiteration of the German government's intention loyally to carry out the provisions of the Dawes reparation program. He declared that this constituted the foundation of Germany's reparations policies.

"Parliamentary majorities and cabinets may change, but I can conceive no constellation which would deviate from the course we have taken," said the foreign minister by way of pledging Germany's future attitude toward her reparation policies as influenced by the Dawes plan.

FRANCE IS DELVING INTO EXACT DETAILS OF DEBT

Paris, May 18—Pending preliminary conversations on France's debts, the French government is going ahead with the task of trying to find out exactly how much France borrowed from her allies and associates during the war, the conditions under which such debts were contracted and the rate of interest agreed on at the time. Also it will establish the credit side of France's ledger, totalling the amounts owed to France by allies and associates and the legal conditions under which these obligations fall.

The finance committee of the chamber of deputies shortly will receive two reports, one will come from the sub-committee over which Lucien Klotz, Premier Clemenceau's finance minister during the Versailles treaty negotiations presides. This report, prepared by Deputy Pietri, will show that France actually contracted for in the way of wartime engagements.

The other report will be made by Deputy Lamoureux on the amounts owed to France by her allies and associates. M. Lamoureux, who is to succeed Deputy Violette as general reporter of the budget from the finance committee, said today that his work on the report had almost been completed he indicated that it would show that France had an amount due her which should quite materially reduce her wartime indebtedness to her allies and associates.

These outstanding items, which members of parliament think ought to reduce the total debts France recognizes she is bound in honor, include various charges for transportation and billeting; the listing of hospitals, warehouses and other properties during the war; equipping Polish and Czechoslovak troops, and advances to Italy, Jugoslavia and other countries.

M. Lamoureux, who is a radical socialist deputy from Vichy, maintains that all the post-war French statesmen have recognized the validity and legality of France's obligations to the United States and Great Britain, but he lays emphasis on the fact that his task has been to draw up the other side of the balance sheet so as to show France's just claims for a reduction in the total of her debt.

TRIBESMEN MOBILIZING IN FRONT OF FRENCH LINES

Paris, May 18—Abd-el-Krim, leader of the rebel Riffian tribesmen, not only is mobilising important forces in front of the French along the Ouergha River in Morocco, but is declared to be utilizing an extensive efficient propaganda organization behind the French. Marshal Lyautey, the French governor general, reports from the troubled areas say, is taking steps to clear out from the pacified regions of Morocco the agents of Abd-el-Krim who everywhere are insidiously spreading the idea of revolt.

The armament of the Riffians, in the opinion of military authorities on the spot, has been exaggerated while the value of the enemy infantry and intelligence service has been underestimated.

BANK BANDIT GUILTY FIRST DEGREE MURDER

WILLIMANTIC

The case of Katie Chebuk, alias Kabus, the fifth on a docket of sixteen cases held against striking operatives of the American Thread Company occupied the attention of the police court the entire forenoon. At the afternoon session the accused was found guilty and fined $3 and costs, amounting to $17.15 on charges of assault and breach of the peace. An appeal was taken to the next term of the Windham County superior court. Bonds of $100 were named and furnished.

Attorney John T. Barry of Jewett City entered demurrers in ten of the eleven cases remaining on the docket, all of which motions overruled by Judge Foss and the cases were then taken up individually. Frank Cajaka charged with intimidation was fined $25 and costs. This was considered the outstanding case on the entire docket. The remainder of those accused were fined $3 and costs each: Peter Nicholas, Ollie Rock, John McCarthy, Clarence Maine, Mollie Parent for breach of the peace; Annie Matwinks and Sava Matwinks for breach of the peace and tampering with a state witness and Julia Fancher and Mary Debroiet, assault and breach of the peace. Appeals were taken in each instance and bonds of $50 were furnished except in the case of Frank Cajaka, which thoughts were fixed at $100. Max Scheinman appeared as bondsman for all the defendants.

The sixteenth case, that of Harry Charron, charged with breach of the peace was nolled by agreement. In the case of Katie Chebus the state contended that while Mrs. Elizabeth Cone a worker at the mill, was being escorted by four state police officers the defendant reached out and grabbed Mrs. Cone by the arm, shouting at the same time. In denial of this, Mrs. Chebus and her witnesses testified that she was pushed off the stone wall on which she was standing as the officers and Mrs. Cone and others were passing. She fell forward with both arms out and they landed on one of the officers. She was then arrested. Testifying for the state were: State Policeman Edward B. Streeman, Comstock and Stephens, and Stephen L. Cone and Mrs. Bernice Case. For the defense the witnesses were Sophie M. Cajaka, Julia Fancher, Edward Dupuis and Pauline Locrasto.

STRIKERS' ELEVENTH WEEK— FIVE MORE WORKERS BACK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, May 13— The eleventh week of the strike opened Monday without any definite application that anything in the nature of an eleventh hour agreement would be arrived, at between the strikers and the American Thread Company officials. The picket lines are being conducted in an orderly manner and there is little probability of any more threats for violating the peace. Mass meetings held Sunday and Monday mornings were largely attended. The ranks are holding firm it was stated at the strike headquarters Monday; the United Textile Workers of America has diverted its financial and moral power to the support of the local cause. Many of the former employees assert that their homes have been visited during the past week by overseers and others of the plant who made overtures regarding their return to their posts. Those thus solicited claim that they were told that the ten per cent wage reduction would be returned.

Pickets reported that five workers entered the mills Monday morning in addition to those who have already been working. One was a woman and four were residents of Willimantic who were driven up this city in a company machine. The state police detachment remains on duty at the mill gates.

JEWETT CITY

P. W. Chase, secretary and treasurer of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, gives The Bulletin the following information relative to the textile show, to be conducted at the Danielson Armory, June 11, 12, 13:

Thirty mills in eastern Connecticut are members of this association and it is expected that more than twenty of these will display their products at this time.

Ashland is going to exhibit Satteens and can be depended on to present a real display, as we were conceded the best looking booth at the big exhibit held at Norwich two years ago.

This exhibit is not primarily a financial promotion on the part of the mill overseers' association, the aim being to get the products of the mills in this vicinity before the public and to educate the latter up to the fact that eastern Connecticut textile construction is the equal of any in the world in quality, variety and otherwise.

It is expected that this exhibit will impress upon the public the need of buying the product of this section whenever possible. The welfare and progress of our territory is dependent on the operation of these mills.

Every mill in eastern Connecticut is privileged and encouraged to secure space. There is no question but what this exhibit is going over big and every one of the 41 spaces could be leased within a week to mill supply houses and a great many of these will exhibit. Eighteen of the mills have already reserved space and these with no special effort from the association.

Governor Trumbull has been invited to be present, and the borough officials and warden of Danielson will act as a reception committee to his Excellency.

Speaker of the House Darbie, who resides in Danielson, will also be an honored guest.

Plans are under way to have a parade the opening night.

Important meeting of Legion Auxiliary, in Legion room, Wed. 7:30 p. m. —Adv.

After holding the lease, and occupying the premises since Dec. 1, 1921, Charles T. Morrissey has taken over the Jewett City Hotel. The traveling public as well as local industries will recognize at once the very appreciable benefits to be derived from this transaction. Mr. Morrissey's aim is to maintain a first class standard line hostelry, with everything modern and all conveniences made better as the result of the steady improvements he has been able to accomplish. The property was purchased from John Clark, who took it over from the I. T. Lewis interests. The Jewett City hotel is new, having been built but 20 years, following the burning of the second hotel on this site, which occurred on one of the coldest nights ever known in this section, in January of 1903.

After Mr. Lewis' death there were several years that this borough had no hotel. Besides being a great inconvenience, it proved a detriment to the town's best interests. People here on business were obliged to go to Norwich for lodging.

Manager Barnett of the Finn theatre is able to say that the great screen play The Rag Man, with Jackie Coogan is one of the coming attractions.

P. W. Chase, welfare superintendent was in Hartford Monday, for the purpose of taking to Hartford hospital, Anita Despres, for further medical attention and treatment. Agreeable to the line of welfare policy, established by the Ashland Cotton Co., these plans were carried out, as the patient is an operative of the concern.

Hundreds of people from this section visited the ruins of the Mathewson street garage Monday. One man makes whatever remarks seems fitting about a certain sort of automobile. A six letter word horizon, with a double "Z" in the middle, that begins with "L" and ends in "E," with a prefix of three letters, meaning a common whitish metal.

There were seven automobiles destroyed; all but one refused to move a valve. Honors now to Henry. Among the ruins he had a representative, top burned off, gas tank exploded, nothing left of the wheels but the hubs, the body reduced to a heap of rusty tin. All in? Not so! by any means, a fresh tank of gas was hooked on to the engine. The owner cranked her up. O. K. off she went on the first spark, and never skipped a plug. A bystander casually remarked that a little heat more or less didn't matter to "them cussed things."

The following scores were shot on the Voluntown Rifle Club Range in a 50 shot and 10 shot match:

50 shots on the one inch ring target 50 yards offhand.

Clarence Gaudett 490; Floyd Magrey 477; Henry De Rusha 469; Ted Dupond 448.

50 shots on the 1-2 inch ring target 50 yds offhand:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kaufmann | 93 | 93 | 94 | 96 | 96—472 |
| Gaudette | 92 | 93 | 90 | 89 | 94—458 |
| Magrey | 86 | 82 | 90 | 85 | 81—424 |

Ten shots on the 1-2 inch ring target for the Edmond Medal:

Clarence Gaudette 94; John Bradford 92; Floyd Magrey 91; Ernest Dupont 90; Emilde Russi 84; Henry De Ruska 89; Ted Dupont 79.

Winchester Junior Rifle Corps State Championship: Clarence Gaudette 300; Euclide Russi 298; Floyd Magrey 298; Rosario Russi 296. These boys did some very fine shooting in this match. The match called for 15 shots prone and 15 shots sitting, possible 300 on the 3-8 inch bullseye at 50 ft.

During the course of some investigation relative to the possible cause of the gargae fire Sunday night, it has developed that Albert Dilworth, now is disinterested in the Mathewson street garage, and there is the claim that persons were in the garage that night, after young Eichelberg put up his car.

Mrs. Max Burkerschroda has returned from a private hospital in New London. She underwent an operation at this institution about a month ago and returned to her home apparently on the road to recovery, but nasal hemorrhages occasioned her return to the hospital. She was accompanied to New London by Mrs. Chase B. Nicorporation nurse for Ashford Cotton Co.

Enthusiasm and general interest sticks out all over the proposal to have a great and grand Fourth of July celebration in the borough. If the plans are carried out, there will be a great parade, antiques and horribles, a big band, and everything thats fine. In the afternoon races are planned with events and contests for local people, all by local people. Also, other classes of athletic sports open to all. Jewett City folks will give up going away for the 4th, but instead will make it a grand day for all visitors.

COLCHESTER

At the recent meeting of Colchester Fire Co. No. 1 held in the parlor of the engine house, it was voted to assist the borough in purchasing a new siren. A committee was appointed consisting of James F. Purcell, Gilbert J. Murray and Ike Cohen and was empowered to purchase and install the new siren at the earliest possible date. Gilbret J. Murray was appointed to assist Leon Broder in soliciting funds. At the annual business meeting of the borough Mr. Broder offered the generous sum of twenty-five dollars to head the list. The present siren is too small to be heard all through the Borough, consequently the firemen as a whole are unable to respond. The new siren will be powerful enough to be heard at least five miles. The citizens are being asked to contribute toward purchasing the siren, thus enabling the firemen to respond promptly. The first few minutes at the outbreak of a fire are worth more than an hour's work after it has gotten a headway.

If PRUNES were high priced there might be some excuse for serving them less often but why deprive yourself when a heaping dish costs only 2¢

That's the remarkable thing about Prunes—they are not only good to eat and very good for you—but you can afford to serve them generously, because they actually cost so little.

And now's the time to serve them liberally. The Spring diet calls for fruit more than any other season—especially with the first meal of the day.

Many dieticians and food authorities give Prunes first choice for breakfast. They know what a properly-balanced breakfast means in health and working efficiency. And they know that Prunes supply just those elements needed to balance the eggs, cereals and meats, and other highly-concentrated foods that make up such a large part of the average breakfast menu.

Ask your grocer for SUNSWEET Prunes—sweet, plump, thin-skinned fruit, from the famous orchards of California—grown, selected and packed by the growers themselves. Protect yourself! Buy SUNSWEET Prunes, always clean and fresh, in the convenient, new 2-lb. carton—or in bulk, from the regular 25-lb. box. You will be delighted with their uniform high quality.

A QUICK WAY TO COOK PRUNES

Wash SUNSWEET PRUNES, cover with hot water and allow to soak one hour. Bring to the boiling point in the same water in which they were soaked, cover and cook until tender. Add sugar ten minutes before removing from stove. Allow one tablespoon to one cup of Prunes, measured before soaking or cooking. If a thick syrup is desired, remove Prunes to serving dish when tender, and boil the liquid until it is of the desired consistency. A little orange peel, lemon juice or stick cinnamon improves the flavor for some tastes.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

The Broadway theatre management is offering a peerless program of world's best vaudeville and Paramount pictures that we honestly believe cannot be beaten by any other program in the city. The vaudeville contains everything the most fastidious critic would wish for, comedy, royalty, song, dance, mirth and melody. And the picture is a knockout love comedy that will make you roar with delight.

A novel equilibristic revue was presented by Vee and Tully, featuring their gymnastic canine, Jackie. All their tricks are new and difficult, and the whole is full of pep and action.

Lawrence and McAllester in How's That? are comedy dancing comedians. Both their fun and dance are of the lively sort and you alone know what it means to see some real colored dancing fiends.

Something new and novel followed. This little playlet is called Rings and is presented by Lewis and Gordon, featuring Nolan Leary and Helen Keith Johnstone & company. This quartet of real artists get over some real comedy, at the same time making the mystery and of the playlet keep you guessing. They scored a big hit.

Sailor Bill Reilly in special songs, stories and pianologues came in fourth spot with a bang and went off with a bang. His stories are new and real funny, and his songs and piano novelties are refreshing.

The closing offering was also a big hit. This is a splendidly arranged dance as only experts can dance. The Ziegler Sisters and Ziegler Brothers constitute this quintette of clever entertainers. One of the brothers appears in the orchestra as the drummer. There is a reason for the reception they received at yesterdays performances.

When in Rome do as the Romans do. And that's what Richard Dix does in his new Paramount star picture, Too Many Kisses, which opened yesterday at the Broadway theater. Not that the story is laid in Rome or anything like that.

In Too Many Kisses adapted for the screen by Gerald Duffy from the Cosmopolitan Magazine story, A Maker of Gestures, by John Monk Saunders, Dix has the role of a carefree young American who "works" in his father's mining office in New York City.

Here's a picture that has everything—romance, drama, comedy, thrills, it's the greatest Dix picture ever.

Miss Howard, recently seen in the title role of The Swan, in which part she made her debut in motion pictures, is featured as the Spanish beauty, Yvonne in this production. William Powell is the scheming Julio. Others include Joe Burke, Frank Currier, Paul Panzer and Alyce Mills.

A news is also shown.

Breed Theater

Duplicating in enthusiasm the extravagant praise showered by metropolitan's newest cinema masterpiece starring Marion Davies, which is now being shown at the Breed theater, all the trade papers of the motion picture industry have published laudatory reviews of the picture and the consummate art of the star.

Every phase of the production received high commendation from these experienced writers on film entertainment values. The sterling acting and exquisite beauty of Miss Davies, the superlative quality of the supporting cast, the sheer splendor and the magnitude of the settings, the dramatic thrills, the enchanting lovelinss of the costumes, the interest of the story and effectiveness of direction—all evoked the highest praise from those who write professional judgments of motion pictures.

Lawrence Reid writing in the Motion Picture News declared: "Gorgeous in its background, exceptionally rich in its pagentry—and carrying production values which give it vivid occular appeal, Marion Davies' new picture may be called a fitting successor to 'When Knighthood Was In Flower.' Miss Davies is resplendent in a dual role and she never looked more appealing. Indeed she is perfectly cast and gives a performance which substantiates the verdict that she has become an accomplished actress."

Equally complimentary was the comment of C. E. Sewell of Moving Picture World who wrote: "In the nature of a successor to her tremendous production, 'When Knighthood Was in Flower' and even excelling it in the gorgeousness and magnitude of its settings, the beauty of its photography, the celebrity of its cast, and its technical details, is Marion Davies' newest Cosmopolitan picture, 'Yolanda.'"

New Hupmobile Eight

The new Hupmobile Eight is today America's largest selling motor car of the eight-in-line type, according to announcement made in Detroit recently by O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager of the Hup Motor Car Corporation.

Newcomer in the field of eights, it has taken Hupmobile only four months to reach first position in that class.

"Ever since the first display, when 400,000 people went to our various distributors' and dealers' showrooms to see the car within 30 hours—exceeding all previous records for interest—sales of the car have grown at a remarkably fast rate," Mr. Hutchinson said. "Output this month will be the largest yet reached. The car's unusual features have attracted to it more attention than has been accorded any new model in the last year or more, regardless of price.

"Reports from owners as to the remarkable results they are receiving from the eight continue to pour into the factory and our dealers. Its peppiness, insuring easy parkability, genuine ease of handling and smoothness and flexibility of operation and its dignified appearance, have created a wide appeal. With the Hupmobile reputation behind it, durability, freedom from service difficulties and operating economy have been taken for granted.

"Sales of the eight have already exceeded 5,000. Monthly orders are now beginning to approach 1,500, as the abilities of the car become more widely known."

An Albert National park in the Belgian Congo will be created in the near future, by royal decree. The region selected is a high tableland between Lake Kuon and Uganda. Protection will be given to both animals and plants, and hunters will be forbidden to penetrate into the region.

DANIELSON

Charles Burdick, who is with the Standard Supply company here, tells this one as it was told to him, it being a fish story. Mr. Burdick, visiting in a New London county town, talked bass fishing with a resident near a body of water famous for its large bass.

Said the man: "I came down to the shore here early the other morning, to drown three kittens. They were little kittens, their eyes not yet opened. Tossing one of them into the pond, I was amazed to see a whirl and a flash near the point where the kitten struck the water. Waiting a minute or two, I tossed in another kitten and again the whirl in the water, as though a big fish was there. That gave me an idea. I went back to the house, got a fairly long piece of fish line and tied one end of it around the third kitten's neck. The trick worked out about as I expected it would. The kitten had barely struck the water when there was another swirl and I paid out the line. Waiting what I thought was an ample length of time, I hauled in the slack and found there was something heavy and very lively on the other end. Reeling in as rapidly as I could I hauled ashore an eight pound bass, and I can produce a dozen people that saw the fish."

It isn't hardly fair to say that this all happened down near Hopeville, but it was in that vicinity.

Mr. Burdick was hardly flabbergasted at this tale, which may be true, but he had in mind saying something about using elephants for bait up this way, though not for catching fish. Elephants are used for bait that will lure boys anywhere between 6 and 76 years of age into a circus tent and to get them to vote the republican ticket—see advertisements of the G. O. P.

There appears to be a local epidemic of automobile headlight bulbs going wrong and of drivers traveling along the highways with one or both lights on their cars out. While losing lights is a hard thing to guard against, it is pointed out that prudent drivers always carry spare bulbs in their car against just such an emergnecy.

An effort is being made to center the attention of the public on the importance of the special town meeting to be held Thursday evening of this week. At this meeting will be given the first public consideration of the matter of increased high school facilities. True, only a committee to make investigation of this need will be appointed at this meeting, but it will bring, probably, quite full explanation of why the committee is wanted and what it is purposed to have it ascertain. The matter is of real importance to the people of the town.

New cottages, and improvements to older ones will help make the summer colony locations at Alexander's lake more attractive than ever this year. At present there is just over a score of cottages at the lake, principally on the north and south shores. Some of these cottages already are occupied and others are being made ready for occupancy. The lake and surrounding country is not only very beautiful, but the locality easy of access by motor car or trolley. There are indications that there will be a great increase in the number of cottages at the lake within a few years.

There appears to be general agreement in the belief that the forest fire season for this spring is practically at an end. Recent rains and the growth of vegetation has cut the hazard of further fires to a minimum, which is no excuse for anyone being careless with fire in woodland territory. Scores of acres of land have been burned over in this section of eastern Connecticut this spring and in some instances the losses resulting to property owners have been very considerable.

Booths are to be set up around the big drill shed of the state armory for the textile exhibit of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association to be held here early in June. The name of the concern occupying a booth will appear at its front. The exhibition is expected to result of the greatest display of textile products that this community has ever seen from manufacturers in the eastern part of this state and is certain to be of great public interest.

Golfers find this season particularly to their liking. Though they have been playing more or less for several weeks, the ideal season for the courses is now at hand while Danielson has no golf course it has numbers of golfers, members of the Putnam Country club. The fact that officers are now watching out for riders who go about at night with no lights on their bicycles has brought some of the youths and boys who have been so riding to equiping their machines with necessary lanterns or other devices that answer the law.

PUTNAM

The case of Alphonse G. Lussier and Albert Cassavant, executors of the estate of Joseph Lussier vs. Pierre Chabot of Putnam was set for a hearing in the superior court but was settled out of court. With the settlement of this case another one in which the plaintiff and defendant were reversed was also settled.

Joseph Lussier died at Putnam in 1923. Before his death he sold his real estate to his son-in-law, Pierre Chabot, with whom he lived. After his death Mr. and Mrs. Chabot put in a claim against his estate for services rendered. The claim was denied and the suit followed.

Soon after the suit against the executors was started, the executors began a suit to have the deed to Chabot set aside and the property returned to the estate, alleging undue influence, as Mr. Lussier was an old man when he made the deed.

The amount of the settlement was not made known, but it is understood that a nominal amount was allowed Mr. and Mrs. Chabot and that the deed will be allowed to stand.

For many years they made their home on Elm street and then moved to the house at Grove and Center streets. Two children were born to them, but Mrs. Law is the only one who survives. BUILDS YOU UP

OVER 69 YEARS OF SUCCESS

Watch Out, Madam!

When beauty is at stake use Palmolive

FOR your sake and for ours, we must combat a false idea.

Some people, we learn, think ordinary soaps, claiming to be "for the complexion," have a like effect to Palmolive.

That is wrong. They don't. Palmolive complexions come only from Palmolive.

In the old days you were told, "Use no soap on your face." For soaps were too harsh.

Then came Palmolive. It was made of cosmetic oils, of olive and palm oils famous as beautifiers since the days of Cleopatra — combined in a secret beauty blend. It was made to be used freely, to be used lavishly on the skin.

Then note what happened. Women tried it, got amazing results, and told others. Palmolive became the leading toilet soap of the world. In France, the home of cosmetics, Palmolive is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps. French women have largely discarded French soaps for Palmolive.

The reason is this: Palmolive is a unique creation, based on 60 years of soap study. It is a scientific soap. A soap made for ONE purpose only . . . to foster good complexions.

It is not recommended for laundry work, nor even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, we should have to reduce its cosmetic qualities greatly. And good complexions are too precious to be thus endangered.

So we ask you, madam, when seeking a soap for fabric cleansing to get a good laundry soap.

But we urge you, above all things, when beauty is your aim, to use Palmolive.

Palmolive is not claimed the only great complexion soap. We know of two others. But they cost you 25 cents, while Palmolive sells for but 10 cents . . . no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest cost.

Wash, cleanse, launder with any soap you wish. But for your face . . . take care! . . . use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

IN PARIS

French women are discarding French soaps for Palmolive

Palmolive is today one of the two greatest selling toilet soaps in France. Parisian beauties are glad to pay almost twice as much for a cake of Palmolive as American women pay. And, in many cases, three times as much as for their own French soaps. Remember this when tempted by "French" claims for soaps.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

The only secret to Palmolive is its exclusive blend—and that is one of the world's priceless beauty secrets.

THE ENFORCEMENT CAMPAIGN

From the statement of government officials concerning the results of the fight against the rum running forces, satisfaction is felt at the accomplishments. The situation appears to be much like that at the time when prohibition went into effect. Enforcement was expected and preparations were made to respect the law until it could be seen what enforcement was going to amount to and how it could be beaten. When it was found that enforcement was diminishing, that it was easy to avoid detection and that there was a general participation in disrespect for the law there was a hustle to get into the rum business and it has continued with varying success ever since.

Thus far it would appear that rum row and those who have been doing business with it have measured the difficulty of escaping the blockading fleet. The smuggling has for the time being decreased, rum row has experienced many deserters, while patrons are discreetly keeping away. The results obtained are what were desired, but it remains to be seen how long this vigilance will serve to prevent the putting into operation of other schemes for accomplishing the same results of getting liquor into this country in violation of the law.

The dispersing of the rum fleet may be temporary, or permanent. It may be abandoning one locality for another while the runners are for the time being keeping under cover for the most part awaiting developments.

When it is declared that there is a billion dollar rum combine with only a million dollar equipment to offer against the onslaughts of the situation is unfavorably presented But it is to be realized that the formation of the combine has been going on during all the time that there has been preparation to meet the requirements of enforcement. It is another case of the hare and the tortoise. The enforcement work has gained a new impetus recently, but it remains to be seen whether it can cope with the schemes that will be employed at the first opportunity to overcome it. The test of this new effort at enforcement has only just begun. The billion dollar combine will not file down under its first remise.

SELLING THE SHIPS

As was expected the linking of the name of Ford with a certain number of shipping board vessels has developed an interest in those ships, and there are those who feel that Mr. Ford ought not to be given any advantage over others, or that he ought not to be allowed to have ships that would be put into service in competition with other vessels which involve a much greater outlay.

In connection with the proposition which involves Mr Ford's name it is not to be expected that he is going to be offered any advantages which would not be extended to any other citizen in a similar deal. The board has ways of knowing about what it can expect per ton for the 400 vessels concerned in the talked of sale and there has been no intimation that Mr. Ford is seeking or has been offered favors.

Following the method that has been practiced the ships would be offered to the highest bidder, and it would make no difference whether Mr. Ford or someone else purchased them. There would be the same opportunity in any case for putting them into operation for competition with vessels already in service, the reconditioning expense however falling upon the purchaser. As for ships that are intended for scrapping there would be such a stipulation, and it is certainly preferable that ships which are worth nothing else should be disposed of for that purpose than to permit them to rust away with the government spending $500 to $7000 a year to take care of them, or even to take them out and sink them.

It should not be difficult to determine whether the ships are fit for any real service as ships. Apparently Mr. Ford thinks that the most of those he might buy are not. If there are others who think they are and are ready to put the necessary money into them to prove it there is no reason why they should not have the chance to do it. Put up to the highest bidder the vessels will be available for anyone, shipowner or not, to make the most of their bargain. If they threaten competition those who fear them could easily become the purchasers and quickly put an end to that.

NO CHANCE FOR LENIENCY

Leniency may have its place in the courts, and there may be times when it is both justified and appreciated, but a Maryland court was recently forced to deal with the case of state's attorney who was indicted and pleaded guilty to four charges of embezzlement and one of forgery, and the fact that he was sentenced to eleven years in the penitentiary it is indicated that the court felt that there was little ground for clemency.

This was an instance where a much tried and trusted state's attorney had yielded to the temptation to obtain other people's money and manipulate it to his own advantage. His operations involved more than $50,000 but it was claimed that he had made restitution to the amount of $30,000 and intended to return every penny. Much stress was laid upon this point by the attorney himself as he addressed the court. He did not deny his acts, admitted that he had broken the faith placed in him by the court as well as individuals and made as good a plea as possible under the circumstances without offering any extenuating circumstances. He didn't attempt to dodge the responsibility but he did seek clemency.

For one in such a position to seek leniency must have been more than he really believed he would get. It was certainly more than the court was able to find a way to give. Here was one who had been urging and advocating respect for the law and prosecuting and urging punishment for those who transgressed, and yet he was during part of that time at least quite as deep in the mud as some of the accused were in the mire. He was playing a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and he was using the prominence of his position to aid him in his illegal activities.

Because of his position he was more to be blamed than many another. He had brushed aside all hope for leniency. He had created a situation which called for the court to make an example of him and to make it understood that the law did not mean one thing for the down and outer and another for a state attorney.

THE AUTO ACCIDENT TOLL

The season for many automobile accidents and fatalities has opened. From the very fact that there are more motor cars in operation this year than last it is fair to assume that the deaths and injuries this year will exceed the total for 1924 in spite of the fact that safety efforts are being made and the disclosure in some states that there were a reduction last year in the number of casualties for each thousand machines.

What must be regarded as the season's opener for Sunday fatalities was the record of last Sunday. There was the list of those killed and injured by collision, overturning and the like but there were also 18 persons killed in five states in grade crossing accidents. This means that in spite of the known danger at such points, the knowledge that others have sacrificed their lives at those very places and that personal safety calls for taking precautions that will prevent such an outcome there were nine instances where no attention was apparently paid to the importance of exercising necessary care to avoid being crushed to death. The death list in those accidents was large enough but 14 others were injured at the same time and several of them may have received fatal injuries.

There are instances enough of such a character to cause those at the wheel of automobiles to waste a minute or two, if it can be regarded as wasted for the sake of making certain that they are not going to be dashed into eternity through the sudden appearances of a locomotive. Crossing accidents are invariably avoidable What is needed is the disposition on the part of the highway users at such points to show due care for the lives of themselves and those with them.

SENATOR SPENCER

The sudden death of Senator Spencer of Missouri creates an unexpected situation in the upper house of congress, where, with the republican majority hanging by a thread, his removal further weakens it both as a man and as an administration supporter.

Senator Spencer had been in the senate only since 1918 when he was elected following the death of Senator Stone, to be followed for a full term which would have expired next year. He came into consideration because of the fact that on both occasions he was elected from what was considered a democratic state, at a time when the democratic party was suffering from a split, and during his term as senator he came into prominence because of his [illegible] with President Wilson on a question of veracity. He was a hard worker and an ardent supporter of the regular republican forces and it had been expected that he would be a candidate for reelection next year.

At the time of his last election he received an overwhelming majority over his democratic opponent. That came as part of the landslide when President Harding was elected. Should there be a special election to fill the vacancy the contest will be watched with keen interest for while Senator Spencer was elected both times by the aid of divisions in the democratic camp there have been evidences that Missouri is less of a democratic stronghold than it has been in years gone by. Figures as one of the doubtful states a contest for United States Senator would make it possible to make a more definite appraisal of the political sentiment in that commonwealth under present day conditions.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When Nurmi gets back to Finland what will he have to say about the much talked of speed of America?

The man on the corner says: Highways will have to be widened to accomodate all who want to motor to fires.

That is a good start which President Hindenburg is making in Germany by getting his salary and expense account increased.

It costs two million a year to run the dead letter office, and that office is made necessary through badly and incorrectly addressed mail.

With Henry Ford interested in ships can he entice public thought in that direction long enough to permit of the adjustment of the park problems?

If the rum runners move to the Pacific it will be subject to delays in transportation in sending relief to New York and other eastern points.

That jury which asked mercy for the Ohio woman who poisoned her mother, aunt and uncle ought to have included recommendations for a pension.

The general assembly has a number of important measures to dispose of in the few remaining legislative days which ought not to be lost or sidetracked.

If business on the New York state barge canal is breaking all records it looks like a bid for development instead of putting the money into the St. Lawrence project.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, May 19—The advance of crude rubber to 60 cents a pound, from 17 cents last year, with further advances predicted, will undoubtedly galvanize into action the movement which for the past two years appears to have been languishing and which has for its aim the achievement of what is tersely expressed in the Harvey Firestone's claim that "America should produce its own rubber."

The United States consumes 85 per cent. of the world's rubber supply. There are more than 18,000,000 auto cars in this country, and every owner in the course of the next year will feel the heavy hand of Great Britain when he comes to purchase new tires for it is the so-called Stevenson restriction plan which is chiefly responsible for this aviation in rubber price.

It appears that the Stevenson plan not only includes an agreement among British rubber growers in the British Indies to curtail production, but a system of control has been adopted whereby "only ten per cent. of releases quarterly" is permitted, and "no improvement in the situation is looked forward to by the trade." Yet, the British government gave assurances when the plan went into effect that "there would always be ample supplies of rubber at reasonable prices."

British interests can hardly be said to favor an American merchant marine. British interests squeezed us mercilessly by hiking the price of Straits tin during the war, and not until Bolivian resources were opened up to us was there relief. Rubber is one great raw material which continental United States does not possess. Enough could be raised in the Philippines amply to serve our needs, and there are potentialities in this hemisphere adequate to our necessities, if developed. The mere hint in 1923 that we contemplated doing so terrified the British pool and rubber prices dropped. A year or so ago the department of commerce sent out several investigating parties who covered Latin American fields as prospects for rubber production and the reports they rendered are said to have been optimistic. Latin America as a source would enhance our export trade to that part of the globe.

As President Coolidge said recently, our raw materials are free to all the world, but the same consideration is not shown us. It is high time we took up the work of rubber production in real earnest and put an end to our dependence on Indies gum.

Recent months have recorded a large influx of methanol into this country from Germany. Methanol is understood to be a new synthetic product which may be used as a substitute for wood alcohol, and which in many particulars excels that product. For one thing, it is not so dangerous. Methanol is a result of pure and applied German science. In short, the German chemists have the jump on us with respect to this commodity and they are turning it out at 16 cents a gallon, New York.

Forthwith, the American producers of wood alcohol get panicky and want a duty on methanol for all the traffic will stand, or more. Probably they will get a hearing before the tariff commission with a view of applying the flexible clause and the anti-dumping duty, although no dumping has been established.

But the situation raises the question as to just how far we are going to carry the protective policy. If foreign producers pay pittance wages to their laborers, do nothing to improve their environment and living standards, and make them "brothers to the ox," it is an act of retributive justice, if nothing else, if they are met with high duty rates on their products at our ports in order to vouchsafe to the American workman his wages, standards, and environment. The majority of us will not cavil at that.

But to penalize scientific achievement—to handicap with ball and chain an economic step forward merely because American genius has been dozing in the laboratory while German or other foreign industry has been sweating over the alembic—that sort of action will hardly strengthen American support of the protective policy. When we have learned how to make methanol, then talk tariff.

Magnus W. Alexander, managing director of the national industrial conference board, declares that our immigration law sustains high wages and he quotes statistics to show that the American wage earner today is about 30 per cent. better off than he was at the wage peak of 1920. From this it is apparent that the protective tariff and the immigration law are doing good team work for the American wage earner.

Nearly 400,000,000 pounds of dried fruits valued at over $30,000,000, were exported from the United States last year, or more than double the quantity exported in 1922. Prunes made up 55 per cent. of the shipments, and raisins 23 per cent. The prune has come into its own at home and abroad.

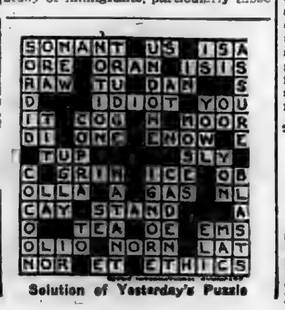
Our biggest prune purchaser is Germany, and the American prune may have something to do with the disposition of the Germans to forget the war and get down to business. Next to Germany, England is our best customer for dried fruits, her purchases in 1924 being four times those of the pre-war period and double those of 1923. Canada also ranks high as a purchaser.

But the policy of imperial tariff preferences which is being put into operation by the British empire will be felt ere the year passes.

There is now awaiting the ratification by Canada of a trade agreement with Australia which will give the latter a free Canadian market for dried fruits, while the general Canadian duty thereon is to be advanced from two-thirds of a cent to three cents a pound. Australian dried fruits are also to have a free market in Great Britain, while American fruits will pay protective rates. But the prune will continue to strut its stuff, for Australia, confines its interest to raisins and currants.

The promotion of W. W. V. Husband of Vermont, from commissioner of immigration to assistant secretary of labor, is a well-deserved recognition of the merits of that official. Husband has long been an authority on the subject of immigration, particularly as it affects the labor question. In 1908 he was secretary of the immigration commission organized at the request of Theodore Roosevelt for an extensive study of immigrants, particularly those among the laboring classes. The high spot of this study was in the Pennsylvania coalfields, although investigation covered the entire country. Out of that report were formulated many of our recent immigration policies and it was Husband who really directed the investigation and helped draft the report. As an executive he knows his "ttle book.

Secretary Jardine has exploded the ancient theory that every vacancy which occurs automatically calls for an appointment of someone else in the Federal service. The Secretary says, "If it becomes desirable to submit a recommendation for an increase in force in order to conduct new work which has been duly authorized such recommendation must show clearly that the addition is absolutely necessary and give the specific reasons which make it so. It will not be possible to give approval to recommendations for new appointments, either by additions to the force or to fill vacancies, except where it is clearly indicated that careful consideration has been given to the possibility of rendering an additional appointment unnecessary."



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

IMPETUS YOUTH

Being but 18, and a very young child in the eyes of her father, Ann had no business falling in love. So Ann's father put her in a boarding school, surrounded by a moat and three high walls, with instructions that neither Freddie nor any other personable young man should see her until she became a little more civilized.

Ann had no chance to tell Freddie either by word or script. She found herself a prisoner so suddenly that she was thrilled. It was so interesting for the first two days that she hardly had time to think of Freddie.

During those two days, however, Freddie was not idle by any means. He realized with creditable intelligence exactly what had happened.

He made up a list of the fashionable boarding schools noted for their qualities as detention homes and narrowed down the list to five places. These he visited one by one, and with the aid of bribery and curiosity eventually discovered the right one.

On the fourth day of Ann's educational imprisonment, as she was beginning to yearn achingly for freedom and Freddie, she heard a scratch upon her window and there in the darkness, perched jauntily upon the balcony rail, with her sweetheart.

"Darling!"

Their reunion was one of the most romantic since the famous Montague-Capulet feud.

"Come on, honey," said Freddie. "Let's get out of here."

Then Mrs. Strang, "dean of the Home School for Select Young Ladies," was experienced. She exploded into Ann's room. She supervised the capture and ejection of Freddie.

Next morning she bustled into the office of Ann's father and told the harrowing story of scandal and asked his advice about prosecuting the trespasser.

"I thought I'd better ask you, Mr Baird," she said officiously, "since it is such a serious matter."

"You were sure it was Fredd Jameson?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. She told me," Mrs. Strang sighed. "She was proud of him!"

"And he swam across the river."

"Yes, sir."

"And he climbed the wall by sticking railroad spikes between the bricks to form a ladder?"

"Yes, sir."

"And tied up the first assistant gardener who tried to stop him in the orchard?"

"Yes, sir, and gave the poor man a black eye."

"And he unhooked the burglar alarm on the court wall and climbed the wall by throwing a slip noose over a tree limb and pulling himself up?"

"Yes, sir."

"But how did he find the window?" Mrs. Strang's plump face assumed a new grimace of horror.

"I don't know, sir. He must have climbed the ivy and peeped into half a dozen rooms until he recognized her."

Baird put his finger tips back together and looked out of the window. He was trying valiantly to conquer a smile that was forcing its way through his barrier of reserve. He failed, and Mrs Strang received the surprise of her life. After the smile came a guffaw, and in a moment the dignified Baird was in a mirthful convulsion.

"Golly," he burst out, "I've never heard of such a thing in all my life! Freddie Jameson—"

It was several minutes before his laughter subsided and he was able to apologize.

"That's all right, Mrs. Strang," he said soothingly. "Don't you worry. You've done your duty. But—well, I tell you what we'll do. You send me a bill for the whole term and for whatever damage Freddie may have done. But you send Ann home this afternoon. All right? No, we won't arrest Freddie. That boy has qualities I did not suspect. I believe he'll make a good son-in-law."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Henry C. Hall, who has been selected to head the American delegation to the International Railway Congress which will meet in London next month, has been a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States for more than eleven years. A lawyer by profession, with a record of success in New York and Paris, he joined the United States consular service in 1888, and, for the next four years, performed duties related to that arm of the government. Settling in Colorado, he soon came into a position of influence and responsibility there, which took official form, in 1903, by his election to the mayoralty of Colorado Springs. In 1913 he was selected to represent Colorado on the Federal commission to induce uniform state laws. Since joining the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1914 Mr. Hall has served several terms as the chairman of that body.

From Small Beginnings

Marshal Lannes, the Stable Keeper's Son Loved by Napoleon.

The one man whom Napoleon Bonaparte loved! That was the proud distinction held by Jean Lannes. The one time when Napoleon Bonaparte broke down and cried on the field of battle! That was when Marshall Lannes, 40 years of age, lay dying on the ground before him.

Seventeen years before that sad day in 1809 Jean Lannes had been only a sergeant-major. "Look at him!" said one of his soldiers. "Yes, look at him twice, and then regard him a third time," said another. "See those shoulders. See that jaw. Think for a minute what he did to that big man the other day, just with his empty hands. Look at him indeed, and beware!" It was that sort of opinion that had made Jean Lannes, the husky dyer, a sergeant-major. More than once he had used his giant strength in a way that had made men fear him. He had had a rough bringing up for his father had kept a stable that was frequented by some of the righest men in France. The boy had been kicked about a bit and then had begun to feel his strength. After that he did his own share of the cuffing and kicking and more than held his own. By the time he gained his full powers there was not a man who knew him who could equal him in strength. As sergeant-major Jean Lannes fought hard and, won promotion—only to fall a victim to politics and become no one once again. That did not worry him. A tumble never worries a man. He promptly enlisted as a private in the army of Italy under a young man called Napoleon Bonaparte. There were battles enough to satisfy anyone, and the stable-keeper's son fought hard. Napoleon's eye found him out—as it found everything—and Lannes became a general.

Lannes minded bullets no more than flies. Napoleon gave him a high command in Egypt. He sent Lannes to lead the first soldiers in the great crossing of the Alps. Wherever there was hard fighting, wherever fate stacked the cards against Napoleon, there the great conqueror sent Marshall Lannes—for he made him a marshal of the empire. At Arcola, at Marengo at Austerlitz, on a hundred terrible fields, Lannes was the right hand of Napoleon, the one man of whom he was absolutely sure; the one man who never failed. He never cringed to Napoleon, but spoke to him as roughly as he had spoken to his associates in the stable. He looked Napoleon in the eye and told him the truth, no more afraid of the emperor than he was of death. In years of constant warfare, under the tutelage of Napoleon, Marshal Lannes became the greatest of generals, and he remained as faithful as a dog. Then in 1809 he was struck down in battle. Utter faithfulness had made him great.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Some Attention Should be Given the Streets

Mr. Editor: The writer observed in the Lake street playground one of our road rollers while away Saturday morning smoothing out this playground. While good grounds for recreation are unquestionably a worthwhile part of our city, it does seem that our streets should come first. Very near this playground is Broad street, from Grove to Roath, in wretched condition, not to mention, of course, Boswell avenue. Both these ways are constant auto thoroughfares, and it does seem that they should be fixed permanently, so that Norwich can have its title, The Rose of New England, a trifle more honestly, in preference to obscure playgrounds.

Taxpayer.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

BROMINE

The Ethyl has gone down to sea for automobiles. The Ethyl is a specially constructed ship for robbing sea water of bromine.

"Bromine, in the last few years, has been getting revenge for defamation of character," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"In 1906 a popular author divided all people into two kinds, bromides and sulphites. The sulphites, transferring chemical character to men, were the effervescent, eager, bright, original sort; the 'Illuminati.' The bromides were the conservatives, the mild bores, people who were always saying the same things in the same old way.

"Most people are formally introduced to bromine, the element which forms a part of all bromides, in their high-school days, and they remember it as a distinctly unpleasant smelling, dark brown, heavy liquid that gives off an ugly brown gas readily.

"How little does the world know its chemicals! In less than ten years bromine stepped out of the role assigned it. 'Mild conservative, meek,' bromine was one of the first poisonous gases used in the World war. Bromine made civilization gasp in horror. And by a still more recent feat of chemical acrobatics bromine has taken to serving automobile engines. The Ethyl has gone for bromine to help in the making of an 'antichoke' aid. While it does not enter in the compound used it has a finger in the fuel for those explosions which make it possible to describe an automobile engine as a Gatling gun firing nine thousand shots per minute.'

"The entrance of the 'big seas' in the bromine market divides the production between three major sources. The United States and Germany have been the chief producers. The Ethyl which has been transformed into a floating chemical laboratory, is prepared to treat 7,000 gallons of water per minute. So small is the bromine content that this large amount of water will only yield between four and five pounds of bromine. Chlorine is employed to treat the water and the extraction process is fairly simple. The chlorine can be used over and over again.

"The Ethyl is sent to sea because of the impurities that might occur in shore waters. A further reason suggested is that water taken from the ocean at a great depth contains chemicals more highly concentrated and therefore with more bromine.

"Bromine is now obtained chiefly from Michigan and from Stassfurt, Germany. Michigan and Stassfurt happen to be the sites of large salt deposits and with salt are other chemicals, such as iodine, bromine, and potassium.

In these deposits world history is salted down and preserved for our knowledge. It is possible to reconstruct prehistoric geography from an exploration of the extent of the beds and the strata recorded in rock salt. At some distant time a great area of the Prussian plain was a bay of the ocean. It was a bay like some of those found today on the east shore of the Caspian Sea where a shallow depression is practically cut off by a sand bar. Drawing the necessary water from the Caspian Sea these bays crystallize tons upon tons of salt annually, gradually filling themselves up. When salt crystallizes a mother liquor of other minerals, highly concentrated, remains. If the feeder channel is deep this is drawn off as lighter water flows in. But if the stopper is firm in Nature's huge crystallization vat, the mother liquors themselves crystallize out and leave iodine, bromine, potassium and other substances.

"In places the salt deposits in the Stassfurt region are nearly 4,000 feet thick. It is estimated that at least 8,000 years were required for such a deposit. A basin of normal sea water would have to be 30 miles deep to form such a deposit, so it is certain that North Germany was once the site of a Caspian sea or a dead sea.

"Bromine is extracted from the mother liquor after the salt is taken out of the brine from the deposit. The process is simple chemically, but the percentage of bromine is so small that the price has long been high.

"In medicine and in photography bromine fulfills the part given it by the humorist. Certain bromides are considered excellent sedatives. In the dark room bromides hold back the silver salts in the emulsions on paper and films which are as sensitive to light as the eye of a bat. Bromine is also important to the dye industry.

Stories That Recall Others

He Needed Socks

Robert was going to the big city to visit his grandparents and had finally persuaded his mother that his legs were long enough and his voice quite deep enough to don the much dreaded of long trousers. So it was an eventful day in his life when his mother took him to a store to be fitted. A new suit, a new hat and a new overcoat were bought after a strenuous hour with an amused clerk. Robert was so bashful after the whole affair that it took much prodding on the part of his mother, and urging for him to speak up, as he was among friends, to speed up the whole affair.

But at last the trial was over and Robert emerged a man. After they had reached the street Robert turned to his mother and remarked sheepishly: "Oh, mother, we have to go back. I have to have socks. The boys would guy me to death with these kid stockings on."

POETRY

The Gardener

The Gardener, God, plants flowers by the way,
Mandrake and the wild rose and meadow vine,
Marsh marigolds in swamps, a brave display,
And little flowers of violet blue

The Gardener, God, has many a quaint device,
Of tree and vine and shrub—and, now and then,
He drops a gentian flower from the skies
For the great wonder and delight of men.

He plants arbutus in a lonely place,
And linden trees that have a yellow flower;
He spreads His dogwood like a veil of lace
Over azalea's rosy shower.

The Gardener, God, has gardens everywhere,
By roadside on the hill, and in the wood.
And sometimes we can find Him walking there,
Watching His flowers as a gardener should.

—Louise Driscoll in Delineator.

"He'd Nothing But His Violin"

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my song,
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long;
And when we rested by the hedge,
The robins came and told
How they had dared to woo and win,
When early Spring was cold.

We sometimes supped on dewberries
Or slept among the hay,
But off the farmers' wives at eve
Came out to hear us play;
The rare old songs, the dear old tunes,—
We could not starve for long
While my man had his violin,
And I my sweet love-song.

The world has aye gone well with us
Old man since we were one,—
Our homeless wandering down the lanes
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold or gear,
For houses or for kine,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and sere,
And love and beauty tine,
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear,
When you had but your violin
And I a song, my dear.

—Mary Kyle Dallas.

H. May, of St Patrick's church and priests from many of the parishes in eastern Connecticut, as well as the trustees of St. Mary's church.

REV. W. A. KEEFE

Besides Monsignor May, those seated on the platform when the meeting was called to order by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, the chairman, were:

Spellman's Orchestra, comprising Nicholas J. Spellman, pianist; Frank S. Galligan, cornet; Daniel Driscoll, violin; and Joseph Farrell, drums, opened the programme with several well rendered numbers, and the following musical programme was given during the evening by St. Mary's choir under the direction of Henry J. Father Coholan, who presided very capably as chairman of the evening, presented Monsignor May to voice the welcome home to Father Keefe. The pastor of St. Patrick's church, who also has visited Rome during the holy year, said that he felt he spoke for the whole city and town in bidding the pastor of St. Mary's welcome home. Father Keefe came to Rome after I left, said Mgr. May, but whenever I hard him spoken of there it was as "Father Keefe ad majora." From certain things we heard in Rome it seems there is greater honors awaiting your pastor.

Mgr. May went on to speak in praise of Father Keefe's patriotic services in the line of addresses during the World war years and referred to him as the orator of Eastern Connecticut, which, he said, means the orator of the diocese of Connecticut. It was his master mind also which conceived this beautiful temple that is now the church home of St. Mary's parish and the whole city honors him.

He has given prestige to the Catholic church and the Catholic priesthood. In conclusion Mgr. May said he brought the congratulations of St. Patrick's to the mother church upon Father Keefe's safe return. "Cead Mille Failthe, welcome, Father Keefe."

Presented Testimonial.

Father Coholan spoke in a humorour vein of some of the experiences he had had in filling the place of Father Keefe while he was abroad and concluded by presenting him a testimonial from the parish in the form of a check for a little over $1,000.

REV. FREDERICK M. COHOLAN

Long continued applause greeted the presentation of the testimonial and was repeated as Father Keefe rose to respond.

H thanked his parishioners most sincerely for this expression of their affection, which he said was only another in a long chain of kindliness and good will towards him and his predecessors, Fathers Smith and Fitzmaurice. He congratulated Mgr. May upon the honor that had been conferred upon him in Rome and expressed the hope that he might live many years to enjoy this honor as domestic prelate to the pope of Rome.

Whatever the amount of this testimonial is, declared Father Keefe, I am going to give Father Coholan $150 of it in recognition of his loyalty and zeal and fidelity, a spirit of which I am proud and which is deserving of recognition. This was greeted with loud applause by the congregation.

Father Keefe then went on to speak of the great privilege he had enjoyed in visiting the sacred places in the Holy Land and the shrines and churches in Italy which were hallowed by the great names in the history of the church. He spoke with reverence of the wonderful inspiration that comes in kneeling at the feet of Pope Piux XI as the representative of the Prince of Peace and the hope of the world.

While Father Keefe was speaking Mayor Milo R. Waters entered the hall and was escorted to the platform and Father Keefe referred to his pleasure in having the mayor present and spoke in appreciation of the spirit of harmony in this city.

Continuing his address, Father Keefe said that the great assemblage at Rome was there because the Pope had invited them to come to kneel down together and meditate upon the great ideals which the saints of the church represent upon this earth.

Priests and people from all the ends of the earth, of every class, color and condition were there, receiving the same inspiration to carry on the ideals of the Prince of Peace as had animated Godfrey de Boullon and Tancred of Normandy and the multitude of other heroes of the faith. He referred also to what he saw at Belleau Wood Chateau Thierry and Rheims, as sad evidences of the failure to follow in the foosteps of the Prince of Peace, and concluded by expressing the hope that peace, harmony and goodwill might continue to carry on the high ideals of the Prince of Peace in this best republic in the world.

Greeting From Mayor Waters

Mayor Waters was called upon and responded by a cordial expression of the pleasure of the whole city at having the pastor of St. Mary's home again.

A selection by the orchestra closed the formal programme, after which many went forward to shake hands with the pastor and express their personal welcome.

The successful arrangements for the reception were carried out by a committee which comprised:

General chairman—Rev. Frederick M. Coholan.

Advisory committee—John T. Sullivan and Francis J. Murtha, Church trustees.

Secretary—Joseph A. Donnelly.

Entertainment—Henry J. La Fontaine.

PARTNERSHIP SUIT WITH $10,000 DAMAGES CLAIMED

Damages of $10,000 are claimed by Frank T. Creen of New London from Gordon R. Bourque also of New London in papers filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court in this city.

It is claimed that on August 1, 1924, the plaintiff and defendant entered into a co-partnership contract for the purpose of conducting business usually connected with automobile accessories, supplies, said contract to be concluded only by death or bankruptcy of either party.

The plaintiff to the papers claims that the defendant on February 15, 1925, abandoned the business contravention to the co-partnership agreement. Since August 1, 1924 it is claimed that plaintiff expended $1600 more than the defendant and since Feb. 15 that the plaintiff has conducted the business alone. The plaintiff claims that several valuable contracts with various manufacturing and supply concerns, which constitute a basis of a large portion of the business conducted by the co-partnership have been lost.

The plaintiff desires to conduct the business by himself alone or jointly with others and for that purpose must possess the property including contracts as well as other assets. The plaintiff asks for dissolution.

EXONERATES TWO DRIVERS IN DEATH OF SAILOR

Deputy Coroner John H. Barnes, of this city, in a finding filed in the death of Jack Bergin, a sailor attached to the U. S. Coast Guard at New London, whose death occurred on May 5, when struck by two automobiles on the state bridge at New London, exonerated the two drivers, Frank E. Smith, of Norwich, and William H. Starweski, of Groton.

In his finding Deputy Coroner Barnes says in part:

On the night of May 5th, 1925, at about 9:30 D. S. T., the said Jack Bergin was standing on the left side of the State bridge, leading from New London to Groton, and was looking towards Groton. The said Frank E. Smith was operating a Cadillac touring car, in which were Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. J. E. Blackburn and Miss Nina Young, all of Norwich, Conn., and was going toward Groton on said bridge and traveling at the rate of about 20 miles an hour. Just before the Smith automobile reached the place where the deceased was standing he suddenly made an attempt to cross the bridge and in doing so his toe caught in the car tracks on said bridge and he pitched forward and went head first into the left fender of the Smith automobile. At that moment the truck being driven over said bridge from Groton to New London had reached a point in line with the Smith automobile and the impact of the Smith automobile threw the said deceased into the rear of the truck. The lights were lit on both the automobile and the truck and it appears from the evidence that the deceased did not look towards New London but kept looking towards Groton and could see the truck coming along the bridge towards New London. If he had looked the other way he would have seen the Smith automobile coming from New London. The Smith automobile was stopped instantly when the deceased fell against the fender and the body of the deceased was dragged by the truck for a distance of about 15 feet. Both the truck and automobile were in good condition and from the evidence it appears that both the driver of the automobile and of the truck did all that possibly could be done under the circumstances. The operators of both the automobile and the truck were experienced motor vehicle operators and were both duly licensed by the motor vehicle department of this state at the time of the accident.

The accident appears to be attributed to the fact that when the deceased started to cross said bridge his toe or foot was caught in the track running along said bridge and the fact caused him to fall against the automobile driven by the said Smith. The evidence indicates that both Mr. Frank E. Smith, the driver of the Cadillac touring car and Mr. William J. Starwesky, the driver of the truck, were not guilty of any want of due care in connection with this accident.

A barn and three tons of hay on the property of C. E. Maynard on the Westerly road were destroyed by fire shortly after noon Monday. A call was sent in to police headquarters asking help from the fire department, but as the fire was about five miles out of Norwich with no water facilities for fighting the flames it was useless for the department to respond.

French Miner, employed by Mr. Maynard, saw smoke coming from the rear of the barn and when he hurriedly opened one of the doors, flames shot through the doorway. Two men had been at work in the barn loading hay on a truck and left it just previous to the discovery of the fire. It is thought that the men may have been smoking and that a spark from a lighted cigarette may be responsible for the fire.

Attached to the barn was an 18-foot silo partly filled. In the barn was about $100 worth of farming tools. Fortunately 10 head of cattle, ordinarily kept in the barn were out at pasture.

HOUSTON'S DRUM CORPS WINS AMATEUR NIGHT

At Monday nights performance of local talent at the Palace theatre Houston's East Side Drum Corps, with Little Billy Gallagher as drum major, was awarded the honors of the evening. The boys, 20 in number, played like professionals. Although the troupe of boys took the first prize, they were closely contested by the 4 other local acts which were: Fallot, a local boy who puzzled the audience with his magical tricks, Aubrey Travers who gave impersonations on the "Dance of Spring" had the crowd on its feet during his act. Tony Messino gave a well selected programme of songs on the banjo, wood saw and mandolin. Minnie Lucas stopped the show when she came upon the stage and presented her comedy skit "I'm from the country." This (Tuesday) evening another wonderful bill of local acts will be shown.

TAFTVILLE A. A. VOTES TO BACK A SEMI-PRO TEAM THIS SEASON

Taftville will support a semi-professional baseball club this season according to an announcement made Monday evening following a meeting of the members of the Taftville Athletic Association. The meeting was held for the purpose of deciding whether the association would undertake to put on a team this season or would let the matter go over for another year. At the meeting there was general enthusiasm in favor of the association getting in back of a semi-pro team.

The team which will be put on this year, according to James H. Troland, who was elected manager of the team at last night's meeting, will be entirely of a different character than the one that represented Taftville last year. The team last season was not so much of a success and the games played proved to be of a calibre that did not appeal to the fans. Manager Troland promises that he will put on the field a team that will rank with the best of semi-pro teams in the state and that only the fastest teams will be brought here to compete with the Taftville aggregation.

As to the presonnel of such a team, Mr. Troland said that it was too early to name any individual players but that he would endeavor to round up a fast bunch of ball tossers. For the first few games the local team may be composed largely of local talent but as the season wears on the team will be strengthened. The battery work will be done almost entirely by well known players in semi-pro circles.

The team will play Saturdays and holidays on the Providence street grounds and on Sundays will take to the road, playing out of town. It is planned to have the season open on Memorial day with possibly a double-header, one game in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The meeting elected the following officers of the association: President, E. Tracy Clark; J. H. Troland, vice president; George W. Weller, treasurer; Noe Lucier, financial secretary; James H. Troland, baseball manager; Archie Moeller, baseball financial manager.

The selection of Jim Troland as manager of the baseball club is a good choice as the fans will remember that he was the one that put such a fine team on the field several years ago in the series with the Kacey team of Norwich. Troland knows ball players and he is a man that will give the fans only first class baseball.

KNOCKOUTS FEATURE BOUTS IN LIGHTWEIGHT TOURNEY

New York, May 18.—(A. P.)—Stanislaus Loayza, Chile, scored a technical knockout over Tommy White of Mexico in the 7th round of a ten round match at the Queensboro A. C. tonight. This was the first of four 10 round bouts here in the lightweight championship elimination contests. Loayza weighed 133 1-2, White 134 1-2.

Loayza led throughout, his right hand punches to White's face inflicting heavy punishment.

Cirilin Olano, Cuban lightweight, knocked out Clonie Tait of Canada in the fifth round with a right hook. Tait had been swinging wildly for the two rounds preceding the final session. The Canadian negro floored his opponent in the second with a straight left for a count of two, but Olano seemed to suffer no ill effects from the blow. He arose smiling and continued the battle with vigor.

Benny Valger outpointed Solly Seaman in a bout between two New York lightweight aspirants.

During the first five rounds the contest was close but in the final half of the match, Valger unleashed a terrific offensive which earned him the decision of the judges.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., lost on a foul to Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo in the fifth round.

Up to the time of the low punch, Mandell had been winning on points, and the foul blow was apparently accidental. Goodrich fell groaning in Mandell's corner, and the referee immediately disqualified the Illinois fighter.

FORT TRUMBULL STARS TO PLAY SUB BASE TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 18.—After a disastrous week end in baseball, the Fort Trumbull Stars will tackle the Submarine Base in a City league contest here Tuesday evening. The outcome of the first game played by the gobs proved to be a victory for the team from across the river, but a more firm stand will be taken by the Stars nine when these teams meet Tuesday. Besides these games, the remaining scheduled for the week include a game for Thursday night between the Tabs and the Kaceys and on Friday night between Socony and the Section Base No. 4.

If Artie Chappell who twirled so well against the Socony nine last week is on the mound for the Stars they will seriously threaten the supremacy of the gobs which seems to have asserted itself. The Stars have a fine fielding and a more dangerous hitting team to rely upon in a pinch to come through for the needed bingles to bring in the runs. A battle royal is bound to take place when these teams meet.

The reason that no game is scheduled for Wednesday is due to the annual circus day here and it would tend to distract from the interest of the game on tap for that night so it was deemed prudent to move the date of the game ahead one day.

ACADEMY SECOND TEAM SWAMPS WHEELER HIGH

With Moon Mullins keeping the hits well scattered while his teammates piled up an impressive score the Academy Seconds swamped Wheeler High 19 to 5 at North Stonington field on Monday afternoon. The Wheeler team was weak in the pitching department and the Seconds pounded two pitchers very hard which together with fast base-running netted them many runs. Errors by the Wheeler infielders also contributed to the size of the score. Every man on the Second team with the exception of Schwartz hit safely several times. Schwartz provided the sensation of the game when he stole second with the bases full.

BULKELEY PLAYS COLLEGIATE PREP THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 18.—Showing a temporary deviation from the winning ways, Bulkeley, after having its string of consecutive victories shattered by the Academy Saturday begins anew the fight for the Connecticut High school title, meeting two strong nines this week. The first game comes on Tuesday afternoon with the Orange and Black players opposing their only opponents outside of High school contests, playing opposite Collegiate Prep of New Haven. On Saturday afternoon, the fight for the state title will be resumed with the locals appearing against Bridgeport High. Both these games are to be played at home.

Both games will be humdingers if advance reports on the relative strength can be relied upon as reliable information. Collegiate Prep comes here with a fine record of victories, defeating several of the larger nines in the state. In fact the Elm City nine comes here so well recommended that Hillhouse High of New Haven which was forced to bow by a 3 to 2 score last Friday does not compare in strength with the Collegiate nine. It will take all of the hitting power and defensive ability of the Bulkeley nine to come out ahead Tuesday. The Orange and Black sure has its work cut out for itself.

Sluggish practice this afternoon marked the resumption of sessions prior to the games. There is a doubt whether Shefiott can appear behind the bat in the game tomorrow. He had a finger on his throwing hit injured in the Academy game and the injury will probably keep him off the field this afternoon. His place was filled by Collins, but Collins is no Shefiott, and the hitting and defensive work of Shefiott will be missed if he is forced to look on idly as the team attempts to come out of its lethargy. Another change which seems imminent is the shifting of Bill (Babe) Booth from center field to right field. Falvey who broke into the opening contest of the year will cover center field, and the old plan of haying a pitcher play in the outfield for his hitting strength will be abolished to give Bulkeley a better defensive team. It is realized that Booth committed the same misjudgment one both Friday and Saturday, in starting for the ball and then failing to cover it after he was supposed to be within easy reach of it.

Captain Tillie Daniels will be seen occupying the hillock in both the games on tap for this week. It was the original intention of Coach Canty's to start Dazzy Parisi against the Elm City nine Tuesday and for that reason Montali started the game with the Academy. But Parisi proved to be such a dismal failure that he will not be trusted with any of the more important assignments. Unless Daniels has suffered a relapse from the kink that developed in his arm while pitching against Hillhouse Friday, he will be ready to stem the tide of the invaders. It was evident that Daniels winced after throwing a fast ball in the seventh inning.

The lineup for the Bulkeley team will be as follows: Barry 2b; Hutchison, 3b; Collins c; Booth cf; Daniels p; Gaetano ss; Montali lf; Mansfield lb; Falvey cf.

IT TAKES WHITE SOX 14 INNINGS TO BEAT LEADERS

Chicago, May 18—Chicago broke Philadelphia's winning streak of nine straight games by winning six to five in 14 innings. Daring base running by Barrett coupled with timely hits by Kamm and Schaik scored the winning run in the 14th. After the Athletics had taken the lead through poor support behind Thurston and opportune hitting, Sheeley tied the count for Chicago by smashing out a home run with one man on. Thurston went the entire route and pitched great ball. Groves who replaced Baumgartner also pitched well and was given remarkable support in the pinches. Score:

New York, May 18—Terry's home run with Ross Young on base in the eighth inning produced the tally which won for the Giants over the Cubs today, 5 to 2. The clubs were locked in a tie when Terry delivered his blow. Charley Hartnett poled out his 11th circuit clout of the season in the sixth inning. Score:

INDIANS BUNCH HITS BEHIND ERRORS AND WIN

Cleveland, May 18—Cleveland scored five runs off Mogridge in the first inning today and that lead allowed the Indians to win, 9 to 6. The winning runs were gathered in the sixth. After an error by Peck had prevented Washington from retiring the Indians scoreless, Karr, Jamieson and Lutzke singled in succession and Speaker and J Sewell walked, forcing in two runs. Karr held Washington to two hits the first five innings and then weakened, allowing eight in the next three. Score:

AMATEUR BOXING SHOW TO BE HELD AT NEW LONDON

(Special To The Bulletin)

New London, May 18—Mosey King, former chairman of the state boxing commission and Eddie Shevlin, welterweight champion of New England, and at present boxing instructor at Harvard, will be the referees in the big amateur boxing tournament to be held in the state armory here Saturday night, June 6th, under the auspices of the 85th Brigade headquarters. There will be 10 or 12 bouts in all, and the card will be topped by two bouts in which two Harvard champions will meet two Yale champions.

In the meantime, Captain Allen B. Lambdin is seeking boxers for the other bouts. It is the plan to pit a New London boy against a Norwich lad. Submarine boxer against a Coast Guard man, a Colchester hopeful against a Montville lad. Amateurs desiring a place on the card are asked to get in touch immediately with either Captain Lambdin at Connecticut college, with Myles Standish, sports editor of the Bulletin or with Lou Sobol, sports editor of The New London Day.

This is the first time in years that New London has had an amateur boxing show but if sufficient support is accorded by the fans, it is the plan of Captain Lambdin to conduct one every month under the auspices of the 85th brigade.

MISS COLLETT'S FIRST OPPONENT FOR BRITISH TITLE WILL BE WELSH CHAMP

Troon, England, May 18—The question of an opponent for Miss Glenna Collett, former American champion, in her debut tomorrow in the second round of the British ladies' open golf championship was settled in the first match today when the Welch champion, Miss M. R. Cox, playing sound steady golf, eliminated Mrs. J. Collis Brown, 4 up and 2 to play. Having drawn a bye, Miss Collett did not appear on the Troon course until late in the afternoon when she played Miss Joy-Winn a practice round, which she won, 1 up.

All of the favorites sailed through the first round of the championship with ease. Miss Joyce Wethered, the champion, disposed of her first opponent, Miss Wardell of Ireland on the twelfth green, and the ex-champion, Miss Cecil Leitch, also won on the twelfth, eliminating Mrs. Jack Cochran of Scotland.

Another former holder of the British women's title, Miss Doris Chambers, who took the 1922 championship away from Miss Wethered, gave Miss May O'Gorman, of Providence, R. I., the most serious beating of the day. But Miss O'Gorman came to England to see her friend Miss Collett play, rather than to go very far herself in the championship. Miss Chambers was at the top of her game, winning the first six holes with ease. After dropping the seventh, where she was badly bunkered, she rushed on to an early victory over the American, the score being 8 up and 7 to play.

Only one match went to the 18th green. In that Miss Edith Leitch eliminated Mrs. F. Cautley by a victory at the home hole. There was only one other close battle in which stars were engaged. This was a match between Mrs. W. A. Gavin, an English woman who spent some time in the United States, and a 14-year-old competitor, Enid Wilson of Chesterfield, who wears her hair down her back. Nevertheless she carries the most powerful pair of shoulders of any woman player on this side of the Atlantic. The youngster stuck to the veteran tournament player, a former New York metropolitan champion, like a barnacle and often outdrove her, but Mrs. Gavin ultimately forged ahead and won the match on the seventeenth green.

Miss Collett will have to play a sound game of golf tomorrow to dispose of the Welch champion, as her play today would indicate. Going out, Miss Cox had four birdies and only three holes were taken in higher than scratch scores. At times she wandered off the line but made only a few faulty shots. She took only 42 to the turn, barely three strokes more than required by Miss Wethered, who played well.

The draw which is divided into eight sections is tremendously overloaded with stars in the third division. Besides Miss Wethered and Miss Collett, Miss Cox and Mrs. MacBeth, this section also embraces the champion of the midlands, Miss H. Robinson, Mrs. Albert Church of Bedfordshire, a well known "county" player, and Miss Doris Chambers, a former holder of the title.

Acting on the advice from home, Miss Collett has been taking things easily during the last few days in preparation for the championship.

A. W. PUTNAM TO REFEREE YALE-HARVARD RACE

New Haven, May 18—Charles H. Walker, manager of the Yale crew, tonight announced the appointment of A. W. Putnam, of New York, as referee of the Yale-Harvard boat races on the Thames at New London, June 19.

For more than twenty years the referee of the Yale-Harvard races has been W. F. Meikleham, a Columbia man of New York city, but Mr. Meikleham, who has just returned from abroad, is not in the best of health and he is forced to decline the invitation of the Yale and Harvard managements to act this year. Mr. Putnam for years has followed Yale-Harvard races in the committee boat, acting as an assistant to Mr. Meikleham.

The Yale crew manager also announced the appointment of Levering Tyson as judge at the finish, with F. D. Factenthal as assistant judge at the finish. These two men have served for years as officials at the annual regattas. The officials will again use the "Dodger" as the committee boat.

Coach Ed Leader of the Yale crew, announced tonight that the varsity, junior varsity and freshman crews, which defeated Princeton and Cornell in all three races on the Housatonic Saturday, will have a rest of three days, doing their next rowing on Thursday.

It is expected that by that time, B. M. Spock, number 7 on Yale's champion crew of last year, who was unable to row Saturday because of a slight strain in his back will be able to take his place in the Yale shell.

The next race for Yale crews will be on Saturday May 30 when the second varsity and the 150-pound crew will take part in the American Henley regatta at Philadelphia.
